ever! Inside the sturdy gamebox you'll find everything you need to recreate an entire pro

Each Pro Player Card has been individually made up using our comprehensive computerized rating system. We give you every one of the pros and his EXACT TALENTS AND ABILITIES and then let YOU BE THE COACH!

Each Player is rated for the following categories: Field Goal Shooting Ability, Free Throw Ability, Rebounding, Fouls (both causing and drawing them), Blocking Shots, Stealing the Ball, Assists, Defense, and Stamina. In addition, each TEAM is rated for its Defense and Fast Break abilities. There are also special rules representing Home Court Advantage, and much more.

Ideal for Solitaire Play

Pro Basketball was designed specifically with the solitaire gamer in mind. The amazingly fast play of the game and the incredibly accurate depiction of the real players' abilities augrantees that you will have as exciting a game by yourself as with your friends. But it's also a great game to play in person, as you and your opponent set your lineups, feed players in and out of the game, speed up or slow down the pace of play, all according to the way YOU think the game should be played! And you can even make up your own leagues, by each taking your favorite team, or by drafting for your own rosters.

Plays as Fast as the Real Game

Using the unique system of FAST ACTION CARDS instead of dice, you'll find that Pro Basketball games can easily be played (and scored) in less than an hour. By matching the cards against the players' ratings you'll get instant results for every play, while at the same time the cards are serving as your timing system! It is this speed and ease of play alone which makes Pro Basketball by far the most enjoyable of the many table basketball games now on the market.

Perfect for Statistical Buffs

Since Pro Basketball duplicates all the actions of the real game, you'll probably want to keep records of your players. For this purpose

- Reference Charts & Tables
- Set of Fast Action Cards
- Player Cards representing players from every Pro Team
- Scorepad

letter from the editor

When Indiana's Bobby Knight was named coach of the U.S. basketball team for the 1984 Olympic Games in Los Angeles the choice was a controversial one.

While Knight is a darling among this nation's basketball coaching community, he has many critics—which he has come by honestly—among the nation's media.

No one questions Knight's coaching ability. He's among the very best, no doubt about that. He is a poor politician, however, as he proved when he coached our team in the Pan Am Games in Puerto Rico in 1979.

In San Juan, Knight came off as the Ugly American, getting into an argument with a local police officer when Knight wanted a Brazilian women's basketball team ordered off a playing court so his team could continue to practice as scheduled. Knight was arrested, later sentenced to a six-month jail stay, and avoided going behind bars because of the graces of a local governor who refused to call for his extradition.

Not very pretty, huh?

That's Bobby Knight, the enfant terrible, you thought at the time. Having had an unpleasant and unprovoked run-in with him once at a college all-star game in Las Vegas, I know Knight is not always on his best behavior. Then again, who is?

I've watched him insult individuals he should have been diplomatic with, and wondered why he did it. He has so much going for him, you thought. Why does he spoil it so? He's a good coach, has a great situation, an adoring family and fans, is good looking, and the sky is the limit. Why does he insist on lousing it up?

Knight is always spoiling for a fight when he's around sportswriters. He insists on insulting them at large. He once said that we all learn to write when we are children, and then move on to bigger things. Well, we all indulge in games when we are children, too, and then we move on to bigger things.

Then again, some of us insist on being sportswriters, while others become basketball coaches, thus putting off adult life for another day. Knight has a penchant for bringing out the worst in sportswriters, and vice versa.

Writers in the New York Times and New York Daily News have called for his resignation as our Olympic coach. Puerto Ricans have protested, regarding his selection as another insult. While writers at the Washington Post and Sports Illustrated have painted a positive picture of Knight.

Is he a Knight in shining armor, or a Knight in tarnished armor?

In the Olympic spirit, I'm willing to listen to those who believe Bobby Knight is the best this country has to offer as a basketball coach.

People I admire and respect believe in Bobby Knight. They include Red Auerbach, Pete Newell, Dave Gavitt and Dean Smith, to mention a few. So Bobby can't be all bad.

I met an intense young man, a disciple of Bobby Knight, last winter, and he did his earnest best to convince me that Knight is No. 1 in his business.

Gerry Gimelstob swears by Bobby Knight. Then again, Gerry Gimelstob swears by a lot of things.

Gimelstob is 32, ten years younger than Knight, and he is the basketball coach at George Washington. He is working wonders at GWU, putting all that he learned at Knight's side at Indiana, first as a graduate assistant and later as an assistant coach, to work.

Now Gimelstob gets into his share of arguments with sportswriters, too, holding them accountable for all that they write, and jawing with them over whatever strikes him the wrong way.

At first, he comes off as a clone of Bobby Knight. On second consideration, however, Gimelstob has some saving graces. Once you get past the "last white kid to play basketball in the Newark City League" veneer, and nudge his softer side, Gimelstob isn't such a bad guy. Once you get to know him, you'd call him good company.

And I have the feeling—why I don't know—that Bobby Knight would be the same way. He has too many boosters to be all that bad. In fact, Hoosier basketball fans probably wonder what the hell we're talking about here.

"I was very fortunate to work under Knight," Gimelstob says. "He is undoubtedly the finest basketball coach in the country. In fact, I think he would be the premier coach in any sport because he not only teaches you how to win, but to win honestly and with integrity.

"He also goes beyond the essentials off the court in emphasizing a good education, graduating and making sure of a career after basketball. He takes a total interest in players on and off the court. He's the epitome of what a coach should be."

The Gospel of Bobby Knight according to Gerry Gimelstob gives one pause for thought. It's reassuring to those who already believe in Bobby Knight, and raises interesting reflections for those who can't stand the man.

Seeing the way Gimelstob's GWU team dressed—sport jackets and ties—and comported itself—classy all the way, on and off the court—and talking to some of his players, at Gimelstob's insistence, in the locker room, you had to come away impressed. "Those are good kids, right?" asked Gimelstob.

"We want to have as good a basketball program as there is in the East. We want to do it with kids who are academically qualified, who want to graduate."

George Washington is a member of the Atlantic 10, a league still struggling for identity and acceptance after an earlier life as the Eastern Eight, and one that has suffered by comparison to the Big East. Georgetown commands more respect in Washington, D.C., with John Thompson, Patrick Ewing and the Big East banner above the basketball program.

"Georgetown has helped us rather than hindered us. They have shown local kids you can stay home and be a part of big-time college basketball."

Gimelstob first got to know Knight when Bobby was coaching at West Point, and Gimelstob was a student at Weequahic High School, a reserve on a team that was named the No. 1 team in the nation.

Gimelstob had a good friend named Tom Murphy, a high school basketball coach in Newark, who introduced him to Knight. Gimelstob got a job at Knight's summer basketball camp at West Point.

"That was the greatest time ever," recalls Gimelstob

He graduated in three years from Rhode Island and headed for Bloomington, Ind., where he served as a graduate assistant while obtaining a master's degree in college personnel administration.

That two-year stint with Knight was followed by a four-year tour of duty with Coach Jerry Pimm at Utah. When an opening came about on Knight's staff, Gimelstob returned to Indiana. Now he is one of 13 former Knight assistants who are head coaches on the college circuit. The list includes Dave Bliss at SMU, Don DeVoe at Tennessee, Mike Krzyzewski at Duke and Bob Weltlich at Texas. No other coach comes close to Knight in that respect.

Gimelstob is surely a loyal son. Talking of Knight, he says, "He's the only one who has a team in the Top 40 consistently, and does it legally. He buys nobody. I know; I was there. "After our win at Temple and American last

"After our win at Temple and American last year, Bobby called me. He said Jimmy Crews—that's one of his assistants—wants to thank you for not screwing up his chances of becoming a head coach. Then he congratulated me. He's like that.

"I don't think there's any coach in America better than Coach Knight at getting players to play to their full capability. Most people, because of human nature, do not work up to their capabilities. We all know a lot of lazy people. He gets the most out of people. He teaches them to use their total capability. He's the best teacher, the best, I've ever seen.'

Or, as a Knight dictum puts it: "Your opponent is yourself, your potential. I coach against the game. It's the game that beats you. If you fool with it, it'll kill you."

He's seen and heard it all before.

"There are a lot of good basketball coaches in this country, like Jack Hartman, Don Haskins and Jerry Pimm, but no one is like Coach Knight. He demands perfection, that you strive for perfection, that if you don't, you're cheating yourself.

"It's a tough combination to beat. He's the smartest guy I know, and the hardest working. It is sometimes better to stroke than to clobber. That's the toughest thing to do in basketball: get players to play as hard as they can.

"As for coaching the Olympic team, there's no question about it. He's the perfect person to coach the Olympic team. You want the best basketball coach in America. You want to win.

"The Olympics supposedly represent the purest in amateurism, for the values in sports. What college coach is more pure? No one. No one is even close. I don't think Coach Knight has a lot of patience with people who do things sloppy, or not with real concern. Or sportswriters who ask him silly questions, or don't really understand basketball.

"He's not real diplomatic with those people. He's his own person. He does what he wants to do. He's true to himself; he's true to other people.

"Ask Jimmy Crews. He started for him as a freshman, and was the other guard with Quinn Buckner when Indiana won the NCAA title in 1976. Crews can tell you the value of being with him.

"Ask Joby Wright, one of his other assistants. He has a master's degree from Indiana. Without Coach Knight, Joby Wright doesn't even have a degree. Coach Knight was always on him to get his education.

"Ask Steve Downing. He had a brief fling at pro ball, like Wright, and now he's an administrative assistant in the Indiana athletic department. Downing came to Indiana as a non-predictor. He also has a master's degree.

"Talk to Jerry Colangelo, Pete Newell, Stu Inman, Scotty Sterling, Red Auerbach... Auerbach offered Bobby the job as coach of the Boston Celtics. You might find some guys who are not so crazy about Bobby, like Lute Olson and Eldon Miller, but talk to Mike Krzyzewski, Dave Gavitt and Dean Smith."

"He got George Raveling and Don Donoher to be his assistants with the Olympic team.
They are both great coaches. And he got C.M. Newton. That's where Bobby's the best. Donoher deserves this. When he had good players, he got to the Final Four with his Dayton team. They're the epitome of what college athletics should be.

"I don't know how anyone can't root for Indiana. Those kids go to class, and they represent the best in college athletics. I know that sounds Pollyanna. It's just there. It just is."

Give 'em hell, Bobby Knight.

Play Pro Basketball with Real Pro Players NOW YOU CAN COACH YOUR FAVORITE TEAM Discover the APBA Pro Basketball Game!

...the APBA Game Co. ... cranks out the most riveting, realistic board games around.

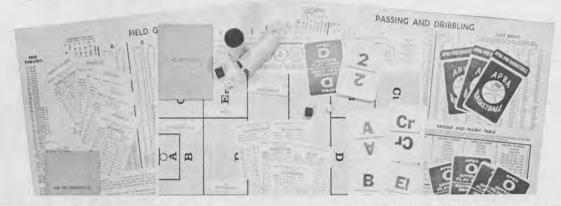

Philadelphia Inquirer

APBA BASKETBALL FEATURES ALL 23 PRO TEAMS

Every one of the 23 pro teams is included in APBA Basketball, with 10 individual player cards making up each club. So you get 230 player cards in your game, and that gives you plenty of coaching flexibility, no matter which team you're running—Philadelphia, Los Angeles, Boston or anyone else.

As coach, you select the starters and decide when to substitute. (In fact, player injuries and fatigue, just a couple of the many realistic aspects of the game, may force you to substitute more often than you wish—exactly like an actual pro coach.) You actually devise the play patterns on offense, including calling for a fast break if the situation is right, and you also set your defense when your opponents have the ball.

Challenge a friend to a game——each of you coaching a genuine pro team of your choice——you'll both find out what a difficult job a real pro coach has. Or you can play the game alone, coaching both teams yourself. We've made provisions for this in the rules, and many fans replay entire season schedules this way.

LIFELIKE BASKETBALL ACTION—— STRATEGICALLY AND STATISTICALLY

Coaching strategy is every bit as important in APBA Basketball as in real life. But to be a consistently successful APBA coach, you'll need not only solid game plans, but also players who are capable of executing them. A little luck won't hurt, either—enough luck, for example, to avoid injuries to key players.

It won't take you long to find that APBA Basketball cards accurately reflect both the strengths and weaknesses of every player they represent.

- Scoring—the big scorers in actual competition will carry the scoring load in APBA, too.
- Foul shooting—each player will draw about the same number of fouls he did in league action, and he'll also make virtually the same percentage of his free throws.
- Rebounding—to be competitive, you'll need at least adequate strength under the boards, and APBA's rebounding leaders will be nearly identical to the league's.
- Assists—basketball's top playmakers will make things happen in APBA, too.
- Fouls—the players who get into regular foul trouble will have the same tendency in APBA.
- And much, much more, as you'll see when you've got the APBA Pro Basketball Game!

DRAFT YOUR OWN TEAMS AND FORM YOUR OWN LEAGUE!

Because APBA cards are individually computed and produced, you aren't limited to playing with the actual pro teams. If you like, you can even hold your own draft and create your own league!

That's right!

If you subscribe to BAS-KETBALL TIMES ($14 for 12 big issues) you'll receive the 1983 CONVERSE YEAR-BOOK absolutely FREE! This $18 value really is the biggest basketball reading deal in America.

BASKETBALL TIMES, the nation's fastest growing basketball publication, has it all for the devoted fans. No other publications gives you the kind of insightful coverage at all levels of basketball.

Our staff of prep experts is unmatched:

 Dave Krider, the best known national prep writer in America. Has appeared in Street & Smith as well as USA Today.

- Howard Garfinkel, top prep scout and operator of the famed Five-Star camps.
- Frank Burlison, top prep writer in Long Beach and a complete authority on high school basketball in the West.
- Dave Bones, publisher of the highly acclaimed "Cage Scope."
- Dave Jones, former editor of Midwest Basketball News and a top recruiting expert.

Our college staff includes:

- Dick Vitale, insightful ESPN commentator who is never at a loss for an opinion.
- Billy Packer, CBS' color commentator whose opinion is highly respected.

 Bob Logan, veteran basketball writer from the Chicago Tribune. Our pro staff includes:

 Mark Engel, veteran NBA observer who has covered the league for a decade.

All this for only $14 plus the CONVERSE YEARBOOK, now in its 62nd year of publication with a complete statistical summary of the past season. Results of all major college teams, pictures of the state champions, plus much, much more.

Basketball Weekly

"One of the highlights of my week during the basketball season is the delivery of my Basketball Weekly. I read it from cover to cover thoroughly digesting every article. The basketball season would be incomplete without my weekly dose of your publication. It makes the season just a little bit more special."

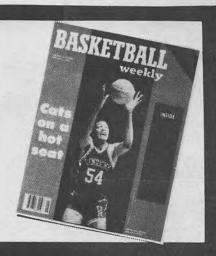

—Pat Williams General Manager, Philadelphia 76ers 1983 NBA Champs

"When I was growing up, you had to read it to know what was happening in the sport. I never missed it."

—Earvin Johnson Los Angeles Lakers 1980, 1982 NBA Champs

Performance in Competition

SPORTS RESEARCH placed 9th in the 1983 AADSS College Basketball Handicapping contest. The 1983 contest was termed "the toughest and most competitive event in AADSS history" by Marty Mendelsohn of the American Association of Documented Sports Services (AADSS), Approximately 65 of the nations leading college basketball handicappers participated.

Consistent Performance

SPORTS RESEARCH finished the 1983 college basketball season with a profit of plus 55 units and provided its telephone clients with a winning week, 66% of the time!

Performance When It Counts

During the period February 28, 1983 thru April 4, 1983 (conference tournaments and NCAA championship play) SPORTS RESEARCH did not have a losing week and won 67% (22-11) of its top plays (3, 4 and 5 star releases).

freshmen of influence

For the second consecutive year, the overall calibre of the incoming freshman class can only be rated average, at best.

That won't be the case next year when one of the super crops that comes along only twice or so in a decade moves on to college.

Still, that's down the road for a lot of coaches who still must look at freshmen for this season to either becoming the missing piece in a puzzle that will guarantee a tournament berth and possibly a national championship or, in the case of some, a player who will help bring respectability to a program.

The top three rated teams in our Street & Smith's poll will need great seasons out of freshmen to reach the heights predicted. North Carolina returns four starters from a team that failed to reach the Final Four last season because of a lack of quickness and ballhandling at point guard. That key spot will be filled by KENNY SMITH out of Archbishop Malloy H.S., New York City. "Special K" has been called by his coach Jack Curran the best all around player he's had over the last 25 years.

Kentucky once again recruited with the best in the country. JAMES BLACKMON, a 6-2 guard who averaged 32 ppg at Marion (Ind.) H.S. should step into the spot vacated by Dirk Minnifield. Blackmon has a chance to be one of the all-time great Wildcat players before he leaves Lexington.

REGGIE WILLIAMS of Baltimore's Dunbar H.S. was considered by most prep observers to be the premier player in the nation last year but he was a major disappointment in all-star games. Still the 6-7 George Gervin look-a-like will be playing alongside Patrick Ewing at Georgetown and Ewing has a habit of making anyone surrounding him a better player.

DWAYNE "Pearl" WASHINGTON was one of the standouts at the National Sports Festival just as he was at Boys & Girls H.S., Brooklyn, N.Y. last season when he averaged nearly 38 ppg. Pearl is taking his show to Syracuse where he should have the fans in the Carrier Dome rocking with his fabulous style of play.

Three other schools—Oklahoma, lowa and LSU—have incoming freshmen capable of making them legitimate playoff contenders.

Last year Oklahoma had, in Wayman Tisdale the premier frosh in the country. He helped make the Sooners a Big Eight power. The Sooners still have the muscle up front but need major help in the backcourt. TIM McCA-LISTER of Gary (Ind.) West Side H.S. will help keep the Sooners in the limelight.

The only decision new lowa coach George Raveling will have to make is deciding where to play JOHNNY FORT, a 6-5 scoring machine from Gary-Wallace H.S. One thing for sure, he'll be a major contributor for the Hawkeyes.

Dale Brown, LSU coach, thinks he has the talent to be a challenger for the SEC title and much of that optimism is the result of snaring 6-8 NIKITA WILSON of Leesville, La.

Getting the big man is a good way to start rebuilding or putting the finishing touches on an up and coming program. There are a half dozen of those type players who make our freshmen of influence list this year.

For CHRISTIAN WELP, the next year should prove very interesting. The 7-footer first figures to make Washington a darkhorse contender for the PAC-10 title. Then, he hopes to lead his native Germany into the Olympics. How good is Welp? When Raveling was at Washington State, he seldom had anything good to say about a Huskies' recruit. Yet, Raveling heaped praise on Welp, calling him a potentially dominating player.

DALLAS COMEGYS has been described

DALLAS COMEGYS has been described as a "Terry Cummings without muscles" and the fact that both will have worn the colors of DePaul might have something to do with the comparison. Comegys, a 6-9 powerhouse from Roman Catholic H.S., Philadelphia, was outgoing coach Ray Meyer's last recruit.

JOHN CULBERTSON from Oak Hill Academy in Virginia has a reputation of being a tough player to handle. Iowa State's John Orr doesn't think he'll have any problems and figures the 6-9 center will be the nucleus of his rebuilding effort.

When you talk about great all-around athletes, MIKE SMITH of Los Altos H.S., Hacienda Heights, Cal., has to be ranked at the very top. A three-sport All-America (football, basketball and volleyball), Smith will concentrate on basketball at Brigham Young. He averaged 29 ppg as a senior. He tossed 40 TD passes and broke Pat Hayden's national mark of 3,437 yards gained in a season.

With Ralph Sampson gone, Virginia faces a major rebuilding job, which should mean lots of playing time for 6-9 TOM SHEEHEY of McQuaid H.S., Rochester, N.Y. The power forward who reminds a lot of scouts of Kevin McHale, now of the Boston Celtics, averaged 27 ppg last year.

Colorado has not produced many five-star performers over the years, but USC figures it's grabbed one in 6-9 CHARLIE SIMPSON of Aurora. He should be the stopper in the middle the Trojans have been chasing since Ken Johnson transferred.

The final member of the elite 14 is HENRY "BRUCE" DALRYMPLE who will be attending Georgia Tech. Called the best player ever produced in the state of Vermont (St. Johnsbury Academy), Dalrymple averaged 29 ppg. His recruitment is important for coach Bobby Cremins because it proves that quality players will go to Tech.

Other players who bear watching are ANTOINE JOUBERT at Michigan, WINSTON BENNETT at Kentucky, GERALD WHITE at Auburn, CURTIS AIKEN at Pitt; SCOTT HICKS at Notre Dame, STEVE ALFORD at Indiana, KANNARD JOHNSON at Western Kentucky; KEVIN SMITH at Minnesota, REGGIE MILLER at UCLA, and CARVEN HOLCOMBE at TCU.

Too big to settle for honorable mention. Big enough to command attention. All the attention of a big magazine.

Eastern Basketball Magazine.

Sorry Big 10, UCLA, Digger and the rest. EB talks East, not West.

The lineup is all East.
A big East: Atlantic 10, ECC, Ivy, ECAC, MAAC, ACC, Big East, High School,
Women and Division II and III.

Maine to the Carolinas.
Too big to compete for attention.
Big enough to stand inspection.
Tough inspection. By a tough magazine.

Eastern Basketball Magazine.

The magazine that inspects and dissects, analyzes and scrutinizes, turns inside and out.

Eastern Basketball Magazine.

The magazine that outspoken Al McGuire admits to "copying a lot of things out of." Because we speak out, not squeak out.

Eastern Basketball Magazine.

The magazine McGuire calls,
"my favorite basketball publication.

If you are going to read just one publication during the season, make it EB.

For inside information, thorough analysis, insight and entertainment value,
it can't be beat.

It's a shame there are not more publications which cover other areas of the country as honestly and completely as this magazine analyzes all aspects of play in the East and ACC."

Eastern Basketball Magazine.

It's more than an Eastern fan's book. It's an Eastern fan's bible. Because we get it right from the beginning.

In ten big ways . . .

FORMAT Eastern Basketball Magazine is the only publication that takes you inside the Atlantic 10, ECC, Ivy, ECAC, ACC, Big East, MAAC and the entire region from Maine to the Carolinas. It is a bi-weekly, glossy magazine—not a newspaper—packed full of exciting photos ... "It's the bible on basketball in the East." Jim Simpson, ESPN.

2 SPECIAL PREVIEW/ HANDBOOK EDITION

Giant handbook ($4 value), published in November and designed to be used as a season-long reference manual, contains in-depth previews of every team and a special 24-page pull-out reference section with schedules, scorecards, rosters, statistics, recruiting reports and more... "No one with any interest in basketball from Maine to the Carolinas should be without this book. I refer to it throughout the season." Curry Kirkpatrick, Sports Illustrated.

FEATURE ARTICLES
Fascinating features, including penetrating player and team profiles and analytical game stories, written by some of America's top sportswriters... "Eastern Basketball is the most informative and entertaining basketball magazine I have seen. No Eastern fan can be without it." Howard Garfinkel, Editor & Publisher HSBI Report, Co-Director Five-Star Basketball Camp.

RECRUITING REPORTS Extraordinary reports that alone are worth the price of a subscription. A special spring recruiting edition ($4 value) and four additional major reports treat recruiting like the special issue it is: evaluations of every player recruited by every school with anticipated contributions and playing time; accurate ratings of top newcomers and teams that recruited best. Additional reports—player profiles, visits, leanings, signings and other recruiting information—appear in every issue . . . "Eastern Basketball's recruiting reports are in a class by themselves. There is simply no other magazine or newspaper that keeps its readers as well informed about recruiting." Mary Albert, NBC Sports.

INTERVIEWS Candid conversations with colorful personalities like Dave Gavitt, Bob Cousy, Al McGuire, Ralph Sampson, John Thompson, Michael Jordan, Bucky Waters, Dick Enberg and Jim Valvano. Plus EB's exclusive end-season interviews with NBA scouts who evaluate the prospects for the pro draft... "Eastern Basketball is the best magazine of its kind in the country. It keeps us—the Bucks' staff—up-to-date on the happenings in college basketball and it is a strong source as we prepare for the draft." Garry St. Jean, Assistant Coach, Milwaukee Bucks.

EDITORIALS Honest, controversial and hard-hitting opinions: Thompson's 'Hoya Paranoia'—Georgetown's coach is a defensive specialist both on and off the court; $4.98 Mentality Proves Costly to Colleges—Does the NCAA foster cheating?; Legal or Illegal, Recruiting Reeks—The demeaning side of coaching; An Inappropriate Sentence, In light of the circumstances, Rick Kuhn's 10-year jail sentence cannot be justified; An Issue Clearly Shaded in Gray—Is Black really best in basketball?... "Eastern Basketball Magazine is never afraid to take a hard stand. Honest viewpoints written by quality writers continue to be one of the magazine's strengths." Bucky Waters, TV Analyst.

HIGH SCHOOL The special high school edition ($3.50 value) kicks off the prep season with exclusive, in-depth features on the best seniors, underclassmen, sleepers and teams. There are polls, ratings, regional reports, All-East teams, editorials, early leanings and signings and more. Throughout the season, an extensive network of correspondents takes you inside the high school arena with absorbing features and straightforward editorials as well as the most detailed prep reports and accurate ratings available..." A must reading for any serious coach, fan or player. Eastern Basketball's coverage of the college and high school ranks is exceptional. I wouldn't miss a single issue." Morgan Wootten, Head Coach, DeMatha H.S.

WHISPERS An intriguing mixture of rumor, speculation and fact—each clearly labeled—contributes to making Dick Weiss' enlightening and entertaining column everyone's favorite. Mr. Weiss, one of the most respected and knowledgeable sportswriters in America, provides all the latest behind-the-scenes poop found nowhere else. And he pulls no punches. His inside information and insight make his column the first one turned to, and most quoted, by coaches, sportswriters and fans . . . "Whispers, like everything in Eastern Basketball Magazine, is accurate, objective and does not rely on sensationalism to sell copies. I love the column and strongly recommend the magazine." Mike Krzyzewski, Head Coach, Duke.

PLAYOFFS AND TOURNAMENTS

Beginning with the special playoff edition ($2.50 value), EB's special correspondents take you beyond the hardwood and into the lockerrooms to give you complete coverage of every NIT and NCAA game involving an Eastern team. Predictions, action photos and colorful and incisive analysis are all a part of these extensive reports... "Throughout the basket-ball season, and particularly going into the tournaments, Eastern Basketball is where I turn for accurate analyzing and reporting." Malcolm Moran, NY Times.

PICKINGS Ray Floriani's insightful analysis and accurate predictions of key upcoming games... "Ray Floriani is knowledgeable, perceptive, and he's right more often than the coaches. And, hey, he's fun to read." Gordon Chiesa, Head Coach, Manhattan.

Ten More Ways . . .

Scores and schedules for every team in every issue;
 College and high school All-American, All-East and All-Conference teams;
 Exclusive small college reports and coaches polls in every issue;
 Statistics, charts and ratings;
 Women's reports;
 Player of the Issue, college and high school Top 10 teams and the nation's Top 35 teams in every issue;
 Ongoing trophy competition among the East's top players;
 Science and sports medicine features Stimulating national and general features; and EB's unconditional money-back guarantee.

Strat-O-Matic PRO BASKETBALL

BASKETBALL

If you like to run a Laker fastbreak or set up the Knicks' half-court game, press or doubleteam, Strat-O-Matic Pro Basketball is for you. If statistics are your speciality and you enjoy keeping records of blocked shots, steals, assists, rebounds and, of course, all shooting and scoring stats, Strat-O-Matic is for you. However, if you find the above a "little too much" and you prefer a simple, fun shooting game, Strat-O-Matic is still for

How is this possible? Strat-O-Matic Pro Basketball is actually two versions in one —basic and advanced. The basic game is simple and exciting to play, and the advanced game is the "real thing." Both versions contain that all important rhythmic feeling of Pro Basketball. And most important - both versions are contained in each set of Strat-O-Matic.

The realism of Strat-O-Matic is uncanny. Even minute details such as rest and injuries are calculated. Yes, even switches occur in Strat-O-Matic Pro Basketball. Imagine your six-foot guard defending your opposing team's seven-foot center — be prepared for an inside move by the big guy. In addition, the home court advantage is a significant factor in Strat-O-Matic just as it is in the NBA. If you coach the lowly Cleveland Cavaliers, beware of long road trips. Cleveland's chances of beating Boston at the Boston Garden are "slimmer than slim."

YOU are responsible for arranging the starting lineup. YOU must weigh the offensive ability of one player against the defensive ability of another player. YOU adjust your lineup due to injuries, players in slumps, and in hot streaks, in an effort to reverse a losing streak. YOU arrange the substitutions designating the appropriate time to bench, or rest your starters.

The above are just some of STRAT-O-MATIC's highlights. For the entire story, mail coupon for a colorful FREE Brochure containing full detailed information and FREE STRAT-O-MATIC SAMPLES. Don't Delay. Write Today!

Winners, Losers, In-Betweens... lend me your ear!

"Hove college basketball, I really do, especially when it gets into conference play. Last season at Big Green, we won eight straight weeks in January and February.* The previous year, Big Green had a streak of six straight winning weeks in those same two months.* That kind of a consistent winning performance can really pad vour pocket.

At Big Green, our rates are reasonable, too: $250 per month, $600 for the season. Customers paying the seasonal rate get April and May NBA selections free. Call now to sign up or obtain additional information."

Doug Huff's all-time high school records

John Glenn High sophomore goes into orbit in Ohio The Midwest was the place to be last season for high school basketball fans who preferred high scoring antics.

An Ohio sophomore and three other boys from midwestern states pace 1982-83 national scoring leaders while the six-girl lowa format again produces the nation's most prolific pointmaker.

Flying high as the nation's No. 1 scorer is 5-11 Jay Burson of John Glenn High in New Concord, Ohio, the first sophomore ever to pace national figures. The son of Muskingum College coach Jim Burson, Jay poured in 921 points in 23 games for a sparkling 40.04 per game average. Burson's single game highs included 61,59,52 and 51. He takes a two-season total of 1,318 points (29.3 ppg) into his junior year.

The all-time record for scoring average by a sophomore is 47.3 set in 1970-71 by Steve Blehm of the North Dakota School for the Deaf.

In Illinois, two young men were etching their names into state record books. Chuck Taylor, 5-10, of Chicago Roosevelt, ranked close behind Burson with a 38.2 average while scoring 1,069 points, third best in Illinois history. Taylor, who tallied a high 71 points in a 108-65 victory over Von Steuben, ended his career with 2,896 points, fourth best in state history. Downstate, Marty Simmons (6-5) of two-time, unbeaten Class A champion Lawrenceville, was in the spotlight. He scored 1,087 points-second on the all-time state records-and ended his career with 2,986 points, third in Illinois records. The Indiana U. recruit netted 62 in one game and scored 33 of his team's final 35 points to end with 43 in a 56-54 state tournament victory over Providence St. Mel. Lawrenceville recorded its second straight 34-0 season for a state record 68-game streak, four better than the mark held by Quincy.

Indiana prep observers won't soon forget 6-2 Steve Alford of Chrysler High in New Castle. Alford not only ranked fourth nationally in scoring average (37.2 on 1,078 points) but was one of the deadliest free throw shooters. After hitting 91 percent as a junior, he improved to 94.4 percent as a senior to rank second in U.S. all-time listings. Alford converted 286 of 303 attempts including a 25-of-25 effort in a school record 57point outburst in the state tournament. He hit 64 straight attempts-third best of all time, missed two, and reeled off 45 more without a miss. He also ended the season with 51 straight and had a home court run of 84 in a row. The Indiana U. recruit connected on 546 of 616 for an all-time career best of 88.6 percent. From the floor, he hit 60 percent as a senior and 59.1 percent while scoring 2,116 career points.

Michigan's top scorer, Don Majerle of Traverse City, averaged 38 points to claim third spot nationally.

The nation's most prolific girls' scorer was 6-4 Lisa Becker of Jefferson Senior High in Cedar Rapids, Iowa. The U. of Iowa recruit scored over 60 points in 15 games including a 75-point high while playing three quarters. She ended with 1,527 points for a sparkling 58.7 per game average, third best in lowa and national history. Becker's 76 percent goal shooting also ranks second in lowa listings. In her two seasons at Jefferson after playing at Benton High, she scored 2,713 points for a 50.6 average.

Ranking behind Becker for 1982-83 scoring honors was Melanie Jones of Collinsville, Okla., with a 43 average.

In boys' winning streaks, Georgia Christian from the Valdosta area community of Dasher padded its streak to 124, second best of all time and just 35 shy of the 58vear-old standard. Besides the 68-game streak of Lawrenceville, Ill., another active record entering the 1983-84 campaign is 59 posted by Dunbar High of Baltimore, Md., last season's mythical national poll champion. Dunbar is 86-2 the last three seasons with both setbacks in overtime. Two streaks ended at 57 for Drake High of San Anselmo, Cal., and Decatur, Ga., which pasted Cross Keys by 136-80. Willard extended its Ohio 'regular season' streak to 69 but Quincy, Ill., had its home court streak ended at 70.

Followers of the Bland, Mo. team celebrated for the first time since 1980 when the team defeated Yeshiva 49-44 in tournament eliminations to end a 63-game losing skid.

In girls' winning streaks, Gloucester, N.J., Catholic capped a 27-0 season and takes an 81-game run into the 1983-84 campaign. Meridian, Idaho won its fourth straight state title with a 25-0 mark and the only mar on its record in 88 straight wins is a forfeit loss in 1981. Joseph, Oregon passed the 70-victory mark and Huron, Ohio hiked its 'regular season' streak to 70 without a setback. Streaks ending last season included the 84-game mark of Riverside, Cal., Poly; 76 by Reno, Nev.; and 71 by Great Falls, Mont.

On the other side of the coin, North Fulton High of Atlanta, Ga., continues on its record skid with 104 straight losses into this year. In boys coaching happenings:

—Ed Gayeski guided his Northwest Area team of Shickshinny, Pa., to a 33-0 record and a first-ever Class A state title in 32 years of coaching. It pushed his career won-lost record to 694-188, just four wins shy of the Pennsylvania mark.

—Bert Jenkins guided Gulfport, Miss., to a 25-9 record and a fifth Class AA title while padding his impressive 22-year record to 684-143 for 83 percent.

—Walter (Buck) Van Huss guided Dobyns-Bennett High in Kingsport, Tenn., to a 27-9 mark to push his 31-year career totals to 856-245 and surpass the state victory mark of 843.

—George Khoury of Warrensburg, N.Y. Central reached an all-time New York standard of 515 career triumphs.

—John Widner of Morrilton, Ark., passed the 800-victory mark over 34 seasons while

When Doug Huff was in high school in 1960, Danny Heater of Burnsville, W. Va., scored 135 points in a game. Huff began compiling statistics on a local, then a national basis, and became the most respected keeper of records in that category in the country. He is sports editor of The Intelligencer in Wheeling, W. Va.

Lofton Greene of River Rouge. Mich., reached the 700-win plateau.

Two recent retirees recorded impressive efforts including the nation's only 1,000victory prep record. Leslie Gaudet ended a 33-year coaching stint at Pine Prairie, La., with a 1,026-353 won-lost mark to earn the No. 1 position on the all-time charts. The Nebraska record-holder is Ed Colleran, who coached 45 years for Spalding Academy with a 648-327 report card.

Other boys individual highlights:

-Darrin Weyer, a 5-9 junior from Gabbs, Nev., converted 27 of 32 free throws in a 43point game against Gerlach. Dennis Ahern of South Huntington, N.Y., Holy Family, converted 25 of 32 in another effort.

-Todd Sims, a 6-foot junior from Perrysburg, Ohio, enjoyed a perfect 28-for-28 shooting game in an 88-77 overtime upset tournament victory of Toledo Scott, Sims connected on all 12 goal tries and was 16of-16 from the foul line for a school record 40 points, 28 better than his average. He extended his streaks to 17 goals and 18 free throws the next game.

-Duane Corley of Rensselaer, N.Y. tallied 10 points in three seconds of a 71-68 setback to Catskill. He converted all eight free throws-six on technical fouls, plus a goal.

-For a one-two punch, consider Frank Ford and Jimmy McCrimmon of unbeaten (37-0 including a reverse forfeit win) Osceola High of Kissimee, Fla. Both led the state with an identical 973 points while McCrimmon tallied 2,364 and Ford 2,197 in their careers.

-In goal shooting, 6-9 LSU recruit Tom Curry of Baton Rouge, La., Redemptorist connected on 76 percent from the floor for 40 games, just shy of the all-time season mark of 78.3 percent held by Bill Walton.

Two Pennsylvania four-year performers rank high in blocked shots and rebounds. Dave Popson (6-10) of Kingston Bishop O'Reilly rejected 891 attempts in his career including a game high of 19. John Bowen (6-6) of Warren averaged 19.3 rebounds on 2,118 career rebounds while scoring 2,839 points. In Bowen's first varsity game as a freshman, he scored 36 points and grabbed 22 rebounds.

Other boys team happenings:

 Richmond Benedictine continued its record Virginia Catholic title string to 13 and the school's 25 overall crown. Coach Warren Rutledge has guided 19 of those championships with a 620-154 record in 26 seasons.

• Hall Summit, La., won a 'C' state title with a 47-3 record.

· Switz City, Ind., outlasted North Davies 61-60 in seven overtimes.

· Collinsville, III., became the second team to reach 1,500 all-time victories.

 Mary Johnson (5-4) made news with a 28-foot goal for Grand Marais. Mich., in a 56-

Bert Jenkins led Gulfport (Miss.) High to another AA title.

Leslie Gaudet won more than 1,000 games at Pine Prairie, LA.

Lisa Becker is taking high-scoring game to University of Iowa.

Steve Alford was Indiana's Mr. Basketball in 1983 season.

Jay Burson of New Concord, O., led nation in scoring as soph.

Ed Colleran calls it quits after 45 years at Spalding Academy

35 tournament BOYS defeat to Engadine. The Providence, III., St. Mel Junior High BOYS team has a 5-11 regular in Shondra Bell

· At Hobbs, N.M., two junior high teams combined for 204 points as Houston defeated Highland 103-101

• The four-day, 15-game Kentucky state tournament attracted 137,700 fans including 19.500 for the finals as Lexington Clay outlasted Carlisle County of Bardwell in three overtimes.

In a W. Va. overtime game, Meadow Bridge defeated Marsh Fork by 11-8.

Other airls highlights:

 Harrison Central High of Gulfport, Miss., tied an all-time record with its seventh straight Class AA state crown.

· Grant High of Sacramento, Cal., won its first 36 games before bowing in the state

• Two teams recorded 93-0 game shutouts. Wenona, III., Putnam County blanked Henry-Senachwine after an earlier 77-3 romp while Pacific Christian Academy beat Shore Acres of Pittsburg in the first California shutout in 50 years. In Minnesota, Duluth East overpowered Cathedral by 121-6.

· Lincoln High of East St. Louis, Ill., with All-America Tina Hutchinson averaging 35.8 points and breaking the 3,000 career point mark, rolled to wins of 106-20, 111-15, 103-

20 and 91-16.

 Monique Tarantini (5-7) of Morgantown, W. Va., St. Francis takes a 31.2 per game average (2,058 points) into her senior year following a state record 35.1 average

HGH SCHOOL

Street & Smith's scouting reports on the nation's 30 best high school stars by Dave Krider

CHARLIE SMITH 6-9, 200, senior Harding Bridgeport, Conn.

Charlie Smith "has everything" it takes to be a blue chipper, says Dom Perno, head coach at the University of Connecticut. Perno cites such skills as "quickness. quick jumper, shoots well for his size and is very intelligent."...The big guy averaged 17 points and 15 rebounds for a 28-0 state champion and the figures are much more impressive when it is pointed out that every other starter also scored in double figures. He shot 61 percent from the field and averaged a highly impressive eight blocks per game... Asked about Smith's best skill, Harding Coach Charles Bentley cited a "real nice soft touch from 15 to 20 feet...He has above-average quickness and likes contact."...Smith is interested in Connecticut, Georgetown, North Carolina, North Carolina State, Virginia, Villanova and Syracuse

JOHN WILLIAMS 6-8, 220, senior Crenshaw Los Angeles, Calif.

John Williams tore through the California state tournament last year like a runaway forest fire, leading Crenshaw to the Division I championship and the No. 6 rating in the nation with a 27-2 record. He averaged 23.7 points during the regular season. In the title game against Oakland Bishop O'Dowd he had 29 points, 13 rebounds and five blocked shots. . The Crenshaw strongman is called "one of the most versatile players ever produced in the state," by West Coast expert Frank Burlison of the Long Beach Independent-Press Telegram... His ability to play any position helped earn him Los Angeles City Player of the Year honors as a junior ... From the same school which spawned Marques Johnson but plays somewhat like George Gervin... college choices: Louisville, Georgetown, N.C. State, Kentucky and Georgia Tech.

CEDRIC HENDERSON 6-8, 205, senior Marietta Marietta, Ga.

"A player who can do it all" is the way Georgia Tech Coach Bobby Cremins describes Cedric Henderson. The 6-8 Henderson was named Georgia's top largeschool player as a junior by the Atlanta Constitution after leading Marietta to a 30-2 record and the state championship. Henderson averaged 21.5 points, 13.6 rebounds and shot 58 percent from the floor. He had high games of 36 points and 24 rebounds... As a sophomore he averaged 19.4 points and 14 rebounds for a 21-3 team...Coach Charlie Hood loves his superstar's aggressiveness at both ends of the floor, indicating he uses intelligence to complement his hardnosed style. He has excellent quickness and timing. He is a talented enough ball handler that he is being projected as a forward in college...Tennessee will be among the big favorites since former UT All-America Dale Ellis also was a Marietta graduate.

CHRIS MORRIS 6-8, 180, senior Douglass Atlanta, Ga.

Chris Morris averaged 19.6 points, 13 rebounds and 4.0 assists while shooting 62 percent as a junior. He had high games of 30 points, 22 rebounds and nine assists for 22-3 Atlanta Douglass, long a basketball hotbed...Georgia Tech Coach Bobby Cremins feels Morris has "the most raw talent I have seen in a player in a long time. Has tremendous potential and is definitely in the 'super' category."...Douglass Coach Don Dollar feels Morris definitely possesses all the tools...The thing I like best about him is his ability to play to the level of the competition. In other words, the game is never too big or the players too great."... Auburn, which last year inked Douglass star Terry Martin, is among the leaders for his services.

RODNEY BLAKE 6-8, 250, senior Monsignor Bonner Philadelphia, Pa.

Shades of Westley Unseldhere comes Rodney Blake. At 6-8 and 250 pounds, the Philadelphia standout will not be pushed around by mortal men. And he has good quickness and agility to go with his bulk... As a junior Blake averaged 10 rebounds and seven blocked shots per game. His superior defensive instincts have whetted the appetites of many colleges...He led Bonner to its first Catholic League championship since 1960 and is expected to get better and better. . . Villanova assistant Coach Mitch Buonaguro calls him "an outstanding athlete. He's a Dantley (Adrian) type-very physical."

KENNY SAUNDERS 6-4, 215, senior McKinley Washington, D.C.

In the Washington, D.C., area being compared to Adrian Dantley is a special compliment and this year's replica is Kenny Saunders. At 6-4 and 215, Saunders is a man among boys and he knows how to use his tremendous upper body strength ... "Kenny is a very tenacious and aggressive rebounder and scorer." describes Coach Charles Perry. "He gets a lot of 3-point plays. He moves well without the ball, has a very quick first step and can bench press 300 pounds." As a junior Saunders averaged 25.7 points. 12 rebounds and 4.5 assists while shooting 710 from the field. He had high games of 42 points and 19 rebounds for a 16-6 team. Opened some eyes with back-to-back 44-point games as his AAU team won the regional title in the spring.

STEVE STOYKO 6-10, 190, senior Bay Village Bay Village, O.

Steve Stoyko's game is quickness, says Coach Rich Voiers. And when a 6-10 player can run 40 yards in 4.65 seconds he's tailor-made for a fast-break attack. He ran the hurdles and long jumped almost 22 feet in track last spring.... He has long arms and a nice shooting touch from 15 feet. Making him even more desirable is his brilliant 3.85 scholastic average which places him No. 1 in his class... As a junior Stoyko averaged 18 points and 8.0 rebounds while shooting 56 percent for a 20-3 team. .. He is interested in Stanford, Northwestern, Duke, Indiana, Ohio State, Michigan, Virginia and Purdue.

RICHARD MADISON 6-7, 210, senior Northside Memphis, Tenn.

Exceptional quickness and leaping ability—coupled with his 6-7 height—make Richard Madison one of the nation's finest college prospects. That's why major powers such as Kentucky, Georgetown, Syracuse, Tennessee and North Carolina are among the finalists for his services next year...Coach Marion Brewer calls him "an excellent perimeter shooter" and keys his attack around him, even though the team still boasts good balance. He is an excellent athlete and has played several positions in football. The versatility carries over to basketball as he will be switched from forward to center this year. In college he probably will play big guard....As a junior Madison averaged 18.2 points, 9.2 rebounds and 3.5 assists for a 25-11 squad. He enters his final year with 1,065 points. Nicknamed "Masterblaster" by Memphis Commercial-Appeal sportswriter Larry Rea.

DEMETRIUS GORE 6-5, 185, senior Chadsey Detroit, Mich.

Demetrius Gore is Detroit's latest scoring machine. His 32.0 average as a junior was even higher than that of All-American Antoine Joubert, though Joubert had more total points. Included was a school-record 50-point game. He also averaged 14:6 rebounds and 6.1 assists wth shooting percentages of 56 from the field and 81 from the foul line. He had 25 rebounds in one game and 14 assists in another....Gore's statistics are even more amazing when it is noted that he played with four inexperienced starters and had to shoulder most of the load himself during a 13-6 campaign. Equally at home at guard or forward, Gore "has outstanding floor presence," according to Coach Robert Shannon. "He has 25-foot shooting range and is a very good passer. He's an outstanding jumper and deceptively quick." ... Houston, Louisville, Marquette, DePaul, Kentucky, Arizona and eight Big Ten schools are in the running for his future services.

BILLY KING 6-6, 192, senior Park View Sterling, Va.

Coach Ken Edwards calls Billy King "the best small forward prospect I have seen in Virginia in 20 years of coaching. a junior King averaged 20.9 points, 12.6 rebounds and shot 50 percent from the field for a 21-4 team. His most surprising statistic, however, is that he led the squad with 52 assists per game. He had top games of 29 points, 23 rebounds and 15 assists... Coach Edwards loves his "exceptional court awareness...excellent leaping ability...handles the ball exceptionally well...plays very good man-to-man defense. Verv quick going to the basket. and a good scorer from 17 feet.

CRAIG JACKSON 6-8, 195, senior Montbello Denver, Colo.

Craig Jackson could become the finest player in the history of Colorado this winter. He already has had two brilliant campaigns. As a sophomore he set five school records. As a junior he averaged 20.3 points, 17.2 rebounds and 5.0 assists while shooting 67 percent from the floor. His team posted a 20-4 record and was state runnerup... Typical of his performances was a 21-point, 18-rebound effort as Montbello snapped Denver Washington's 29-game winning streak, 53-45... Coach Sayyid Abdal-Rahman says Jackson is very sound fundamentally and is quite versatile

... He also is a straight-A student, greatly enhancing college interest.

AL LORENZEN 6-9, 220, senior Kennedy Cedar Rapids, Ia.

Al Lorenzen made one of the earliest college verbal commitments on record when he chose the University of Iowa during his junior campaign. The 6-9, 220-pounder, with a great senior year, could go down as the No. 1 cager in the history of his state. As a junior Lorenzen averaged 21.6 points and 10.9 rebounds for a 16-5 team. He shot .536 from the field and had high games of 35 points and 16 rebounds. He also blocked 156 shots over the past two campaigns. Coach Dave Etienne feels that his star's tremendous "inner drive" will push him to greatness. "He plays excellent defense. Very few big men pass the ball any better or have the court savvy Al has. He is like another coach on the floor."

JOHN THOMPSON 6-7, 225, senior Brunswick Lawrenceville, VA

John Thompson is a raw-boned muscleman on the rise. At 6-7 and 225 pounds, Thompson takes no back talk from opponents. He broke six school records as a junior. During a 17-8 campaign, he averaged 26.4 points, 16 rebounds and shot

MATT BEEUWSAERT 6-6, 205, senior Mater Dei Santa Ana, Calif.

Matt Beeuwsaert has some heavy responsibility this year as the leader of the nation's No. 1-ranked prep team. He certainly has a strong foundation, however, coming off a junior year in which he averaged 15.7 points, 10.4 rebounds and 3.7 assists for a 29-3 team which won 24 straight during one long stretch. He had high games of 32 points, 17 rebounds and eight assists beeuwsaert was rewarded by being the first junior in 10 years to be named MVP in the rugged CIF 4-A ranks... Coach Gary McKnight used Beeuwsaert often as a guard and he did a bangup job. McKnight calls him "a money player," citing such other abilities as strength, ball handling and intelligence... Notre Dame may have the edge, but the Mater Dei star also is looking at UCLA, Oregon State, Duke and Arizona.

DUANE FERRELL 6-5, 200, senior Calvert Hall Towson, Md.

A starter since his freshman year, Duane Ferrell enters his final campaign as one of the nation's best known prep stars. As a mere sophomore the 6-5 strongman helped Calvert Hall to an unbeaten season and its first national championship. As a junior he averaged 22.8 points, 11.5 rebounds and shot .584 from the field for a 21-13 team. His top games included 36 points and 20 rebounds. Coach Charlie Reif calls him a "superior leaper. Has great technique on the offensive boards, with the ability to keep the ball alive. Excels in all aspects of the game"... Moved from the inside to a wing last year and proved he has good outside shooting and ball handling skills... Already the leading career scorer at Calvert Hall with 1,752 points.

STEVE SMITH 6-5, 190, senior Alter Kettering, O.

Steve Smith starred for Ohio state champions as a freshman and sophomore at Dayton Roth. But then Roth closed its doors and Smith transferred to suburban Kettering Alter, which had an outstanding tradition of its own...To his credit Smith made a fine transition, averaging 19.2 points, 5.6 rebounds and 3.7 assists for a well-balanced team which finished with a 21-5 record...He had high games of 35 points, 10 rebounds and nine assists...Coach Joe Petrocelli says, "His forte is his outside shooting. He shoots with great range and accuracy. He also has the ability to see the whole floor and he is an excellent passer."... Ohio State, Dayton, Michigan, Indiana and Marquette are the chief rivals for Smith's college commitment.

CHRIS WASHBURN 6-11, 245, senior Fork Union Military Fork Union, Va.

A year ago, Chris Washburn made a courageous decision to leave his home in Hickory, N.C., and accept the rigid discipline and academic standards at Fork Union, Va., Military. It paid off handsomely as he is improving his grades and, hopefully, will be able to qualify for a major college scholarship next year Washburn has been rated a surefire superstar since he was discovered doing windmill dunks as an eighth grader and he may be the No. 1 player in the nation this year... As a junior he averaged 20 points and 10 rebounds for a 22-5 team. He had highs of 32 points and 20 rebounds. It should be noted that he was the only underclassman on the team (all others were post high school graduates) and the team played non-high school opponents. Coach Fletcher Arritt feels Washburn "has the physical tools to play with anybody."...Could become one of basketball's all-time greats.... College choices: N.C. State, Virginia and Virginia Tech.

TIM MARTIN 6-11, 235, senior Drewry Mason Ridgeway, Va.

A 6-11 player who gets straight A's is a rare commodity and that's why over 200 colleges have contacted Tim Martin .As a sophomore Martin led Drewry Mason to a 26-1 record and the Virginia Class A state title. He averaged 23.5 points, 12 rebounds and 5.0 assists. As a junior he averaged 22 points, 12 rebounds and 5.0 assists while shooting 61 percent from the floor. His highs included 33 points, 19 rebounds and seven assists as his team went 25-2. Entering this season he has 1,225 career points... Coach Jim Young calls him "a great shooter and passer for a big man." He has good mobility for his size and uses his strength.

KEVIN WALLS 6-2, 185, senior Camden Camden, N.J.

Camden Coach Clarence Turner turns out All-Americas like robots on an assembly line and the latest is backcourt star Kevin Walls. Entering his senior year the 6-2 Walls already has scored 1,685 points... As a junior the smooth guard averaged 22.4 points, 7.0 assists and 4.0 rebounds. He shot .623 from the field and .868 from the free throw line. He had highs of 38 points, 12 assists and six rebounds as Camden posted a 25-2 record and again held a national team rating. . When Turner calls him "probably the best shooter. I have ever coached," college scouts have to sit up and take notice. Turner adds that Walls "passes extremely well. Plays his best ball against the best opposition." . In his three varsity seasons

Walls has helped Camden to a Ray Haskins has coached some outstanding players at Brooklyn Alexander Hamilton and that's why Ed Davender must be something special. "He is the best player I ever have coached," says the veteran coach... Haskins calls him a "triple E player—excellent person, excellent student and excellent player." ... "Edward is the best shooter in New York City and he plays defense like a labor of love." ... As a junior Davender averaged 29 points, 7,0 3140 Polaris #27 Las Vegas, NV 89102 rebounds and 5.0 assists. He had a 47-point game and also had highs of 14 rebounds and 11 assists. He fired in 54 percent of his field goal attempts and 93 percent of his free throws. He enters his senior year with 1,372 points.

TROY LEWIS 6-4, 185, senior Anderson Anderson, Ind.

Troy Lewis left the proud Anderson High School record book in a shambles following a brilliant junior year. Anderson long has been one of Indiana's finest hotbeds, but last year the 6-4 Lewis exploded for 869 points (29.97 average) to erase the school record and he even carried that over to the state finals where he set a two-game record with 76 points as his team finished in second place... As the Indians posted a 24-5 record, Lewis never scored less than 19 points and he had a high of 46 against New Castle. He also averaged 8.1 rebounds and 3.3 assists while shooting .580 from the field and .817 from the foul line .Coach Norm Held calls him the "best player without the ball I've come across. Excellent shooter. Good passer. Good student. Great personality to handle the attention."...Interested in Purdue, Louisville, Duke, Indiana and West Virginia.

CHRIS SANDLE 6-8, 210, senior Poly Long Beach, Calif.

Chris Sandle was the leading scorer (16.8), rebounder (11.2) and defensive player on last year's 28-5 Long Beach Poly squad. Poly always features great balance and highly-successful Coach Ron Palmer concedes Sandle could "probably average 30-plus points" if he turned him loose this year... Sandle shot 52 percent from the field and 72 percent from the line and handed out 3.0 assists per game. He had highs of 32 points, 21 rebounds and six assists...Coach Palmer notes that Sandle will play all positions this year since he is both the premier bigman and ball handler on the team. Making him a great penetrator is his "tremendous first step."... UCLA is among the strongest contenders for Sandle.

ROGER McCLENDON 6-5, 170, senior Centennial Champaign, III.

The premier player in Illinois this year, Roger McClendon can shoot with the best of them but he still is an outstanding team player, according to Coach Coleman Carrodine ... The 6-5 guard averaged 20.2 points, 7.8 rebounds and 4.0 assists for a 14-10 teám as a junior. He shot 52 percent from the floor with great range. His highs were 34 points. 14 rebounds and seven assists... Coach Carrodine calls him a "coach's dream... Roger is very coachable and highly motivated. He is an excellent student (4.3 average on a 5.0 scale), good citizen, community and team leader.

STEVE MILLER 6-6, 210, senior Henry Clay Lexington, Ky.

Al Prewitt has been coaching for 25 years and he flat out predicts, "The university that Steve Miller attends will win a national championship." That's how high he is on Miller, who led his team to a 32-2 record and last year's Kentucky state championship As a junior Miller averaged 19 points and 10.1 rebounds while shooting .586 from the field. He enters his final year with 1,101 points...Miller has a 38-inch vertical jump...Prewitt calls him "the consummate basketball player. He knows no limits to his game. He possesses those things that the average fan can identify with...but also possesses the intangibles that only the trained eye can appreciate. He is a winner in every respect."...Kentucky, Louisville, Syracuse and UCLA are among the biggies bidding for the Henry Clay star.

The best bigman in New York state, Gary Voce should blossom into a true standout this year. The 6-9, 220-pounder will be the hub of Bronx Tolentine, one of the nation's top-ranked squads, and will team with point guard John Johnson to make a run at the state championship

As a junior Voce averaged 20 points and 13 rebounds for a 22-5 squad. He shot 55 percent from the field and produced highs of 30 points and 19 rebounds...Voce should get better and better because he did not take up the sport until his freshman year..."Improved tremendously this past season," indicated veteran Coach Bob Austin. "Runs well. Has excellent jump shot with good range. Strong inside. Loves to play, is coachable and has lots of desire."... Voce is an honor student.

GARY GRANT 6-2, 170, senior McKinley Canton, O.

Canton McKinley will be one of the nation's finest teams this winter and the biggest reason comes in a small but wiry 6-2 package called Gary Grant. He has quick hands, great leaping ability and the reach of a much taller player. He also has a tenacity that cannot be coached-he is a great competitor and a winner... As a sophomore Grant broke his wrist and got into weightlifting in a rehabilitation program. His 170-pound frame is much stronger than it might appear...He averaged 12.6 points during his abbreviated sophomore campaign... As a junior Grant averaged 19.3 points, 6.0 rebounds and 4.7 assists for an outstanding 24-2 team. He shot .542 from the field and a lofty .891 from the foul line. His highs were 28 points, 12 rebounds and nine assists...Coach Mike Riley cites Grant's "ability to make the big play in clutch situations. He has outstanding court sense . Above all he has a great attitude and willingness to work."

ROBERT LOCK 6-10, 215, senior Reedley Reedley, Calif.

Robert Lock flies high above most of his opponents on the basketball court, so he shouldn't be too far from his goal of getting a pilot's license. . Even be-fore his senior year, the 6-10 Lock has been compared favor-ably to Clifton Pondexter, who has been acknowledged as the finest player ever produced in the Fresno area... As a junior Lock averaged 23 points, 13.5 rebounds and shot 50 percent from the floor. He had high games of 42 points and 27 rebounds for a 15-8 squad Lock has very good speed and agility for his size and has a quick first step to the basket. He also has a fine shooting touch

.. Fresno State, UCLA and Arizona are among the many schools after him.

DANNY MANNING 6-11, 190, senior Lawrence Lawrence, Kansas

If Chris Washburn isn't the nation's No. 1 prep cager this year, then Danny Manning most certainly is. Actually, a very good case could be made for Manning because prior to his junior year he out-played Washburn at a summer camp and he had better statistics than Washburn when each played against the University of North Carolina JV team... Manning had a brilliant junior campaign as he led Greensboro Page to the state championship and No. 2 national rating with a 26-0 record. He averaged 18.8 points, 10 rebounds and 4.0 assists on a balanced team. He had highs of 33 points, 19 rebounds and seven assists...former coach Mac Morris feels his protege has the skills to be a big guard in college. He is very team-oriented. He took only 10 shots a game. Excellent shooter and amazing ballhandler for any size. Led team in blocked shots and steals and was second in assists

.Is the son of former pro Ed Manning who has been hired as an assistant coach by former teammate Larry Brown. Guess where Danny will go to college?

DELRAY BROOKS 6-4, 170, senior Rogers Michigan City, Ind.

Mike Warren of Hill Street Blues fame made the initial call on behalf of UCLA...Jim Valvano came on strong with his pitch after winning his first NCAA title at North Carolina State...Notre Dame. Indiana and Purdue have been in there pitching for at least a couple years already ... Northwestern and Nevada-Las Vegas also are being considered as Delray Brooks prepares for what should be a banner senior campaign at Michigan City Rogers ... Indiana's leading candidate for Mr. Basketball, Brooks "will be turned loose this year," according to Coach Earl Cunningham. That means some big numbers because last year on a balanced 20-4 squad Brooks averaged 22.5 points, 5.0 rebounds and 5.0 assists while shooting .555 from the field and .800 from the foul line. He had a top game of 38 points... Brooks, already a three-year starter, has outstanding quickness, leaping and perimeter shooting ability. Coach Cunningham adds, "He is an outstanding school citizen who also excels in the classroom. He is a great practice player, giving 100 percent every day ...

Already one of the nation's finest centers, Grady Mateen may have just begun to tap his enor- Purdue.

mous potential, according to Coach Mike Maneer. "He's improved so tremendously the last two years," says Maneer, "but he still can improve a lot more. I think he's going to be a great one"... As a junior the 6-11 Mateen averaged 19 points, 11 rebounds and 5.5 blocks. He had top single games of 32 points, 17 rebounds and nine blocks as he sparked Central Hower to a 26-2 record and a berth in the state Class AAA finals...He averaged 15 points as a sophomore... Maneer calls mobility his star's greatest asset and notes how well he runs the court for his size. He also is a strong student (3.3 scholastic average) Colleges having a good shot at landing him include Ohio State, Notre Dame, Georgetown, Indiana, Michigan and

NCAA tourney

Hottest item in sports TV, it's the bouncing ball

College basketball is hot.

When the National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences made its 1983 presentations, for the previous seasons, the outstanding live sports event was the 1982 NCAA finals by CBS, the first time a basketball game of any type had ever received the award. Kevin subscribers. O'Malley, CBS executive producer, proudly

the equivalent to the presidential elections, were posted for the major markets and the USA as a whole, the 1983 final game with North Carolina State's surprising triumph over top-ranked Houston had more households tuned in (18.9 million) than any basketball game ever. That's NCAA, NBA, Olympics, ever. CBS-TV got 22.7 rating, a 33 share, and Nielsen figured 50 million people had viewed some part of the action that Monday night.

In its 16 NCAA tournament games CBS had a 10.3 rating, up four percent from its first year; Saturday games rated 11.6, up 14 percent. ESPN, which became the NCAA tournament's cable outlet, after a full and successful regular season, posted its best ratings week in history, 6.8 for March 21-27, the NCAA regional semifinals.

It was even more apparent that this TV money was paying the bills for college basketball when the final NCAA report on its 1983 championships was tabulated. Recall, if you will, the finals site moving from 61,000-seat Louisiana Superdome to 18,000-seat University of New Mexico "Pit." The payout to competing teams rose considerably, to an all-time peak of $132,744 for first-second round teams, $393,234 for regional teams and $530,979 for the Final Four. It was TV by CBS-TV and NCAA Productions. The third year of CBS-TV's threeyear contract comes in 1983-84, with $18 million being paid. The new contract will double that, at least Anticipating that future "gold star" item in its schedule, CBS-TV and NBC-TV have already begun their quest. For the first season ever they will be competing with national and splitnational games in the regular season, CBS with 28 games, NBC with 26. They have their own stars ready, Gary Bender and Billy Packer for CBS, Dick Enberg and Al McGuire for NBC. And ESPN, more active than ever, has Jim Simpson and Dick Vitale.

Several colleges will generate more TV income than any of the NBA franchises, and all NCAA eyes are still peeping at the pay-forview days to come. They know that ABC-TV is paying $225 million for the 1984 Olympics in Los Angeles, but then they read that the 1988

College basketball has taken over Madi- Summer Games in Seoul, South Korea, may son Avenue, where the sports television demand $1 billion for U.S. broadcast rights. impresarios, including the commercial time Yes, $1 billion, with emphasis on pay-TV buyers, have at last agreed with the fans of channels. Louisiana State University, with sell-Albuquerque and Knoxville and Ann Arbor, out crowds for all home football and basketball games has a well planned pay-per-home program for the 1983-84 season, something begun at mid-football last fall. LSU will charge 11/2 times the ticket price for each home or $19.50 for football per game per home and $12 for basketball. They anticipate 10,000

Russ Potts, the former SMU athletic director, also with valuable contacts as a former When the Nielsen returns, in the business member of the NCAA Division I Basketball Committee, improves his position in the college basketball TV field. He engineered the highly successful Virginia-Georgetown special on Superstation 17 in prime time last December, a 9.2 national rating as it was made available to 92 percent of the TV households (TBS cable, plus 112 other stations). Potts and Super 17 hope to surpass that Nov. 26, arranging the first regular season meeting of Kentucky and Louisville since 1922. It will be played in Lexington, and the rights fee: $600,000.

Potts' Sports Production, of Dallas, has become heavily involved in conference programming. He obtained the Southeastern Conference for the first time, a three-year $22 million contract, several thousand percent above past payments. It brought such comment from SEC Commissioner Boyd McWhorter: "We are indeed fortunate that the calibre of SEC basketball has reached the level that can afford us such an attractive and beneficial agreement." The Southwest Conference also signed with Sports Productions for an all-time high in dollar bills. The Big Eight signed with Katz-Anheuser Busch, a new commercial alignment which brings a major advertiser into the management level for the first time. It could be the "thing of tomorrow,"

Dave Gavitt, as commissioner of the Big East, was able to conclude a series of separate contracts the same year, then sign with Lennie Klompus and Metrosports, of Rockville, Md., to administer the whole schedule. Gavitt, also chairman of the NCAA Basketball Committee, stated, "The plan will continue to make the Big East the most televised conference in the nation. For the first time in the fouryear history of the Big East, TV rights have been consolidated to provide maximum national, regional and local coverage." The new contract, over $25 million, is certainly enhanced by the Big East having four of the nation's top six markets.

National Saturday-Sunday games, some arranged just for the tube, thus marked "Made for TV," bring CBS and NBC into the picture together. CBS, for instance, has first rights on ACC games, NBC first in the Big East. They have equal game-selecting opportunity in the Big Ten. But Super Sunday, which ties in with football's Super Bowl, a spot which the late C.D.Chesley picked up years ago, will offer college basketball fans two games: CBS with Houston at Kentucky at 12 noon and NBC with UCLA at Louisville at mid-afternoon.

Maybe the U.S. Court's involvement with NCAA college football has something to do with this increasing demand for the round ball. It wasn't until late July that Supreme Court Justice Whizzer White properly granted the 1983 contract with CBS and ABC to exist. Maybe the delay soured the networks somewhat on college football, spurred new enamorment with college basketball. It did delay the indoor schedules, some into mid-fall. Basketball referees got their assignments later than ever.

How soon is pay-for-view? It has not come as soon as the experts predicted five years ago. Benton & Bowles, a New York research organization, conducted a recent poll of TV viewers around the country. Asked if they would be upset if sports events were taken off free television, 81 percent of the men and 67 percent of the women responded in the affirmative. Then asked if they would be willing to pay $3 or more for a particular sports event, B&B got the following response: 25 percent ves for the NCAA Division I basketball championship game, 32 percent for the Super Bowl, 20 percent for the World Series final game, 13 percent for the Kentucky Derby. That may not be tomorrow, but it's coming.

WE KNOW THE PERSONNEL AND STYLES BETTER THAN ANYONE IN AMERICA

MINNESOTA over *IOWA STATE by 8

Iowa State's big frontline is greatly enhanced by 7-1 freshman Brad Dudek. Yet improvement is negated here by Gophers' 7-2 senior super Ron Breuer while 6-4 soph Tommy Davis shoots it almost as good as Trent Tucker. Key to the visitors strength is that Zebedee Howell, the 6-7 bruiser, still resides on the bench. He's been had by 6-7 Juco transfer Roland Brooks, and that's nice up front depth on the road.

*WAKE FOREST over RICHMOND by 7

Alvis Rogers stretched opposite side of cartilage operation but has recovered. Quickness should handle Richmond who must replace top scorer, John Schweitz. Trio of clever frosh, John Newman, John Davis and Robert Tucker, all Spider contributors, unknown by linemakers. Live shortend!

*INDIANA STATE OVER CREIGHTON by 5

Apparently Sycamores can score with anyone in MVC though give up a bundle at the other end. Throw out Minnesota ... they're at a diffeent level from the West Texas State's, Drake's and, you should pardon the expression, Creighton's. But .. and this is important ... Bluejay shooters' Morris, Jones and Juco Greg Brandon will stick from the perimeter when unharried. Hosts can't guard!

*CALIFORNIA over STANFORD by 12

Chavez is smart and dexterous enough to lead mates around Dr. Davis' 40 minutes of heat. Pitts must worry about Revelli in low. Latter too tough, smart and strong. But Stanford far too slow.

College basketball, newest of the Great Romantics in network television and inside ballparks from Atlantic to the Pacific, returns to the Great Northwest for the 1984 royal coronation, and appropriately enough, today's Westminster Abbey of the game will be the Kingdome of Seattle.

Twice the NCAA basketball championships have been settled in the beautiful land that attracted Lewis and Clark, the last time in Portland (1965) where John Wooden's UCLA dynasty was in its second jewel, although Bill Bradley, now senator, stole the show. Then back in 1952 Seattle hosted the competition, but that was eons before the magnificent Kingdome and the present day hoopla. However, it certainly rejuvenates memories for a young, 135-pound reserve guard on Coach Phog Allen's Kansas team that captured the honors over Coach Frank McGuire's St. John's Redmen that year. The junior guard for the champion Jayhawks, wearing jersey No. 33, was Dean Smith.

STREET & SMITH predicts, and certainly not just for sentimental reasons, that Dean Smith will return to Seattle, this time as coach at North Carolina whose Tar Heels are accorded the very top level by the magazine's selection board.

Seattle is more than ready. Although the Kingdome, a huge domed edifice which innovates the entire West, has not been a familiar watering hole for college basketball in the years since its erection in 1976, it looks forward to this introduction with pomp and circumstance. Proudly, it is the only arena in the country which hosts four major league professional sports, and attendance records are as common as green grass and beautiful flowers. Football crowds total 65,000, for the NCAA basketball finals 30,000 with portable seats in a semi-circle around the hardwood court (of 240 rectangular pieces coded to correspond to markings on the asphalt floor). If trivia grabs you: there are also 87 water fountains in the arena.

THE KINGDOME, innovative and efficient as it changes colors overnight, brings excitement to the Emerald City, and undoubtedly CBS-TV will label its 1984 fast break theme as "On the Road to the Emerald City." During the calendar year, the Kingdome hosts the Goldenwest Rodeo, the Yamaha Supercross and the World Indoor Paper Airplane Championships. Officially, it's the King County Stadium, located at 201 South King Street, and every word directs to just the proper location for the coronation of college basketball's king in April. London's Westminster Abbey, of course, might have an insight. It's tree-lined inner square for Westminster School is called Dean's Court.

Gateway to Alaska and the Orient, Seattle offers a sportsoriented populace with feverish expectations of the best in the college game. The University of Washington, where Coach Marv Harshman will record his 600th victory this season, joining a select fraternity, has never played in the Kingdome. Fans from throughout the nation will come, also excited about the visit to Pioneer Square in "Old Seattle," the city waterfront eight blocks from the arena, its international district "more than a Chinatown," Mount Rainier to the East, the Cascades toward the ocean, beautiful Puget Sound and, naturally, the basketball.

NORTH CAROLINA, in defense of its 1982 honors, reached the East Regionals at Syracuse last March, and Coach Smith's Tar Heels had never lost in the East championship game. But there was Georgia, in its first NCAA tournament ever, and the Bulldogs were destined for the Final Four. During a summer basketball camp, Tar Heel Michael Jordan made this comment: "Not getting the Final Four was a big letdown. It makes you hungry for the next year." This is "the next year."

STREET & SMITH's selection board, taking a long and strong look at the four returning Tar Heel regulars and noting the addition of three prep All-Americans, wrote in the name of North Carolina for the No. 1 spot in this 1983-84 season. The board's ratings of the Top 20 may differ slightly from regional conference reports in this magazine—contributing writers are given complete freedom of expression—but the board added the pressures of Final Four potential to the Tar

And the STREET & SMITH projection as player of the year is junior guard Michael Jordan of North Carolina the hero of our gold medal effort in the Pan American Games, while making notation that Sam Bowle, named pre-season All-American the past two seasons when his incapacitation prevented his play, was not nominated this time although Bowle has been working hard all summer. The 7-1 senior, finally off crutches with a hairline fracture of his left leg, summed up the latest physical report: "I can lift almost as much with my left leg as I can with my right, so everything seems okay."

With Bowie, or even with the potential that yet another SEC season might go by minus the star, Kentucky gets the No. 2 spot behind North Carolina. Two years ago three of the top STREET & SMITH seven teams made the Final Four; 1983 was the season of the North Carolina States and Georgias.

COACHES around the nation came up with surprisingly matching opinions on the subject.

Don DeVoe of Tennessee, whose Vols were one of four SEC teams in the playoffs, whose university is building a 26,000-seat arena "to be bigger than Rupp Arena" "Kentucky and North Carolina, and from there it will be difficult to pick out anybody. The SEC should again be the most balanced league."

George Raveling of Iowa, who enters the Big Ten after 11 seasons at Washington State, whose Hawkeyes are predicted No. 7; "North Carolina and Kentucky, and Kentucky doesn't have to have Sam Bowie back. At the National Sports Festival the (Kenny) Walker kid was great. Oregon State should be best in the Pacific 10, maybe Michigan State in the Big Ten."

And, then, the guy who won it all last April, Jim Valvano of the N.C. State Wolfpack which excited the nation and CBS-TV with the final nine victories of a season which materialized more surprises than ever before, Valvano surmised: "North Carolina and Kentucky, and not necessarily in that order. After that, well, let me see. There are so many who will figure in the picture. Really, it's hard to talk about the top 10, the top 20 any more. It's the top 80. Some teams with the big guy, maybe Oklahoma and Memphis State, may not have the team strength of an lowa or Maryland. Of the Final Four (1983), Houston can be back with (Akeem) Olajuwon, even though they lost a player or two. Louisville seems to come back every year or every other year, Denny Crum has such a fine program. Georgia has everybody back, but they're in that tough SEC. It will be hard for us to return."

STREET & SMITH'S forecast includes teams with the big men, Akeem the Dream and Houston for No. 3, Patrick Ewing and Georgetown for No. 4, Memphis State follow immediately, with Iowa, Arkansas and LSU in that order. And No. 10 is Madison Square Garden's NIT champion, Fresno State of the PCAA. Coach Boyd Grant's Bulldogs made it a 1983 sweep for the Red. All four teams at Albuquerque flashed red jackets, red caps and red everythings, and so did Fresno State in

New York.

Note that Indiana is not to be found in the Top 20. When's the last time that happened?

In the trend of college basketball power, conferences prevent any hiatus. Last independent to make the Final Four came in 1979 (DePaul), last to win it all 1977 (Marquette). Notre Dame was in last year's S&S top 20, this season not a single independent.

Of course, there are fewer schools trying it on their own. Division I conferences have sprouted up to qualify for the NCAA tournament, yet another now official, the 29th (Metro Atlantic Athletic Conference: Army, Fairfield, Fordham, Iona, Manhattan, St. Peter's). A year the NCAA committee added four "opening round" games between leagues with the "nonbest" tournament records, thus a 52-team field. It will be 53 this season. Said committee chairman Dave Gavitt: "It was agreed we should continue to develop additional information concerning 64-team bracket." The NCAA tournament will be 64 teams by 1985, or 1986 at the latest, for better or worse.

COLLEGE BASKETBALL progresses as a trendy operation, maybe offering a quandary for predictions. Through the 60s and into the 70s it ws purely and simply the Wooden Era. Coach John Wooden's UCLA Bruins, with the Alcindors and Waltons, so dominated, winning eight national titles in 10 years, that the only element of the NCAA formula which changed was the victim. UCLA never beat the same team twice in the final game.

But then, almost simultaneously, and certainly not planned, Wooden's retirement and the increase of the NCAA tournament field, first to 32 in 1975, now 53, brought about a proliferation of Final Four occupants. In the four post-Wooden years there were 16 different teams in the final show which was enlarging its nation-wide popularity and big TV network acceptance. People were beginning to watch, and not just when their team was playing. National honors went to Indiana, Marquette, Kentucky and Michigan State; the Big Ten was dominant; independents (like Marquette, DePaul, Nevada-Las Vegas, Notre Dame) were strong.

That trend, in turn, has now been overshadowed by a return of strong basketball programs at certain campuses. No monopoly the likes of Westwood, mind you, but Denny Crum has had Louisville in three of the last four finals, Guy Lewis with Houston the last two, Dean Smith with North Carolina two of three. Winners have been Louisville, Indiana, North

N.C. State's Terry Gannon celebrates

Carolina and N.C. State. The three aforementioned programs have thus occupied seven of the 16 spots in four season. They rank high again in STREET & SMITH'S predictions.

For the second time in NCAA tournament history, or since 1939, one state (North Carolina) has claimed back-to-back national honors with two different colleges. Ohio State in 1960 and Cincinnati in 1961, from different conferences, accomplished that for the state of Ohio, this time it was done by North Carolina 1982 and North Carolina State 1983, from the same conference. In the past four years the ACC has sent four teams to the Final Four, the Big Ten and Metro three each.

For whatever reason, based on the public's recognition of the Final Four as the supreme yardstick, placing in that top quartet has superceded the final rankings in the national polls as a status symbol.

THE RULES underwent potpourri experimentation last season, which answered only one question: Should it be done like that again? Conferences tried different shot clocks, an assortment of 3-point field goal measurements. It just meant that some players got three points for a fairly easy jump shot, some got to take more shots because the clock prevented their coaches from the stall. When it was over, Dr. Edward Steitz, editor of the rules committee and long-time spokesman, reviewed the situation: "There is most definitely a move for the shot clock, and the majority of those who advocate it seem to favor 45 seconds. There is also a move toward the three-point field goal, yet the majority (of coaches) is against it."

But nobody wanted a repeat helter-skelter trial-and-error session, and the authority to experiment was properly taken from the conferences and placed on the rules committee. Conferences will not be allowed to experiment both rules, most will test the 45-second clock. Only the Southern Conference, which originated it, wants to try the three-point goal. By 1984-85 the college game will have a 45-second shot clock, possibly leading to the international rules (30 seconds) to be seen in the 1984 LA Olympics.

There will be personal OLYMPIC GOALS intermingled with the current college season. It's the quadrennium. At Montreal 1976 Coach Dean Smith offset criticism with his team-oriented player selections and won the gold. Coach Dave Gavitt planned along the same lines in 1980, but President Jimmy Carter had other hallucinations and kept the amateur stars at home. With Bobby Knight (Indiana) and George Raveling (Iowa) directing the 1984 USA men's basketball forces, it will be team play emphasized again.

Again, it will take cooperation from the National Basketball Association to put the best possible USA team on the world court. College seniors could be drafted, they could agree to agree, but they will go to NBA camp late. It will take this. Says Raveling: "I think the rest of the world has caught up to us, a rude reality we're going to have to face."

The STREET & SMITH'S preseason All-Americans will figure strongly on the 1984 Olympians, all except Olajuwon who is not an American citizen. Triumph in the Pan-American Games in August (Caracus) was important, not only in the achievement of the front timbers (Sam Perkins, Greg Stokes, Wayman Tisdale), who hopefully will be supplemented by Sam Bowie and Patrick Ewing, but in the development of guards. Raveling again on the personnel subject: "Size will be a factor. Yugoslavia started two 6-4 guards, the Russians have 6-4, 6-3. The guards internationally tend to be bigger now, and they've got quickness so that presents some matchup problems." He sees taller guards like Michael Jordan, Chris Mullin, Michael Britt.

There are also some younger athletes who get their first opportunity, the best from the National Sports Festival, including those from the USA team in the second FIBA World Junior Championships in Spain last August. They include the National Sports Festival's MVP, 6-8 Kenny Walker (Kentucky), 6-2 Dwayne Washington (Syracuse), 6-8 Larry Krystowiak (Montana), 6-6 Reggie Miller, 6-9 Kenny Boagni (Kansas) and 6-9 Dave Popson (North Carolina). They are still young. Coach Dean Smith, looking at the potential through the Pan-American people, summarized: "I think this team (Pan-American) will be ready to play, as deep a team from top to bottom as we've ever had internationally." Its success proved him on the right beam.

SOME THINGS happen quickly. Ralph Sampson of Virginia, national player of the year thrice, led the Cavaliers to three top 10 ratings and one Final Four spot before he proudly walked down the graduating line in May, and became instant millionaire. He also did a lot for little Chaminade University, 3140 Waialae Avenue, Honolulu, enrollment 900. On a holiday trip to Hawaii, Virginia was beaten by Chaminade, instant success for the Silverswords. They have a Christmas tournament this season with Houston, Louisville and Fresno State. When Houston and Louisville meet at 4 p.m. (EST) Christmas Day, it will be on NBC-TV.

It was something Jim Valvano has been saying ever since the 54-52 stuff shot that determined the Albuquerque champions. "I cut the nets down, that's my whole dream," he says, expressing the sentiments of all coaches.

Valvano thinks it can happen again, N.C. State and Georgia. From his crystal ball, which is never turned off, Valvano foresees: "UCLA, John Wooden, you must remember it was done when UCLA dominated its conference and there weren't really that many outstanding teams in the country. It, UCLA's reign, will never be equalled, but for a national champion with 8-9-10 losses on its record, yes. The way basketball is today, you're going to see teams come through the underdog role as we did. There will be teams who have an outstanding player injured early, then return, like we did. But you must remember. That championship team in Albuquerque was not the one which lost 10 games."

GOLD MEDAL SILVER MEDALUSSR BRONZE MEDAL YUGOSLAVIA

by Jim Bukata

He is generally regarded as the best young basketball player in the world. Last year he outplayed the likes of Ralph Sampson and Mel Turpin during his team's tour of the United States. If an American coach could recruit him, the school would be odds-on favorites to win several NCAA titles.

His name is Arvidas Sabonis. He's only 19 years old but he's the key to the Soviet Union's chances of pulling off what would be a major upset by winning the gold medal in the 1984 Olympic Games in Los Angeles.

The 7-0 Sabonis helped lead the Soviet Union to the World Championships last year in Colombia and was a dominating force when the Russians chopped up the top collegiate teams last fall.

'Sabonis plays the game unlike any big person with the exception of your great ones like Wilt Chamberlain, Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, Bill Walton and Moses Malone," said Alexandre Gomelsky, coach of the Soviets. "In some ways he does some things better than them. He can take the ball outside and shoot consistently from 15 feet and he knows how to put the ball on the floor. He doesn't have the great strength yet, but that will come as he matures."

The home court and crowd plus the quality of talent makes the U.S. the favorite to win the gold medal, but a similar situation didn't help the Soviets in Moscow in 1980 when they finished third. As a result, the powerful Russian team must first qualify next May in France.

Three teams, the USA as the host country, and Yugoslavia and Italy and the gold and silver medalists from 1980, are already qualified. Nine more teams will qualify through elimination tournaments—three from Europe, three from the Americas and one each from Africa, Asia and Oceania.

Yugoslavia finished a disappointing fourth in the 1983 European championship but a number of key players were missing due to injuries. The team has a number of quality players including 6-6 Drazen Dalipagic, who was once offered a tryout by the Boston Celtics; and a pair of outstanding guards, Mirza Delibasic and Dragan Kicanovic.

There's a new look in the lineup as 6-10 Ratko Radovanovic has replaced long time star center Kresimir Cosic. Up

SPORTS SERVICE

AMERICA'S BEST

- CONSERVATIVE
- SELECTIONS
- RATINGS OF GAMES
- NO HIDDEN CHARGES
- NO MULTIPLE SERVICES
- NO OPINIONS UNTIL JANUARY 1, 1984
- STRICT CONFIDENCE

DO NOT BE DISCOURAGED

CONSERVATIVE —

Conservative means strong selections — we are not going to select a game because it's on T.V. or because it's a "big" game. Our main objective is having winning weeks for our clients!

SELECTIONS —

The selections will consist of 1 to 3 college plays per night, plus 1 to 3 pro plays per night. This may vary a game either way.

RATINGS OF GAMES —

We will have 3 ratings of our selections. A strong play will be a 5 star—an exceptional strong play will be a 10 star.

NO HIDDEN CHARGES —

There will not be special games that our clients will have to pay extra for. Seasons fee will include all our selections. All our games will be either 5 star or 10 star.

NO MULTIPLE SERVICES —

We are not having 2 or 3 different services (newsletter, phone, flyers, etc.) with different selections. Then the following week just advertise the service that did the best, and forget the other services, like so many dishonest services do.

• ONLY SELECTED OPINIONS UNTIL JAN. 1, 1984

We will not select many games until January 1, 1984. For 2 reasons. (1) We want to chart these teams (college & pro) until January 1, 1984 and get a good feeling as to how strong each team actually is. (2) The opening of basketball season is much like the exhibition games in the NFL (which we do not pick). There will be different coaches, new players, different systems for players to learn, ect.

STRICT CONFIDENCE —

All our clients names, phone numbers, and addresses will be held in strict confidence. They will not be released to other services. Therefore, you will not get bombarded with literature, flyers, post cards, phone calls, etc. from other services.

DO NOT BE DISCOURAGED —

If you have had a service in the past that promised you 90% wins, 95% wins, game of the week, game of the month, game of the year, and at the end of each year you are a loser and you are ready to give it up, you owe it to yourself to try us. We can bring you back.

front there's plenty of talent with the likes of Zoran Slavnic and Zeljko Jerkov, both of whom have played in Italy, and 18-year-old Boban Petrovic, a coming international star.

Over the past couple of years, the Italians have become the surpise team, capping off a rise to power by winning the 1983 European title:

Coach Sandro Gamba has a team which has great scoring power, depth and lots of experience as the Italian league is the best in Europe.

In Luigi Mazorati, the Italians still have one of the best point guards in amateur basketball. He's now spelled by a couple of other capable ballhandlers, Roberto Brunamonti and Charley Caglieris. Antonello Riva provides the scoring power from the wing while up front there's the veteran Dino Meneghin, along with Renzo Vecchiatto and Renato Villalta. Additional scoring punch is provided by Romeo Sacchetti.

Two of the three berths from Europe should go to the Soviets and Spain with Israel, France, Germany, the Netherlands and Greece battling for the remaining slot.

The Soviets have plenty of muscle and size up front to go with Sabonis including vets 7-4 Vladimir Tkachenko and 7-1 Alexandre Belostennyi, but to have a real shot, they are going to need a strong Olympics out of the once-heralded forward Anatoly Myshkin, who must hit from outside.

While veteran guard Stanislav Eremine has been the floor leader for almost a decade, he is in danger of losing his job to Sergei lovaycha. Valdis Valters and Valdemaras Khomitichius will share the other starting job.

In frontcourt players, Fernando Martin, Candido Sibilio and Juan Antonio San Epifanio, along with superstar guard Juan Antonio Corbalan, Spanish coach Antonio Diaz has a quartet of players who can hold their own with any group on an international level. The Spaniards have the ability to be a spoiler in Los Angeles as evidenced by the fact they upset the U.S. team in the World Championships last year.

While France hosts the qualifiers, the best of the rest might wind up being Germany led by its two American-trained big men, 7-2 Uwe Blab of Indiana and 6-8 Detlef Schrempf of Washington. They will join veteran players, Frank Hudson, who also played in the U.S., and Klaus Zander to form the nucleus of the German team.

Israel possesses one of the best coaching minds in Ralph Klein, but he'll be hard pressed to win a berth as the team must rely on veterans Mickey Berkowitz and Lou Silver (ex of Harvard), along with Jamci Dron. The Israelis lack the inside power game.

France will rely on the likes of Philip Szanyel, Eric Beugnst and Rich Dacoury in its effort to qualify while the Netherlands will rely on its two American-bred players Al Faeber and Mitch Platt. Greece is led by ex-Seton Hall ace Nick Gallis.

In the Americas, the battle for the three spots figures to be among Brazil, Canada, Puerto Rico, Panama, Cuba and Argentina with the Brazilians almost a lock to gain one of the spots. The trials will be in Brazil in late April.

Brazil has depth problems but its starting five of Oscar Schmidt and Marcel DeSouza at the forwards, Marco Leite at center and Nilo Guimearaes and Adilson Nacimiento is quite formidable. When the Brazilians' game is on, they are one of the most entertaining teams in the world to watch.

At one time Canada's Jack Donohue coached Kareem Abdul-Jabbar (as a schoolboy named Lew Alcindor in New York City). Now Donohue is the real veteran mentor of the Caradian team which has been hurt by timing. Two of his best players, Leo Rautins and Stewart Granger were taken high in the NBA draft (Rautins in the first round by Philadelphia and Granger in the second round). One more year and Donahue would have had both on his squad. Now he must make the best of it with Bill Wennington (St. John's), Jay Trian and Steve Atkin and Greg Wiltjer as his nucleus.

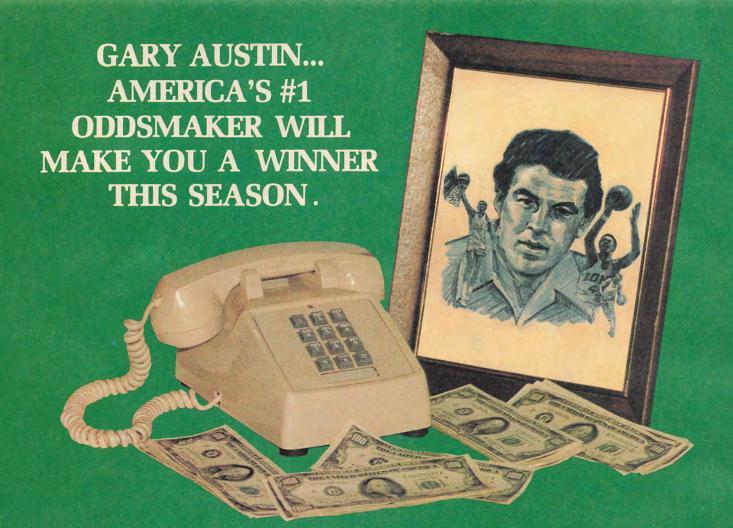

Puerto Rico still has its veteran players in Ray Dalmau and Nestor Cora and a sensational new standout in Eduardo Chavez. The Cubans will rely on Felix Morales, Miguel Calderon and Alejandro Ortiz while Argentina has a super player in Adolfo Perazzo, plus Carlos Fafaelli and Eduardo Cadillac.

In Africa, Senegal, Nigeria, Egypt and the Ivory Coast are the leading contenders for the berth while in Asia, China looks like a sure thing to qualify over Japan and Korea. Kuang Lubin impressed the NBA players last year during a trip to China as did Feng Wei and Li Qiuping.

In Oceania, it's only Australia and New Zealand with Australia, under almost any circumstance a lock to qualify. However, the Australians have agreed to play the qualifier in New Zealand and that could spell trouble. The Aussies should be able to get by with forward Brad Dalton and guard Phil Smythe.

Street & Smith's fearless forecasters call the races in every major conference in the country.

DCC-10 by Dwight Chapin SAN FRANCISCO EXAMINER

The big up-front news in the Pac-10 this season is that George Raveling, the conference's most consistently interesting coach for more than a decade, finally has forsaken Pullman, Wash., for big bucks in the Big Ten, at Iowa, and that two excellent, veteran coaches—Lute Olson and Don Monson—have moved in at Arizona and Oregon, respectively.

The even-more-significant news is that Pac-10 basketball continues to sink into the Far West sunset. The league that featured all those national champions at UCLA in the '60s and '70s and brilliant teams at USC and Oregon State and elsewhere, is clearly hurting now, because it's been unable of late to recruit bluechip players, particularly from any other region of the country.

John Wooden, you'll recall, built his winners around imports like Walt Hazzard, Fred Slaughter, Kenny Washington, Lew Alcindor, Lucius Allen, Mike Warren, Henry Bibby, Tommy Curtis, Larry Farmer, Richard Washington, Pete Trgovich and Andre McCarter.

This year's Bruin team has only one player from out of the Los Angeles basin. Even worse, the entire Pac-10 got just one of the first 30 players on last season's Street & Smith's High School All-America team, just two of the 90 All-Metro prep selections. The coaching, no matter how good, may not make up for the near-critical recruiting slump.

OREGON STATE

The Beavers had to scramble more than anyone expected in 1982-83 because of illness and injury, but they still got their fourth straight 20-win season and reached the quarterfinals of the NIT.

They could do much better this season if everyone stays healthy. Ralph Miller will be working with two All-Pac-10 players, and two others who made the Pac-10 All-Rookie team. Charlie Sitton, 6-8 senior forward-center (18.8 ppg, 5.2 rpg), probably is the best all-round player in the conference, and 6-8½ junior A.C. Green (14 ppg, 7.6) is a fine complement at the other forward. Impressive 6-10 sophomore Steve Woodside (8.9 ppg, 3.8 rpg) will be in the middle, with 6-4 sophomore Darryl Flowers (4.8 ppg, 99 assists) at one guard.

Miller must replace guard William Brew and forward Danny Evans off a Beaver team that was 20-11 overall, 12-6 in the Pac-10, but has 6-3 senior Alan Tait, who progressed well at guard toward the end of last season, and four good-looking freshmen, including 6-5 guard Kevin Spivey (19.5 ppg, 15.1 rpg at Rayen of Youngstown, Ohio); 6-4 guard Parrish Johnson; 6-9 center Pat Giusti (21 ppg, 10.5 rpg at Fremont of Sunnyvale, Ca.) and 6-7 forward Rick Berry (22.6 ppg, 12 rpg at Live Oak of Morgan Hill, Ca.). Berry is the son of San Jose State coach Bill Berry.

If Miller can find the right backcourt combination, this should be an excellent team.

UCLA

The numbers were wonderful, as usual: a 23-6 record overall, 15-3 in the Pac-10. And the Bruins were back where they usually are at the end of the season: atop the conference and in the NCAA playoffs. But they lasted just one game there (a loss to Utah) and the post season press was not kind.

Larry Farmer, it was said, had a selfish, egotistical, highly-immature team on his hands—a team without unity, heart or defense. Now, mainstay guards Rod Foster and Michael Holton, and productive if perhaps disruptive forward Darren Daye are gone and Farmer will have to do by far his best coaching job in three seasons in Westwood if the Bruins are to win another league championship.

He'll regroup around seniors Kenny Fields, an offensive machine at forward (18 ppg, 6.6 rpg), and Ralph Jackson, the four-year floor leader, at guard (8.1 ppg, 148 assists) and enigmatic, 7-foot junior Stuart Gray at center (7.7 ppg, 6.9 rpg). Two junior reserves—6-8 Gary Maloncon and 6-5 Niguel Miguel—will battle for Daye's forward spot, with touted, 6-1 freshman redshirt Montel Hatcher at guard, and 6-10 junior Brad Wright (3.4 ppg, 3.1 rpg) again sharing time with Gray.

Three freshmen also could wangle some playing time. They're 6-7 forward Reggie Miller (29.5 ppg, 10 rpg, CIF 3A Player of the Year at Riverside Poly High); and 6-3 guards Corey Gaines and Dave Immel.

CALIFORNIA

If any team is to challenge Oregon State and UCLA this season (and I think that's doubtful), it should be the Golden Bears of Dick Kuchen. They lost seven games last season by two points or less, and figure to win a lot more of those close ones in '83-84, with the added maturity of 6-9 sophomore forward Dave Butler (the Pac-10's Rookie of the Year); 6-11 senior center Michael Pitts and 6-4 senior swingman Butch Hays, plus the addition of redshirt guard Willie Preston, a 6-3 JC All-America two seasons ago who could be the conference's best newcomer.

Pitts (14.4 ppg, 6.1 rpg) and Butler (7.8 ppg, 6 rpg) should work up front with 6-6 senior Frank Avalos (6.5 ppg, 3.4 rpg) or perhaps 6-8 freshman Jim Beatie (13.3 ppg, 7.9 rpg in his last prep season), with Preston (20.6 ppg at Contra Costa JC in 1981-82) joining Hays (10.5 ppg, 3 rpg, 125 assists) in the backcourt, where 6-4 junior Jeff Thilgen again is a valuable reserve.

Kuchen also seems to have some depth, too, in 6-6 sophomore forward Richard Chang, hurt early last season; 6-8 transfer Gordon Anderson; 6-5 freshman Jeff Huling (17 ppg, 10 rpg); 6-1 freshman Kevin Johnson (the state's leading prep scorer with 32.8 ppg) and 6-2 freshman Ernest Sears.

The Bears were 14-14 overall last season, 7-11 in the Pac-10. Even without veterans Michael Chavez and Darrell Haley, they figure to be much better this time.

HISC

This is another of the Pac-10's very young teams (9 freshmen or sophomores and just one senior) with a number of questions to be answered. The main ones are who's going to take over for four-year starting point guard Jacque Hill and forward James McDonald, who not only were offensive threats but shared the Trojans' Best Defensive Player Award last season, too. And coach Stan Morrison isn't too sure about his rebounding strength, either.

But there are three starters back—All-Pac-10 candidate Wayne Carlander, a 6-8 junior forward who led the team in scoring (13.1 ppg), rebounding (7.3 per game, third best in the league), field goal percentage (56.1) and free throw accuracy (75.5); and 6-6 senior forward Cedric Bailey (11.1 ppg, 3.3 rpg) and 6-5 junior Ron Holmes (9.3 ppg, 3.4 rpg), who shared starting time.

Also returning is 6-10 junior Clayton Olivier, sort of the starting center by default after Ken Johnson and Gerry Wright quit the team during the season. He does have talent.

Likely to replace Hill is 6-2 junior reserve Glenn Smith. Morrison's top recruits for a team that was 17-11 overall, 11-7 and fifth in the Pac-10, are 6-6 forward Derrick Dowell (26.8 ppg, 13 rpg) at Bosse High of Evansville, Ind.; 6-9 forward-center Charlie Simpson, Colorateam last season but shot horribly (43.8%), and their best shooter, 6-7 guard Brad Watson (15.1 ppg) has departed.

They'll look for help from two guards—6-3½ freshman Clay Damon (22 ppg, 16 rpg) and 6-3 redshirt Shag Williams, a muscular type.

There are a lot of questions here, but this is an intriguing team, which shouldn't be a pushover in Harshman's 38th season as coach.

STANFORD

The Cards' 14-14 record was deceiving. They played "soft" in the Pac-10, with just 6 wins in 18 starts, and had to beat Oregon State in their finale to avert coach Tom Davis' first losing season in 12 years at the collegiate level.

But there were injury problems much of the way, the most serious a bad knee that forced 6-8 center John Revelli to miss about half of his junior season. He's apparently OK now, and will join 6-8 senior forward Hans Wichary (8.9 ppg, 5.2 rpg); 6-1 all-Pac-10 senior guard Keith Jones (19.8 ppg) and 6-0 sophomore guard Keith Ramee (133 assists) in lineup.

After that, the situation is a little unclear. Junior forward Johnny Rogers (10.4 ppg, 4 rpg, 58.8% field goal percentage) may or may not return to school. If he doesn't, the fifth starter likely will be 6-8 freshman Grady Johnson (15 ppg, 10 rpg at Booker T. Washington of Atlanta), or 6-5 soph sub Earl Koberlein.

There are two other freshmen of promise—6-1 guard Novian Whitsitt (28 ppg at San Pedro High School) and 6-6 Doug Wall (20.2 ppg, 11.2 rpg at Nevada Union of Grass Valley, Ca.) And 6-1 junior swingman Steve Brown (9.8 ppg) and 6-3 sophomore forward Andy Fischer are small but valuable reserves.

The most important factor, however, is the return of Revelli, who averaged 19.1 ppg and 7.8 rpg in 15 games before he was hurt.

OREGON

Welcome back to "The Pit," Eugene's McArthur Court, which used to be one of the major hellholes of basketball when Dick Harter was around. The chaos should return under new coach Don Monson, who built one of the most successful home teams in country (and one of the best, period) at Idaho.

The Ducks' record under Jim Haney last season was only 9-18 overall and 5-13 in the Pac-10 and it may take Monson awhile to turn that around. But he does have the conference's best pure center, 7-foot junior Blair Rasmussen (14.8 ppg, 5.4 rpg) to start with.

Also back are both starting forwards, 6-6 senior David Brantley (12 ppg, 4.2 rpg) and 6-8 junior Jerry Adams, and 6-3 "off" guard Gary Gatewood (8.7 ppg). Monson got a late start recruiting, but came up with needed speed in a pair of transfers, 6-7 forward Greg Trapp (22.6 ppg, 9.6 rpg at College of the Canyons) and 6-2 guard Chris Harper, who's run a 4.74 40 in track.

Other guards who could make major contributions are 6-6 freshman Reggie Wallace (21.1 ppg, 9.2 rpg at Sweetwater of National City, Ca.) and 6-1 soph Donald Dutton, who started 14 games at the point.

Monson will use his pattern offense and his matchup zone defense, and hope he can get enough scoring and rebounding to take the load off the talented Rasmussen.

WASHINGTON STATE

Oh, my, did the Cougars lose a lot: their leading scorers, Guy Williams and Steve Harriel; their heart and soul, Craig Ehlo; a very valuable forward, Aaron Haskins. Not to mention coach George Raveling, who moved on to lowa after guiding his team to a 23-7 finish, and second place in the Pac-10 at 14-4.

It was Raveling who restored the Cougars to respectability and then some in his 11 seasons in Pullman. Former Raveling aide Len Stevens probably will have a hard time coming even close in his first year as head coach.

He has some talent, but he also has nine players who will be freshmen or sophomores. The best returnee likely is 6-8 sophomore Ricky Brown (6.6 ppg, 3.8 rpg), a young bull who held Ralph Sampson to two points in the second half of WSU's meeting with Virginia in the NCAA tournament.

Also back are 6-8 senior forward Mike Wurm; 6-5 junior forward Bryan Pollard; 6-3 junior guard Chris Winkler (8.6 ppg) and 5-11 sophomore guard Donald Rubin. Otis Jennings, a 6-9 sophomore forward, could blossom, and Stevens has added three freshmen—7 foot center Ken Mathis (15 ppg, 12 rpg); 6-7 forward Joe Wallace (21 ppg, 13 rpg) and 6-3 guard Rigo Moore (18 ppg).

Good, young talent, it seems, but probably too green yet to do much for a rookie coach filling some very large sneakers.

ARIZONA STATE

Bob Weinhauer had a good thing going in his second season in Tempe (19-14 record; 12-7 and tied for third in the Pac-10). Then gifted junior guard Byron Scott had to go and turn professional, taking his 21.6 scoring average, 5.4 rpg and 140 assists with him. Since skilled senior forward Paul Williams (22.8 ppg, 7.1 rpg) is gone, too, that leaves Weinhauer, in effect, with a Kiddie Korps.

As many as three freshmen may start. They include 6-3 guard Steve Beck (28.9 ppg, 12.7 rpg); 6-3 guard Greg Attaway (16.5 ppg), 6-2 guard Bobby Thompson; 6-8 forward Tee Williamson (14 ppg, 15 rpg); 6-6 forward Eric Holloway and 6-11 center Mike Burns.

Weinhauer will worry most, initially, about the center position, where skinny freshman Burns will battle skinny, 6-10 junior Phil McKinney (just 21.4 ppg and 3.8 rpg).

The Sun Devils appear best set at forwards, where 6-9 junior Jim Deines and 6-6 junior Billy Jordan have some experience if not much in the way of statistics. But there's nobody returning who averaged more than 5 points or 4.3 rebounds a game, and no matter what combination he uses, it's difficult to see how Weinhauer can stop a major slide.

ARIZONA

No matter what he does in his first season in Tucson, Lute Olson might be a candidate for coach of the year. That's because the Wildcats were only 4-24 (worst record in school history) in 1982-83 under one-year coach Ben Lindsey, and lost more conference games (17) than any Pac-10 team ever. So it's definitely not much of an act to follow for Olson, whose last lowa team was 21-10.

The Wildcats not only were embarrassingly weak last season, they lose four starters—including the league's top rebounder, Frank Smith, and Puntus Wilson and Morgan Taylor, both of whom flunked out.

Brock Brunkhorst, a 6-2 junior guard, figures to hold his starting spot. He averaged 7.8 ppg and 5 assists. And 6-5 soph David Haskin (4.5 ppg, 2.5 rpg) may be at one forward.

The other spots seem likely to go to newcomers, like 6-7 transfer Pete Williams, a JC All-America at Mt. San Antonio College, and Eddie Smith, and 6-9 freshman Van Beard. Another freshman, 6-1 Michael Tait, could challenge Brunkhorst at point guard.

Olson's only promises: "We'll play hard, play well together and play with intelligence." Whatever, he'll get more time than Lindsey to build a program.

OCCIO by Jim McCormack

There's an ageless, and reasonably amusing, story about a sports writer who traditionally handicapped the Big Ten by saying, "If lowa, Michigan, Michigan State, Purdue or Ohio State don't win the conference, then Northwestern, Wisconsin, Indiana, Minnesota or Illinois will."

Then, as the ensuing season wound down, the writer would inform his readers, "As predicted here..."

Perhaps a similar approach is required in handicapping the 1983-84 Pacific Coast Athletic Association basketball race.

If Fresno State, Nevada-Las Vegas, or Cal Fullerton don't win PCAA then Utah State...

Predicted order of finish:

- 1. Fresno State;
- 2. Nevada-Las Vegas;
- 3. Cal State-Fullerton;
- 4. Cal-Irvine; 5. Utah State;
- 6. New Mexico State; 7. Pacific;
- 8. Long Beach State;
- 9, San Jose State;
- 10. Cal-Santa Barbara

It may not be that complicated, but each of the aforementioned teams has its own set of impressive credentials.

Fresno State, for example, has three starters returning from a team that won 12 of its final 13 games and finished the season running through the NIT for title.

Or Cal State Fullerton. The Titans lost only one quality player, Ricky Mixon, from a club which was chosen, here, to win the conference a year ago.

Or Nevada- Las Vegas. The Rebels were expected to have a tough time adjusting to the tempo-oriented PCAA in 1982-83, but the Rebels, ranked No. 1 in the nation at one point, zipped through the conference and into the NCAA playoffs, where they lost to eventual NCAA champion N.C. State by a point.

UC Irvine. The Anteaters, conference title contenders two of three years, return their top eight players from a season ago.

Jim McCormack has been the sports editor of the Long Beach Independent Press-Telegram since 1980, and has reported on the PCAA since its inception in 1969.

Utah State was the surprise of the conference last year, and the Aggies figure to be even stronger, based on a tremendous recruiting year this time around.

Put on the spot, however, the team which must be placed at the top is Fresno State.

FRESNO STATE

The Bulldogs start with a pair of forwards, Bernard Thompson and Ron Anderson, who are as good, collectively, as any two forwards on the West Coast.

Anderson averaged 16.3 points and 5.8 rebounds as a junior while Thompson finished at 16.2 and 5.9. Anderson's 31 points in a regular season game against UC Irvine marked the first time in his six-year reign at Fresno that a Boyd Grant-coached athlete had scored more than 30 points in a game.

Anderson was at his best in the NIT, averaging 18.6 points and 7.2 rebounds on his way to being chosen the tournament's most valuable player. He was joined on the all-tournament team by Thompson and Bulldog guard Tyrone Bradley. Bradley graduated, as did center Bari Desimore, but Bulldog followers don't seem overly concerned.

That's partially because Fresno fans have reached the point where they take basketball success for granted.

There was "tension" last year when the Bulldogs, 27-3 a season earlier, lost nine of their first 22 games. But all was forgiven dur-their first 22 games. But all was forgiven during the 12-1 streak.

More than 2,000 fans followed the team to

More than 2,000 lans followed the team to Madison Square Garden and 25,000 turned out for a parade from the airport to the university when the team returned. An additional 10,000 were on hand for a victory rally.

There are other reasons for the Bulldog followers' optimisim.

One is redshirt center Scott Barnes, a 6-8 transfer from Eastern Montana. Reports are that the 215-pound junior is exceptional.

The other is 6-0 guard Ron Strain, a transfer from Casper, Wyo., JC where he averaged 11.5 points and six assists a game for a "very disciplined" team.

In years past, that would mean Strain would automatically fit in with Grant's concepts.

But not any more.

One of the key elements of last season's turnaround was Grant's decision to turn the team loose. Unfettered, the Bulldogs pushed their scoring average from 60 to 74 points.

Shooting guard Mitch Arnold was one of those who benefitted most from Grant's offensive modifications. Shooting 29 percent through the season's first 15 games, Arnold, who returns this year, finished at 45 percent while averaging 7.8 points.

The Bulldogs also received improved lateseason play from 6-11 forward Dave Mosebar who's back.

The Bulldogs also feel they've enhanced their strength with the addition of freshman recruits Derrick Riley, a 6-7 forward from East High in Bakersfield, and Jim Hart, a 6-4 guard from Harbor High in Santa Cruz. Hart (31.8) was the No. 2 prep scorer in California.

NEVADA-LAS VEGAS

Jerry Tarkanian can always find the pessimistic side of a situation. "I can't imagine anyone lost more than we did," Tarkanian says of his current collection of Rebels. "We lost our entire frontline and probably 70 percent of our scoring and 80 percent of our rebounding."

The Rebels did lose a lot—center Sidney Green (a first-round NBA draft choice), and forwards Larry Anderson and Eldridge Hudson. And Hudson's situation is at least scary. A starter as a freshman, Hudson has undergone Mitch Kupchak-type knee surgery and will miss at least one year.

Still, Tarkanian won't muster much sympathy from PCAA coaches.

The Rebels return their top four guards from a team which lost only three times (at Cal State Fullerton, at West Virginia and to N.C. State in the playoffs) in 31 games. That club was ranked No.1 in the nation for two weeks.

The returning guards are 6-1 Danny Tarkanian, the coach's son and a three-year starter, 6-3 Jeff Collins, 6-2 Eric Booker, the club's sixth man, and 6-2 sophomore Gary Graham, a former high school All-America from Baltimore.

That group has been strengthened by the signing of 6-2 Fred Banks, from Las Vegas's Valley High. He's a two-time state player of the year.

The frontline is another matter for Tarkanian, who takes his club into the new 18,000seat Thomas and Mack Arena this year.

Only 6-9 Paul Brozovich, a Kurt Rambis type, has much experience with the Rebels.

That may not be a problem, however, if 6-9 John Flowers, a redshirt transfer from Indiana, and junior college transfers Frank James (6-6) and Ed Catchings (6-7) can step in and have an immediate impact.

Flowers will miss the Rebels' first four games before becoming eligible. James, from San Jacinto, Tex., earned national player of the year honors after leading his team to the national JC title.

Catchings was an all-state selection for El Camino, Calif., JC.

CAL-STATE-FULLERTON

Any conversation regarding the Titans, certainly a quality team, must begin with guard Leon Wood.

Simply stated, he's the best player in the nation at his position.

What's his position?

Shooting-playmaking guard.

That's right. Coach George McQuarn asks Wood to run the Titan offense and to score.

Wood does both well. A 6-4 senior, Wood averaged 18.1 points and set a collegiate record with 319 assists as a junior.

It's generally accepted knowledge Wood would have been the first guard taken in the NBA draft, had he turned pro early. And he was chosen to the United States Pan American Games team even though he couldn't try out. Bothered by a stress fracture, Wood's foot was in a cast during the Pan Am tryouts.

Wood certainly isn't Fullerton's only quality player. The Titans, 21-8 and second in the PCAA a year ago, return seven of their top eight players.

The lone loss is significant . . . the Titans won 39 games with Ricky Mixon starting opposite Wood, and Mixon's 15 points a game will be missed.

Among the returnees are 6-11 senior center Ozell Jones (10.8 ppg, 7.1 rpg) and 6-6 junior forwards Tony Neal (8.7, 10) and Gary Davis (11.2, 2.8)

Neal is certain to be one of the forwards. The early-season plan is to move Davis to guard, and if that works, 6-5 Johnny Wilkes and junior college transfer Rob Otis will vie for the small forward assignment. Otis, 6-6, shot 65.5 percent while averaging 17.9 points and 8.8 rebounds at Mt. Hood CC in Gresham, Ore-, last year.

If Davis moves back to forward, then junior college transfers 6-2 Darnell Fletcher and 6-4 Kevin Henderson will compete to start opposite Wood. Fletcher was state JC player of the year this spring after averaging 23.5 points a game for Pasadena, Calif., CC.

CAL-IRVINE

The Anteaters paid some dues in the first year of the "Post Kevin Magee Era," playing all underclassmen. That group responded with a 16-12 record, 8-8 in the PCAA, and served notice it will be a factor this year.

All five starters return from that club, led by three-year starter Ben McDonald and guard George Turner. McDonald has been an institution at forward. He was the club's leading rebounder (7.6) and No. 2 scorer (15.2) last season while extending his consecutive starts streak to 85 games. McDonald was a first-team all-league selection.

Turner had a spectacular debut in the PCAA, setting a school record for assists (150) and averaging a club-hlgh 15.6 points a game while taking full advantage of the conference's 19-foot three-point field goal. Turner had 60 of UC Irvine's 89 three-point goals. He shot 46 percent from downtown.

Center Bob Thornton, also played exceptionally well as a junior, averaging 12 points and six rebounds. Thorton, 6-9, scored a career high 34 points in a win over Long Beach State and led the PCAA in field goal percentage (.595).

The Anteaters' playmaking guard the final portion of the season was Michael Beans, who started the last nine games and matched a school record with 13 assists against UC Santa Barbara. He'll have a similar role this year.

Irvine's fifth starter last season was 6-8 freshman Tod Murphy, who collected all-PCAA freshman honors while averaging 8.7 rebounds and 5.4 rebounds a game.

Murphy is at least toying with the idea of redshirting this season, and if he does, Bill Mulligan's fifth starter will come from a group which includes sophomore Ronnie Grandison, junior Troy Carmon and recruits James Rhodes and Tom Tolbert.

Grandison was a blue chip prep two years ago and played in all 28 games as a freshman at UCI. Carmon, who has been bothered by a shoulder injury, saw lots of action as a junior and averaged 7.5 points a game with a season high of 18. Rhodes, 6-6, averaged 14.3 points and 6.8 rebounds a game as a sophomore at Skyline College. Tolbert, 6-7, was CIF 2-A player of the year at Artesia High School while averaging 30.4 points and 11.2 rebounds a game.

UTAH STATE

What a difference a year makes. Twelve months ago the situation at Utah State was grim. The Aggies had finished 4-23 the season before and there weren't a lot of specific hopes that 1982-83 could be much better. But 1982-83 was better, like 20-9 better, which translates into the fourth-best turn-around in NCAA history. Now, Aggie followers are talking title, and with some justification. Four starters return from last year's Amazing Aggies, including 6-7 Greg Grant, the conference's freshman of the year, 6-7 Ron Ence and 6-5 Chris McMullin.

Grant was the Aggies' leading scorer (14.7) and rebounder (9.1) and was honored as a third-team freshman All-American. Ence, a first-team selection on Basketball Weekly's JC transfer All-America team, was the Aggies' No. 2 scorer (12.9) and rebounder (6.3) while starting 19 of 29 games.

McMullin was the busiest of the Aggies, starting 39 games and averaging 34.8 minutes of playing time. He averaged 10.9 points a game. The fourth returning starter is 6-5 Michael McCullough, a construction worker type, who draws the toughest assignment.

The Aggies lost point guard Lance Washington, who started 68 of 99 games during his career, but coach Rod Tueller feels junior college transfer 6-2 Vince Washington can step right in. Washington averaged 16.9 points while directing Shasta JC of Redding, Calif., to a 28-4 record and the California JC small schools' title. Tueller also likes first-team JC All-America Jeff Anderson (6-6), from Ricks JC in Utah.

NEW MEXICO STATE

The theory is that new schools in the PCAA need a period of adjustment. To the "unique" facilities and the "unique" style of play of conference teams. Actually, that was the theory. Nevada-Las Vegas shot it full of holes.

The consensus is that New Mexico State will march into the PCAA and be an immediate factor if not title contender.

The Aggies were third in the Missouri Valley Conference a year ago and reached the semifinals of the conference tournament. They did take a hit with graduation, but do return quality players in 6-3 guard Steve Colter and 6-7 forwards Lindsay McElmell and Elston Jones.

Colter has the most impressive credentials, He's a three-year starter and was the No. 2 scorer (16.2) a year ago while leading the club in assists (130). McElmell was a part-time starter and averaged 10.2 points and 4.7 rebounds. Jones averaged 11 minutes of playing time as a freshman.

That trio will be strengthened by a group of recruits which include 6-8 forward Andre Patterson, from Fresno City College, and 6-9 center David Smith, from Allen County CC, Kansas. Both were rated among the top 25 JC recruits in the nation by Sporting News.

PACIFIC

The Tigers are one of the conference's unknown quantities. They were 7-21 and 4-12 under first-year coach Tom O'Neil.

Those familiar with the Tigers feel that effort was misleading, influenced significantly by injuries. At times, late in the season, the Tigers began games with as few as seven players.

If things do even out, this promises to be a much better year. There are three reasons for that . . . sophomores Rich Anema and Andy Franklin and junior Drew Rodgers. Anema is a forward, Franklin a center and Rodgers a guard or forward. All averaged in double figures on the 7-21 club.

Anema shot 55 percent while leading the Tigers in scoring with a 12.9 average, which included a club-high 30 points. Anema, 6-8, was on the PCAA all-freshman team, as was Franklin, and received Pacific's basketball. "outstanding achievement" award, which he shared with the 6-8 Franklin and the graduated Laurence Held.

Franklin was equally impressive, becoming the first UOP freshman since Ron Cornelius to lead the Tigers in rebounding (6.1). Franklin also averaged 10.8 points a game and had the game-winning basket in two of Pacific's seven victories.

Rodgers scored 12.4 points a game and if he plays guard, he'll be matched with senior John Leidenheimer, who ranks fifth in Pacific's career logs with 254 assists. Leidenheimer was honored as the club's best defensive player last season and was one of the three returnees (Franklin and Anema are the others) to start all 28 games.

O'Neil feels the Tigers have strengthened themselves with the addition of two freshman recruits from Oregon, Brent Counts, who averaged 21.6 points per game, and Jeff Riebel, who averaged 13

LONG BEACH STATE

These are scary times for the school which at one time dominated the PCAA. The 49ers have a new coach and an uncertain future. So uncertain, qualifying for the PCAA tournament (two teams won't) may be a reasonable goal.

Dave Buss, who built an impressive record at Wisconsin-Green Bay before serving a year as a part-time assistant to Jerry Tarkanian at Nevada-Las Vegas last year, has accepted the 49er challenge.

His first assistant is Bill Hodges, Larry Bird's coach at Indiana State. That and Buss's 271-102 coaching record, may not be enough to make an immediate impact.

Buss was hired too late to do much recruiting, so the 49ers are counting on the improved play of several returning players (13-16, 6-10 in the conference).

It isn't a completely pessimistic situation. The 49ers showed flashes of brilliance, taking Nevada-Las Vegas to the wire three times, upsetting Cal State Fullerton in the PCAA tournament, and handing NIT champion Fresno State its most lopsided home loss in Boyd Grant's six-year tenure.

The guards, Joedy Gardner (6-4, 190) and Ricky Smith (6-2, 170), return as Long Beach's best players. Gardner was the team's leading scorer (15.7) and his game-to-game performance had an incredible impact on the 49ers' success. The son of lowa assistant coach Joedy Gardner, Joedy's late-season play was affected by a chronic thigh injury.

Smith was the team's No. 2 scorer and he scored the last-second, off-balance 15-footer which knocked Cal State Fullerton out of the PCAA tournament.

How well the 49ers fare this year may well be determined by 6-11 Ivan Verberckt, an exchange student from Belgium averaged 8.4 points as a reserve and set a school record with 55 blocked shots. He was on the PCAA's all-freshman team.

The 49ers will be starting from scratch at forward, where reserve Charles Houston (6-5, 200) and junior redshirt Darryl Adams (6-7, 210) are the leading candidates to start.

SAN JOSE STATE

Talk about challenges . . . fifth-year Bill Berry has 2.3 points returning from the starting lineup of a club which was 14-15 a year ago.

Sophomore guard Bobby Evans, 6-2, is the owner of the aforementioned scoring average. and he figures to meet a lot of new people.

Gone from the Spartan roster are the team's top six scorers, top seven rebounders and five players who shot better than 50 percent on one of San Jose's best shooting teams.

The holdovers are Evans, Michael Dixon, a 6-1 guard who has collected 207 assists in two seasons and 6-6 junior forward Keith Norwood (1.3 ppg, 0.9 rpg).

The Spartans, obviously, are counting heavily on their recruits, who include 6-3 junior guard Eric Williams, 6-5 prep George Puou, 6-Kevin Richardson, 6-8 Matt Fleming and 6-6 freshman Stony Evans.

Williams averaged 23 points a game at Merritt College and Berry regards Eric as, "Talent-wise, as talented a guard as we've had since I've been here."

Puou, a two-time all-state performer from Hawaii, and Richardson, an all-CIF choice from Dominguez High School in Compton, are youngsters Berry feels "can really shoot.

Fleming, from West Valley College, and Evans, an all-CIF selection from Bonita High School in LaVerne, are being counted on to give the Spartans needed inside help.

CAL-SANTA BARBARA

The Gauchos, clearly, had the recruiting coup of the year. They "stole" coach Jerry Pimm, an institution for years at the University of Utah. The Gauchos made Pimm an offer he couldn't refuse shortly after his Utah team had stunned UCLA in the NCAA playoffs.

Unfortunately, the Gauchos didn't sign any of Pimm's players. And that may mean at least a year's wait in the investment. Pimm signed so late he had virtually no chance to recruit.

That means the Gauchos will be going primarily with a group of youngsters who struggled through a 7-21, 1-15 season a year ago. That does not mean, however, that Pimm inherited nothing.

He'll have 6-6 Frank Horwath, the team's No. 3 scorer (7.3) a year ago, 6-7 Scott Fisher, a 50 percent shooter, 6-6 guard Conner Henry, the club's No. 2 assist man (80) and 6-3 Dedrick Brooks.

They'll be joined by freshman recruits 6-5

It is possible, perhaps, that Brigham Young University could have selected a more unlikely basketball coach last spring.

Bob Knight, for example. Lou Carnesecca. John Thompson.

Still, the Cougars can hardly be faulted for Having yielded to a revolt by four key players, having dismissed Frank Arnold, BYU selected Ladell Andersen, the 53-year-old athletic director at Utah State.

Andersen had not coached a basketball team since 1972-73, when he directed the Utah Stars of the American Basketball Association. He had not coached a college team since 1970-71, his 10th season at Utah State.

His appointment was a major surprise, but the Cougars are convinced Andersen was, if you will pardon the expression, a godsend.

"Ladell is a good man and a good basketball coach," athletic director Glen Tuckett said. "He brings to the job precisely the qualities we feel are important right now."

This may be true, but the move represents a significant gamble by BYU. Four starters return from a Cougar team that shared the Western Athletic Conference championship last season. Arnold had successfully recruited two high school All-Americans to replace center Greg Kite. This should be one of the better teams in Cougar history, and to direct it they chose a man who has been out of coaching 12 years.

"I decided some time ago that if the right job came along, I wanted to get back into coaching," Andersen said. "I enjoyed administration, but I missed basketball. I was hoping to get one, last opportunity in coaching, and to get it here—at BYU—is too good to be true."

Andersen, for 10 years the athletic director at Utah State, has managed to stay close to the game. He served on the NCAA Basketball Committee from 1977-82. His summer camp in Logan, Utah, is oldest in the Rockies.

Even so, Andersen toured America last summer, visiting a number of the sport's top coaches. Basketball, he concluded, is still the same basic game he coached in the 1960's.

"The matchup zones are relatively new, and teams change defenses more than they used to, but I certainly don't feel I'm out of touch," he said. "My cup of tea has always been the teaching of fundamentals, and they're the same as they've always been."

Andersen's style should appeal to the 22,000 fans who hold season tickets at Marriott Center. The Cougars will run and gun and have some fun this winter. Andersen's record should prove popular, as well, since BYU ap-

Predicted order of finish: 1. BYU; 2. Texas-El Paso;

- 3. San Diego State; 4. New Mexico;
- 5. Hawaii; 6. Wyoming; 7. Utah;
- 8. Colorado State; 9. Air Force pears to have one of the West's best teams.

But if the Cougars do not play well, Andersen may be reminded why most coaches become athletic directors and not vice-versa.

"At BYU, pressure goes with the territory," he observed. "People here are used to winning. They expect to win, but when you stop to think about it, that's one of the reasons it's such a good place to be."

BYU

The 1982-83 season will be remembered as one to forget in and around Provo, Utah. The Cougars lost each of their first five games last winter. They were swept by archrival Utah. They finished 15-14, and Arnold was fired.

What is usually forgotten is the fact BYU managed to share the Western Athletic Conference championship, and the team returns virtually intact.

Ladell Andersen may have the best player in the conference in forward Devin Durrant. A 6-7 senior, Durrant led the WAC in scoring last year with 22.8 points a game and was one of the league's three players of the year.

Starting forward Brett Applegate, a 6-6 senior and one of the WAC's best outside shooters, averaged 12.3. Also returning are the team's three best guards; junior Scott Sinek (6-2) and sophomores Chris Nikchevich (6-2) and Brian Taylor (6-4).

The only question mark is at center, and even that could become an exclamation point by midseason. The candidates for the post are freshmen Mike Smith (6-9) from Hacienda Heights, Calif., and Carl Pollard (7-2) from nearby Orem, Utah. Both were high school All-Americans. Both took part in the National Sports Festival last summer in Colorado Springs. If either develops into a solid starter, BYU could develop into a national power.

TEXAS-EL PASO

It would be stretching a point only slightly to suggest UTEP has six starters returning from the team that finished 19-10 and shared the Western Athletic Conference championship with BYU and Utah last winter.

Guard Luster Goodwin (6-0), forwards Kent Lockhart (6-4) and Kevin Hamilton (6-6) and center Dave Feitl (6-10) were starters the night UTEP bowed to Fresno State, the eventual champion, in the opening round of the NIT.

The best players on the team, moreover, were injured the first month of the season. Fred Reynolds and Juden Smith, a pair of 6-6 forwards who missed the rest of the year, also return. Now add Donnell Allen, a 6-7 transfer from Mississippi State, and you begin to understand why UTEP dreams of making its first appearance in the NCAA Tournament since 1975.

Goodwin, a junior, led the Miners in scoring last season with 12.3 points a game. The player to watch, however, is Reynolds, a member of U.S. entry in the Pan American Games.

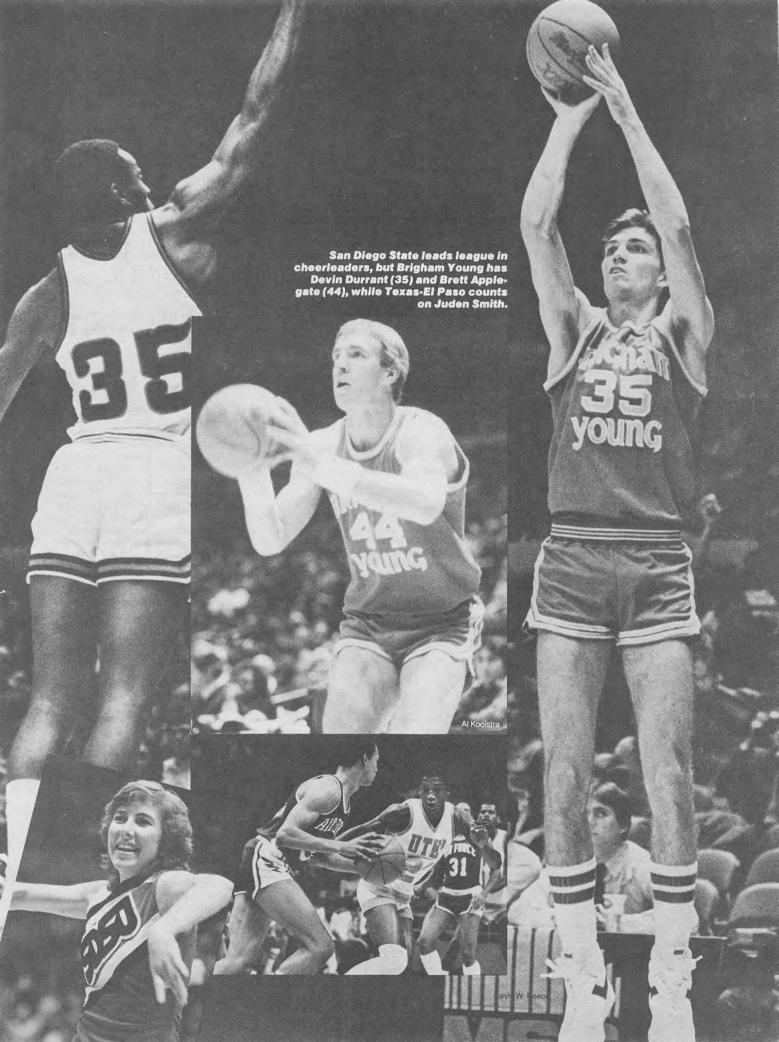

SAN DIEGO STATE

The Aztecs were favored to win the conference championship last winter and, sure enough, they were the team to beat. Almost everyone beat the Aztecs. San Diego State lost to six of the WAC's eight other schools, finished 8-8, and wound up in a fifth-place tie with Wyoming.

Forward Michael Cage, a 6-9 senior, did all he could. Cage averaged 19.5 points a game and was the nation's No. 3 rebounder with an average of 12.6. Cage, Devin Durrant of BYU and Pace Mannion of Utah were the WAC's players of the year, but Cage got little help from his friends.

Bill Finley of the San Diego Union is well-known and well versed on the Western Athletic Conference circuit, but a newcomer to the contributing editorial board of Street & Smith's.

That is why Coach Smokey Gaines recruited eight new players. Among them were two of America's better junior college big men. Mike Kennedy of Tyler, Texas, and San Jacinto, Texas, transfer Andre Ross are both 6-9. Neither, however, plays point guard, and that appears to be the Aztecs' chief weakness. Keith Smith, the playmaker the last two years, has graduated.

NEW MEXICO

The Lobos had a record of 11-4 when star guard Phil Smith suffered a broken ankle last season in a game at UTEP. From that point on, their record was 3-11. It should not be surprising, then, that Smith's well-being was a source of some concern this fall in Albuquerque. If he is sound, and it appears he is, New Mexico will be back on its feet for the first time since the "Lobogate" scandals rocked the school in 1980-81.

Smith, considered by many the best guard in the conference, has led the Lobos in scoring in each of the last three years. The 6-0 senior was averaging 12.9 points a game when he went down last January in Texas.

The Lobos have three other starters back from the team that finished 14-15 last season. They are senior forward Tim Garrett (6-7), who averaged 12.5 points a game; senior center George Scott (6-8), who averaged 10.2, and swingman Michael Johnson, a 6-3 senior who averaged 8.2.

New Mexico also landed one of the East's better prospects in guard Kelvin Scarborough, a guard from Washington D.C.

HAWAII

The WAC's surprise team last year, the Rainbows return three starters and two key reserves from the club that finished 17-11

The key could be the development of center Rogue Harris, a 7-2 junior who must begin asserting himself if Hawaii is to bridge the two games that separated the Rainbows from the conference leaders a year ago.

Hawaii's all-WAC guard, Tony Webster, was a senior last season. The team is hoping redshirt freshman Andre Morgan, who took part in the National Sports Festival, will fill the void.

WYOMING

As recently as two years ago, Wyoming was the WAC's dominant team, but the Cowboys slipped to fifth place last season and it will be difficult to advance this time.

Wyoming, which finished 16-13, lost three of its four best players, and sophomore center Mark Getty (7-2) had knee surgery.

Senior forward Tony Martin, who averaged 13.0 and had 60 dunks, is the team's best returnee.

Jamal Hosey, a 6-6 sophomore forward, was also a starter, averaging 5.5 points and 6.5 rebounds a game.

UTAH

The Utes were the Cinderella team of last year's NCAA tournament, upsetting Illinois and UCLA before bowing to eventual national champion North Carolina State, but they will be hard-pressed to provide a suitable encore.

The team's two best players, Pace Mannion and Peter Williams, were seniors.

Coach Jerry Pimm transferred to UC-Santa Barbara because of outstanding offer.

Former Idaho State coach Lynn Archibald has replaced him, and will probably learn just how improbable it was that Utah finished 18-14 last year.

The team's hopes for a .500 season will rest on the shoulders of guards Angelo Robinson and Manuel Hendrix. Robinson, a 6-3 senior, averaged 10.1 last year. Hendrix, a 5-10 sophomore, averaged 8.2. It was Hendrix who ignited Utah's run toward a share of the WAC championship when he joined the starting lineup at midseason.

COLORADO STATE

Having lost three starters from a team that finished 11-17, the Rams will be relying heavily on newcomers.

Three, in particular, intrigue Coach Tony McAndrews. Mike Gray, a 6-9 transfer from Tyler, Texas, averaged 15 points and 12.5 rebounds last season. Andy Johannsen, a 6-7 forward who has transferred from Northeastern (Colo.) College, averaged 13 points and seven rebounds. Guard Anthony Lee, a 6-3 guard from Carson, Calif., averaged 25.3 points a game. Two players who started every game are back, 6-9 sophomore center Rich Strong (9.5 ppg, 6.3 rpg), and Todd Benn (7.8 ppg).

AIR FORCE

Coach Hank Egan has reason to suspect the game is governed by Murphy's Law instead of the NCAA rulebook.

The Falcons finished 10-17 last season, and Egan's four best players were seniors.

The only returning starter is 6-2 guard Todd Beer, a sophomore who averaged 5.1 points a game last winter.

Reserve forward Dal Grupe, a 6-4 senior, also returns, but the Falcons are not likely to snap their string of last-place finishes.

TOPEKA CAPITAL-JOURNAL

Larry Brown is a big name in coaching. Kansas used to be a big name in the college game. They were united last April. Will the marriage get off to a rousing start?

It's risky to answer in the affirmative. Coaches new to the Big Eight usually require a year or so to adjust to the style of play and the crafty, hard-nosed gents on the other bench.

No doubt about it, the Big Eight is a coaches' league. Everybody has been in postseason competition within the last four years. Three were busy this summer—Kansas State's Jack Hartman at the Pan American Games, Missouri's Norm Stewart at the World University Games and Nebraska's Moe Iba at the National Sports Festival.

But flushed with the success of tabbing Missouri a year ago when most others were going with Oklahoma, I'll timidly predict that Kansas will make the leap from sixth place to the top in 1984.

No way Brown will be intimidated. He's won in the pros and at UCLA. And he finds the cupboard overflowing with talent. Eight of last season's nine-man nucleus returns and 7-1 Wichita State transfer Greg Dreiling becomes eligible.

Kansas, of course, was not among four Big Eight teams winning 21 or more games last season. Those that did have varying amounts of rebuilding to do.

Missouri (26-8) lost Steve Stipanovich and Jon Sundvold and doesn't figure to win a fifth straight league title. But don't count the Tigers out. Oklahoma State (24-7) loses its top three scorers. Count the Cowpokes out. Oklahoma (24-9) loses four starters, but returns 6-9 All-American Wayman Tisdale. Don't count the Sooners out. Nebraska (22-10) loses eight lettermen. Don't count the Huskers out, either. In fact, they're my choice to win if Kansas doesn't.

Make Iowa State, with lots of experience and picking up 7-1 freshman center Brad Dudek, the darkhorse. Kansas State and Colorado also could be improved, but it would be a surprise if either climbs out of the second division.

KANSAS

North Carolina's Dean Smith wasn't interested in returning to his alma mater to coach. But he took an active role in determining who did.

First Smith made a phone call on behalf of Ted Owens, who twice had guided the Jayhawks to the Final Four, But when he learned that athletic director Monte Johnson was set on making a change, Smith recommended one of his former players, Larry Brown.

Bob Hentzen is a prolific and popular fellow. He's been named the Kansas sports writer of the year 11 times, is a past president of the U.S. Basketball Writers Assn., and more recently was named president of the Football Writers of America.

Javhawk partisans have no questions about Brown's credentials. He's a proven winner. They do wonder, considering his track record, how long he'll stay. Brown says as long as Kansas will have him, but that remains to be seen.

What is certain is that Brown is coming into a situation where he can win big immediately. There's size, experience and talent aplenty Eight players return, seven of whom started at one time or another in a 13-16 season.

The cast is headed by 6-5 senior guard Carl Henry (17.4 ppg, 6.4 rpg), 6-8 sophomore forward Kerry Boagni (14.1, 4.7), 6-8 senior center Kelly Knight (12.3, 7.2) and 6-6 sophomore forward Calvin Thompson (7.9, 3.4). Point guards Tad Boyle and Jeff Guiot also are back along with 6-5 Ron Kellogg and 6-9 Brian

Predicted order of finish:

- 1. Kansas; 2. Nebraska;
- 3. Oklahoma; 4. Missouri; 5. Iowa State; 6. Kansas State;
- 7. Colorado; 8. Oklahoma State.

The newcomer certain to play is 7-1, 240pound Greg Dreiling, who averaged 8.1 points as a freshman starter on a good Wichita State team two years ago. The presence of Dreiling, if he can keep up in the running game Brown plans to employ, probably will result in Knight moving to power forward.

NEBRASKA

Moe Iba's third season as coach of the Cornhuskers was his best-a 22-10 record and trip to the NIT semifinals. And the day may be coming when Nebraska fans are as excited about hoops as they are football.

Despite the loss of starters Greg Downing and Claude Renfro and six other players, Nebraska again looms as a Big Eight title contender. That's primarily because of the presence of 6-11, 235-pound Dave Hoppen, who averaged 13.9 points and 5.0 boards as a freshman. If Steve Stipanovich and Wayman Tisdale weren't in the league, you'd have heard more about him.

Hoppen was coming on strong at the end, earning a berth on the all-NIT team. So was 6-4 Stan Cloudy (11.7 ppg, 4.9 rpg and 106 assists), who played both guard and forward after coming out of the juco ranks. He gave a possible preview of things to come when he scored 24 against Iona in the NIT. Point guard David Ponce also returns, as does guard Eric

If Nebraska is going to be really good, though, newcomers have to come through. The possibilities include redshirt forwards

New Kansas coach is Larry Brown whose key performers include Carl Henry and Kerry Boagni in Big Eight competition.

Mike Martz, John Matzke and James Moore. They also include 6-5 freshman Titus Dock (19.5 ppg, 16.1 rpg in Georgia) and juco transfers Curtis Moore and Ken Worthy. Ron Moore, at 6-9, also was recruited from a juco as a possible backup to Hoppen.

OKLAHOMA

The end of the season was a bummer. Coach Billy Tubbs was struck by a car while jogging and was in the hospital with multiple injuries when the Sooners were ushered out of the Big Eight tourney in the first round at home by Kansas and out of the NCAA tourney in the second round by Indiana. Later, squadman Bruce Lee died while undergoing routine surgery.

But the record book will forever show it was a memorable season: 24-9 overall record, runnerup to Missouri in the Big Eight and the birth of an All-American—Wayman Tisdale, who scored at a 24.6 clip, rebounded at 10.3 and blocked a whopping 80 shots as a freshman.

The bad news for the opposition is that Tisdale will be around for at least one more year before moving on to the NBA. The good news is that he's the only returning starter. Depending on the quality of the replacements and how they'll blend in with Tisdale, Oklahoma could be a world beater or simply a good team.

The only other returnees who played much are guard Jan Pannell (4.9 ppg) and forward Calvin Pierce (5.7). Returning guards Shawn Clark and Don Gandy and forwards Jerome Johnson and William Tisdale appeared only in blowouts. Three incoming frosh—6-2 Tim McCalister from Indiana, 6-8 David Johnson from Kansas City and 6-5 Darryl Kennedy from Oklahoma—were included on one publication's list of the top 60 recruits nationally.

MISSOURI

Last season the Tigers survived the absence of Ricky Frazier to win their fourth straight Big Eight title. But this season they'll be without center Steve Stipanovich and guard Jon Sundvold, who played starring roles in the winning of all four of the championships.

But just maybe the Tigers can extend their string because coach Norm Stewart isn't exactly starting over. For openers, he's got 6-9 junior Greg Cavener (10.8 ppg, 8.6 rpg), 6-4 senior forward Ron Jones (7.1, 3.9) and guard Prince Bridges (6.2). At least Stewart hopes he has Bridges, who spent half of last season recuperating from a broken foot. Of all things, Bridges suffered a foot fracture (for the third time in his life) this past spring.

Stewart also returns some familiar faces (to him) from last season's bench—forwards Dwight Moody and Mark Sparks and guard Billy Roundtree.

Mizzou's recruiting reportedly was excellent. Additions include 6-7 Malcolm Thomas, the national juco player of the year out of Moberly, Mo., with 23.2 scoring and 12.3 rebounding marks, and two 6-5 freshmen—Ted Mimlitz (21 ppg) from St. Louis and Cecil Estes (24 ppg) from Columbia.

IOWA STATE

This could be the season when the basketball world finds out what happened to Johnny Orr after he left Michigan. Orr, 32-50 in three seasons at lowa State, should have his best team. Maybe even a Big Eight title contender.

Only a couple of centers with unimpressive numbers, Ron Falenschek and Doug Jones, are missing from a 13-15 outfit. And the center who would have moved in then if he hadn't broken a leg in a car accident, 7-1 Brad Dudek, will make his debut. So will another touted freshman, 6-8 Sam Hill.

Orr groped for a winning combination last season. Fourteen played enough to letter. Eight got starts. Even Barry Stevens, who scored 40 to spark an upset of Missouri, was up and down.

The best of the returnees are the 6-5 junior forward Stevens (16.8 ppg, 5.2 rpg), 6-3 junior guard Ron Harris (14.3, 4.3), senior guard Terrence Allen (10.2, 4.3), sophomore guard sparkplug Jeff Hornacek (5.4) and 6-6 junior forward Raynal Harris (5.4, 4.2).

KANSAS STATE

A 12-year string of winning seasons was broken when a freshman-sophomore dominated Wildcat squad went 12-16. Coach Jack Hartman promises improvement, but Kansas State—on paper anyway—looks like a second-division team.

With Les Craft graduating and Neal Degner moving to Stetson, there's not a natural center on the roster. But it is dangerous to write off a Hartman team because of size. A few years back, in the NCAA tourney, eventual national champion Marquette escaped with a one-point victory over a K-State team with nobody taller than 6-5.

Hartman feels he found some winners while experimenting with a dozen starting combinations last season. His list includes 6-4 sophomore guard Jim Roder (6.5 ppg), 6-8 junior forward Eddie Elder (8.7, 5.1 rpg), 6-6 sophomore forward Tyrone Jackson (4.7, 4.1) and possibly 6-6 junior forward Lafayette Watkins (4.6, 2.8).

Mizzou cheerleader, Nebraska fans contribute to Big Eight as much as Oklahoma's Wayman Tisdale, Missouri's Greg Cavener, Kansas State's Eddie Elder.

The jury is still out on 6-8 soph Ben Mitchell, 6-7 soph Parker Laketa, junior guard Kenny Williams and soph guard Jonas Cody. Guard Fred Marshall, who started 21 games as a freshman, was a scholastic casualty.

The only newcomers are 6-8 redshirt freshman Alex Williams and two juco transfers, 6-7 Tom Alfaro and 6-3 Eric Watson.

COLORADO

The Buffs have found it as tough to get over the hump in Big Eight basketball as it would be for a novice jogger to make it to the top of Flagstaff mountain west of Boulder. Last season, in highly respected Tom Apke's second year as coach, Colorado went 13-15 overall and only 3-11 in the conference.

Again there are legitimate reasons to think the Buffs will be better. Senior point guard Jay Humphries is a dandy, leading the team in scoring (14.3), assists (174) and steals (115) last season. Vince Kelley (11.7 ppg, 9.1 rpg), the 6-7 senior forward, is solid. Randy Downs (11.9, 4.5), the 6-9 sophomore center, is a comer. That trio, plus soph guard Mike Reid and 6-9 soph forward Don Yowell, are the returnees.

The new talent includes two Creighton transfers—6-7 Alex Stivrins and 6-4 Tony Pruitt. They averaged 7 and 7.9 points, respectively, at the Omaha school before sitting out last season. Another newcomer who figures to play immediately is 6-7 juco product Barry Anderson.

OKLAHOMA STATE

Good ol' boy coach Paul Hansen's job is imposing: Avoid going from the penthouse to the outhouse.

His Cowpokes, so quick and talented, notched a 24-7 record in earning an NCAA tourney berth last season. But three of the guys responsible—Matt Clark, Leroy Combs and Lorenza Andrews—are gone. There wasn't much behind them.

On the positive side, the Cowpokes welcome back 6-7 Joe Atkinson, who broke a wrist in the fourth game never to return. The junior, who averaged 9.4 points as a freshman, was averaging 12.8 points and 9.3 rebounds when he went down. The other proven hands are 6-7 senior forward Raymond Crenshaw (12.5 ppg, 7.2 rpg), also a defensive whiz; 6-6 junior Charles Williams (6.2, 3.3), who filled in for Atkinson; and guard Bill Self (5.7).

Rick Anderson, a 6-8 former walk-on, had a big game off the bench when the Pokes beat Missouri in the finals of the postseason tourney and will see more action this season. But Oklahoma State lacks depth, a center and perhaps a guard.

Nebraska's best are Stan Cloudy (45) and Dave Hoppen (42), and they'll compete with Colorado's Jay Humphries.

by Stan Olson

Psst! See that little guy over there with the glasses and the loud sportcoat? Doesn't look real tough, does he?

Well, look again, because that's Murray Arnold, and despite that meek appearance, he's been kicking the rest of the Southern Conference all over the basketball lot.

Arnold is the head coach and architect of the Tennessee-Chattanooga basketball program, one of the best-kept secrets in college sports. Last year, his Moccasins went 26-4, almost an instant replay of their 27-4 effort the year before. UTC won its third straight league championship and went to the NCAA playoffs for the third straight season.

Predicted order of finish:

- 1. Tennessee-Chattanooga;
- 2. Western Carolina; 3. Furman;
- 4. Marshall;
- 5. East Tennessee State;
- 6. The Citadel;
- 7. Appalachian State:
- 8. Davidson:
- 9. Virginia Military Institute

This winter, look for the Mocs to win No. 4.
There will be challengers, of course. Western Carolina recruited well and should be fiesty, and Furman will be young but talented. And naturally, the rest of the teams in the SC think they'll be better, too.

But when the shooting's over, look for Murray to be packing extra socks and heading for the NCAAs once again.

And it makes no difference how they shoot. The SC has applied for permission to use the three-point field goal (from 19-9') for the fourth straight year, and will probably receive it. No problem for UTC—all-league bomber Willie White can swish 'em from the parking lot.

Now then, everybody ready? Start chasing the Moccasins. But remember, Arnold's given them quite a head start.

TENNESSEE-CHATTANOOGA

Why are we so high on the Moccasins? For one thing, any team that can win its league after we picked it to do just that has got to be good. No prognosticator's kiss of death for these guys. And most of the talent that produced 15-1 SC season mark is back.

Start with White, of course. The 6-3 senior led the Mocs in scoring (18.4 ppg) and was second in steals and assists, proving often that the hand really is quicker than the eye. Behind him return the rest of last year's top five scorers, so UTC will be experienced.

Six-foot Chris McCray (81 assists) will direct the attack, and Arnold has stockpiled two Stan Olson has reported on the Southern Conference as well as the ACC for 11 of his 13 years at the Charlotte News, and is a Street & Smith veteran contributor. blue-chip freshman guards, James Hunter and playmaking whiz Maurice Head.

Up front, Gerald Wilkins (12.6 ppg), Dominique's not-so-little brother at 6-6, returns, along with power forward Stanford Strickland (12 ppg, 5.5 rpg). Both are strong inside, and get help from 6-5, 220-pound Lamar Oden.

If there is a problem, it will be at center, since 6-8 Stanley Lawrence is gone. But Arnold thought of that, too, and 6-9 junior Clifford Morgan, a junior college transfer, is ready.

Now, just stand back and watch 'em roll.

WESTERN CAROLINA

Look for the Catamounts, who finished 17-12 and fourth in the SC a year ago, to move up this time. Coach Steve Cottrell loses just one starter and augments all those returnees with a bushel of talented newcomers.

Of course, the one player lost was significant—all-league forward Kenny Trimier. But despite the poor-mouthing you may hear coming out of Cullowhee (you know, up near Sylva, N.C.), you can expect the Catamounts to be their usual rugged selves.

Start with a superb backcourt. Shooting guard Quinton Moore (12.5 ppg, 4.2 rpg) can be dazzling although he's a bit erratic, and senior point man Quentin Lytle (8.6 ppg, 105 assists) does a fine job of directing traffic.

And don't forget 6-1 freshman guard Vincent "Spotlight" Walker, a North Carolina all-stater who could grab some glory early.

Without Trimier, the front court will be anchored by junior forward Cedric Cokely (9.9 ppg) and 6-8 senior center Pat Sharp (10.6 ppg, 5.3 rpg). Swingman Cliff Waddy could move in at small forward, but that slot just might go to another freshman, 6-7 Richard Rogers, who was highly recruited out of Ft. Walton Beach, Fla.

So if Cottrell tells you how tough the schedule is and how much better everybody else in the league is, don't listen.

FURMAN

They brought Jene Davis, an assistant to Bobby Knight at Indiana, in to coach the Paladins last season because they wanted some Bobby Knight-like results. Instead, Furman fans got their first 20-loss season (9-20) since 1951. But be patient, all you folks down in Greenville, S.C. This season promises to be considerably more to your liking.

Davis went out and corralled a whole herd of kids who should help immediately. The best of the six could be 6-1 guard Shawn Reid, but forwards Eric Moore (6-5) and Herman Sims (6-6) are being counted on as well. And 6-8 forward Chuck Ham will add beef up front.

But we're not picking Furman to climb to third from seventh in the league solely because of recruiting. Back again is the SC's best big man, 6-9 senior George Singleton (16.1 ppg, 8.2 rpg). He'll get able support from 6-6 junior Noel Gillard (9.9 ppg, 5.1 rpg) and 6-9, 225-pound sophomore center Greg Spurling (4.7 ppg).

The Paladins had problems in the backcourt last year, but Reid is expected to solve that when he's paired with senior Floyd Creed (8.9 ppg). Sophomore Dave Conrady, a longrange bomber, will also see plenty of action.

By the time Davis, a stern disciplinarian just like his old boss, is through blending the old and the new, Furman fans may have basketball fever once more.

MARSHALL

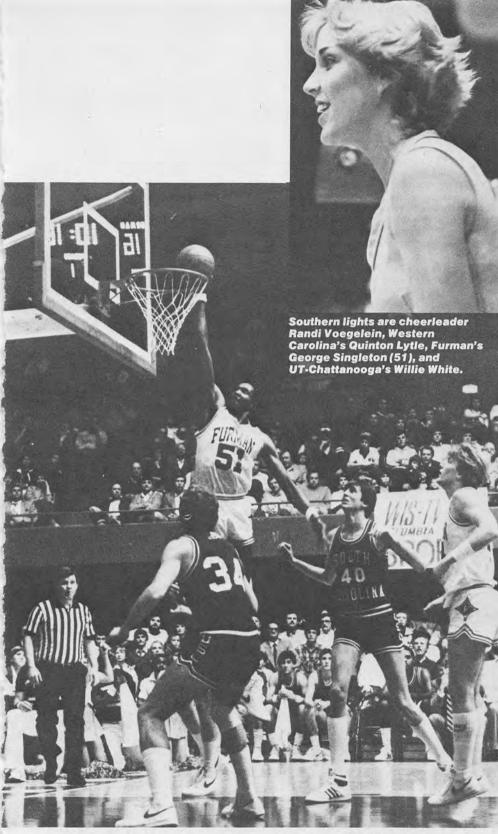

The Thundering Herd has the only new face in the SC's coaching ranks this year—introducing Rick Huckabay, a former LSU assistant who takes over for Bob Zuffelato.

Zuffelato was a class act who left the cupboard amply stocked with talent for his replacement, but when he stepped down, all was not rosy. It should have been. After all, the Herd thundered to a 20-8 mark last season (13-3 in the league). Problem was, Marshall pulled its usual swoon in the first round of the league tourney, losing to Furman. And that meant no post-season play once more.

But the Herd will try, try again, and it could happen. Maybe this will be the year that spectacular 6-4 senior Laverne Evans (13.8 ppg) will be spectacular more consistently. Maybe senior point guard Sam Henry (7.7 ppg) will up his scoring average a bit to go with those league-leading 157 assists. And maybe post man David Wade (11.2 ppg, 7 rpg) can throw his 6-6, 210-pound self around hard enough to make up for the loss of massive center Charles Jones.

Despite a late start, Huckabay believes he has gotten his veterans some reinforcements—three junior college transfers, all from Walker JC in Jaspar, Ala. Must have been working the territory for LSU.

EAST TENNESSEE STATE

The old line about not being able to tell the players without a scorecard is so true at East Tennessee State that even second-year coach Barry Dowd may have problems keeping his charges straight. And just when he was getting used to the old bunch, a group that rolled up a 22-9, 12-4 SC record.

Five of last season's top six scorers are gone, including 6-1 jumping jack Troy Lee Mikell and 6-11 behemoth Winfred King, prompting Dowd to say, "It's going to be something of a rebuilding year."

Dowd went out and got himself some pretty good building blocks. Two junior college transfers, 6-9 James Hildebrand and 6-8 Mark Watkins, may both make the starting lineup. If they provide adequate rebounding, Dowd just might throw three guards in with them.

Senior Marcus Reese (9.9 ppg, 4.3 rpg), the only returning starter, will probably open at shooting guard, with 6-1 sophomore Wes Stallings at the point. Stallings, however, could be challenged by Carniel Manuel, a 6-3 hotshot of a freshman.

The three-guard scheme also makes room for sophomore James Tandy, a talented transfer from Texas who scored in double figures for the Longhorns two years ago.

THE CITADEL

If Les Robinson keeps this up, Charleston will be known for more than stately old homes, Civil War fortresses and magnolias. Robinson has induced a brigade of newcomers into trying the staid military school's rigid discipline, and that's a considerably tougher task than selling, say, North Carolina or UCLA. He's getting better at it, though, and the always-scrappy Bulldogs could conceivably battle way into the SC's first division.

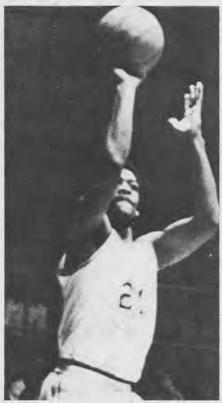

If so, they'll do it behind the fluid shooting and rebounding of 6-4 swingman Regan Truesdale (13.1 ppg, 6.1 rpg), who is on the verge of Southern stardom as a junior.

Others are back as well—6-7 junior Shawn Brown (6.3 ppg, 4 rpg) shows potential up front, and hard-nosed 6-6 senior John Sterling adds experience. And the new brigade will help here, 6-8 freshman John Hartwell and 6-7 freshman Warren Sellers in particular.

The backcourt is not as deep, with sophomore Jimmy Tharpe the only experienced returnee. Senior Ed Paone and 6-3 junior college transfer Al Sheppard will help in a year when Robinson, used to small teams, will have to spend a lot more time looking up now.

APPALACHIAN STATE

Last year, second-year coach Kevin Cantwell's Mountaineers were supposed to improve on his rookie mark of 11-15. Instead, the Apps plummeted to 6-21, and the reasons were as clear as broken bones and bad report cards.

Marshall's Laverne Evans and Appalachian State's David Lawrence lead respective teams

Academic problems cost ASU three players of note early, and those who got the necessary grades also seemed to get hurt. The result was a team that often started four freshmen, and often lost because of it.

Cantwell's young charges never quit, and everybody's back to try it again. Leading the way will be second guard David Lawrence (15.3 ppg, 4.9 rpg) and 6-9 center Dale Roberts (10.5 ppg, 8.3 rpg), two capable seniors honed by last year's tribulations. In addition, 6-6 forward Wade Capehart (8.3 ppg when healthy) should boost his numbers as a junior.

The team will still be young, and Cantwell went out and landed two junior college performers to help out in the experience department. Glen Clyburn is a 6-5 offensive talent who may start early at small forward, and 6-3 guard Jerome Williams should play a lot.

Throw in 6-6 Walter Chambliss, a sophomore, and 6-7 senior Bill Nealy up front, and mix 6-3 Ronny Fiorini and 6-4 Peter Wilson into the backcourt, and you see why Cantwell says "We have a lot of talent and depth. Now if it just won't get hurt..."

DAVIDSON

When Bobby Hussey took over the Wildcats two years ago, he brought sweetness and light to a muddled program that had spent half a decade playing musical coaches. The newfound harmony paid off in a surprise trip to the SC tournament's title game.

Then came a fine recruiting year, and last season Wildcats' fans were even predicting 20 victories. Instead, Davidson's four-senior starting lineup produced a mediocre 13-15 mark 8.8 in the family.

mark, 8-8 in the family.

Because of Hussey's loyalty to those seniors, the jury is still out on how well all of last year's freshmen can play. But even in limited appearances, several of the new kids showed flashes of talent. This year, they'll have to show it all the time for Davidson to contend.

The one starter returning is a good one—6-4 all-league forward Kenny Wilson (17.4 ppg, 5.4 rpg), who plays like a raging bull inside. He'll need help, though, and it will be inexperienced.

Center should fall to 6-9 sophomore Jim McConkey, a deft shooter who must rebound better, while power forward will go to Rafael Hernandez, a 6-6 carbon copy of Wilson in everything except consistency.

One of Hussey's three recruits, freshman Caryl Dawson out of Jacksonville, could surprise and take over at point guard. Senior Tom Franz and sophomore Pepper Bego should also see considerable backcourt time.

VIRGINIA MILITARY

Over the past several years, this pick has been almost too easy. Just hand oi' VMI the cellar and let everyone else fight it out above the Keydets.

Well, we're picking Marty Fletcher's second VMI team to hold up the rest of the SC once more, but despite last year's 2-25 mark, the choice is getting riskier.

Because a year ago, the Keydets improved far more than that dismal record would indicate. During the second half of the season. the Keydets came up with more "moral victories" (close losses) than blowouts. A few of those near misses should turn to W's this time.

Doing the turning will be 6-4 forward Darren Sawyer (15.2 ppg, 5 rpg) and 6-3 guard Cedric Wins (15.2 ppg), both juniors. And getting the ball to them will be sophomore playmaker Mike Huffman, a 7.9 scorer who passed out 103 assists a year ago.

Fletcher was happy with his recruits, the best of whom are 6-9 Eric Metheny, who may take over the middle by default, and 6-1 guard Steve Tucker, who should play a lot early. Mike Herndon, a 6-7 junior forward, and Tommy McHugh, a 6-3 soph guard, will help.

by Gary Nuhn DAYTON NEWS

That is "Taps" you hear in the background at the funeral for independent basketball schools. The Jedi may have returned, but the independents aren't. Their numbers are dwindling faster than the bald eagle population with the difference being the bald eagles are protected by the government while the bald independents aren't.

Still, if you make the NCAA as an independent, you get to keep the loot yourself. If that isn't enough of an incentive, then you're in the wrong business.

It looks like another year without a superpower among the indys. I'm sneaking DePaul into the No. 1 spot on the theory that one or the other of the freshmen comes through.

Dayton probably has the best individual in Brooklyn-born forward Roosevelt Chapman. SW Louisiana probably has the best 1-2 punch in Graylin Warner and Dion Brown. And Notre Dame probably has the best balance. But keep an eye on San Antonio, where George Gervin's younger brother, Derrick, just might be ready to strut his stuff.

The good news is that for the first time in three years, DePaul didn't lose an underclassman to the NBA. The bad news is that there wasn't anyone of that caliber here.

Ah, but don't shed any tears for "Coach." He's working up another powerhouse. Ray Meyer, three wins short of 700, has four starters back from last season's 21-12 NIT runners-up and he has added two of the most highly recruited freshmen in the country.

In what may be the final fling for this legend who will be 70 soon after the season begins, "Coach" has back both starting forwards-Tyrone Corbin (10.6 ppg, 7.9 rpg) and Kevin Holmes (4.5, 4)-and both starting guards-Kenny Patterson (10.3) and Tony Jackson (8.2). The major loss is sixth-man Bernard Randolph (13.7), but Bernard and "Coach" didn't get along all the time, so maybe it was for the best. Also missing is center Walter Downing, who transferred to Marquette after two years of disagreements with Meyer.

The freshmen are Dallas Comegys (pronounced Comma-geez) from Philadelphia (21.7 ppg., 11.5 rpg. 7 blocks) and Lawrence West (pronounced West) from San Diego (17 ppg., 14 rpg). Comegys was the first high school player that Meyer traveled out of Illinois to see in 41 years. Gee? No, Comma-geez.

SW LOUISIANA:

The forwards are back and with them rest USL's hopes of a fourth 20-victory season in the past five, all under Coach Bobby Paschal.

Graylin Warner and Dion Brown are like Big John's fists: If the right one don't get ya, then the left one will. Warner scored 16.6 last year. while Brown scored 15.3. Warner took down 5 rebounds, while Brown was 7.6. Warner led the Ragin' Cajuns with 51 blocked shots. Brown led them with 60 percent shooting.

Swingman Alonza Allen-"Skywalker," they call him in Lafayette-is talented enough that Paschal might be tempted to play his three forwards at the same time and do away with the obsolete idea that a basketball team needs a center. Soph guard George Almones (12.7) reminds some people of former USL standout Andrew Toney, now with the 76ers. There should be a good battle for point guard with LSU transfer Drexal Allen the leading candidate. Prep All-America Eric Rains should also play.

The loss of center Dan Gay is a concern. Paschal has a passel of tall freshmen, plus 6-8 juco transfer Clint Thibodeaux.

USL has been to the NCAA the past two seasons. Paschal is obviously doing something right.

MARQUETTE

It was not a pretty scene in Roberts Stadium in Evansville, Ind., the night Coach Hank Ravmonds lost his last game. In the interview room later, Raymonds stood at the microphone, his voice rasping. To his right was Glenn "Doc" Rivers and to his left, Terrell Schlundt, seated with their faces pitched forward into the palms of their hands. They had lost by one to Tennessee. "I'd rather get beat by 40," the old coach said.

They're all gone now, Raymonds to the athletic director's post, Rivers and Schlundt, they hope, to the NBA.

The new coach, Rick Majerus, has three returning starters, forwards Dwayne Johnson (12.3 ppg., 5.7 rpg) and Marc Marotta (9.5 and 6.0) and waterbug guard Mandy Johnson (8.1). Junior Terry Reason (7.4) and soph Kerry Trotter (4.9) should help, as should Majerus's recruiting class, highlighted by 6-10, 254pound Tom Copa from Coon Rapids, Minn. (21.4 and 13.0).

Although Raymonds' coaching record was superb (126-50 in six seasons after replacing Al McGuire), he is probably prouder of another record: Since joining the Marquette coaching staff in 1961, Raymonds helped bring 134 athletes to MU. Of those, 120 earned degrees, a graduation percentage of .896. His was a class act.

NOTRE DAME

The talent is flowing again into Notre Dame. Coach Digger Phelps has added a second straight banner freshman class.

The problem is, no matter how good the freshmen are, none of them, nor any of the returnees is going to replace two-time All-America guard John Paxson. Pax took his 17.7 points, 112 assists and his floor savvy and left town, headed for San Antonio and the pros. How the Irish react to Paxson's absence will be the theme of the season, especially early. ND will also miss second-leading scorer Bill Varner (11.1)

What ND has is a slew of sophomores, a flock of freshmen and that potent student body that sometimes seems to will things to happen in the Athletic and Convocation Center. And, of course, there is Phelps. His average record in 13 years at ND: 20-9.

Tim Kempton (10.6 ppg, 5.9 rpg) is a 6-9 sophomore who likes to bounce people around. Ken Barlow (6.6 and 4.1) and Jim Dolan (6.3 and 4.7) are the other big sophs. Senior swingman Tom Sluby (5.0) should play a lot. Freshman Scott Hicks (20.4) has an opportunity to see action at guard, where junior Dan Duff and soph Joe Buchanan have squatter's rights.

STETSON

Is it the best nickname in college sports? OK, then, one of the best. The Hatters. Well, it beats Wildcats, anyway.

This was also probably the best team that didn't go anywhere at the end of last seson; 19-9 with four losses by 1 point, two by 2 points and one by 3 in overtime. In the four 1point losses, the Hatters blew leads of 13, 12, 9 and 25. Yes, 25. "We just couldn't make our free throws," said Coach Glenn Wilkes, a man with 408 wins in 26 years at Hatter U.

Four starters return led by double-post seniors Mike Reddick (12.5 ppg) and Gary Mims (8). Guards Glynn Myrick (12) and Jorge Fernandez (8) are also back.

Only 6-6 Frank Burnell is gone, but with him he took 19.7 points. Wilkes has brought in a freshman from Indianapolis, 6-5 Tony Hemphill (26 ppg), to battle two of last year's reserves, 6-6 Eddie Jenkins and 6-4 Tim Shuler, for Burnell's spot.

Stetson started a tradition last year of wearing plastic cowboy hats on the floor on the road, then tossing them to the crowd. This year, the Hatters would like to start a new tradition—winning the close ones.

DAYTON

It is a season ripe with angles. When (if) the Flyers win their 11th game, it will be the 1,000th in the school's history. That same night (again, if) will give Coach Don Donoher his 353rd victory, surpassing Tom Blackburn as the school's winningest coach. Sometime during the season, fanciful forward Roosevelt Chapman will probably become the first Flyer ever to score 2,000 points in a career (he needs 466). Heck, that's nearly a milestone a minute.

But, as Donoher will be sure to say Oct. 15 when he rolls out the basketballs for the first time, the Flyers will have to win one before they can win 11.

Chapman is a singular talent, able to invent shots in mid-air that defy description other than, well, "Wow." Chap averaged 23 points and 9.6 rebounds last year. UD's other forward, soph Ed Young (9.6, 5.1) is back, but the rest of the picture is fuzzy. No one ever took command at the shooting guard spot and point guard Kevin Conrad (13.8) and center Mike Reichert (9.0, 6.9) have graduated.

DePaul mascot, Tyrone Corbin, Tony Jackson and Kenny Patterson (10), and Southwestern Louisiana's Graylin Warner are to be watched.

Donoher has junior Ted Harris, another in a line of UD Harrises, at the point, along with juco transfer Sedric Toney. Soph Jeff Zern and freshman Dan Hughes, the latter from perennial Ohio high school power Dayton Alter, will battle for the open pivot spot.

SE LOUISIANA:

This was to be the year for the Lions to roar in the Trans-America Athletic Conference (TAAC). They were ineligible for the title last time, their first time around, especially after they said "goodbye" about two weeks after they officially cast their lot with the young league.

Now they're independent Lions again, and they're looking for a 20-win season. That figures. In three seasons of Division I competition, Coach Ken Fortenberry has led the Lions to 14-13, 16-11 and 18-9 seasons.

They nearly got into a post-season tournament last winter. Things are looking up. They moved into a new gym last year, a plus 7,500seat University Center, and promptly posted a 13-1 record there. They have 14 games there again, so you have to like the Lions' chances for a winning season.

You also have to like a team whose top two players are named Thelander "Leggs" Tillman and Bo Bo McNair. Tillman, a 6-8 junior, averaged 11 points and 6.5 rebounds, blocked 62 shots and had 46 steals. McNair, a 6-3 junior, is called "a defensive stalwart"—translated: he doesn't shoot that well—and averaged 7.8 points.

Other returning lettermen include sixth man Robert Cousin, a 6-4 swingman, seniors John Bailey and Eugene London, and junior playmaker Roger Cheeks. If he's half as good as the '76ers Maurice Cheeks, look out for them Lions.

But they'll miss starters Jerry Kelly (17.7 ppg, 9 rpg), Troy Hall (8.4 ppg) and Jerome Basille (7.7 ppg), if not the TAAC.

TEXAS-SAN ANTONIO

The first year of its basketball life, UTSA opened at Arkansas and lost by a million. The second year of its life, UTSA went to Arkansas and led by two at the half. Never mind that the Roadrunners lost by 19. They led by two at the half

The third year (this year), Arkansas is off the schedule. Aha, getting smart, eh? Nope. Spreading out. Arkansas is off. Southern Cal and Cal-Fullerton are on. Run, Roadrunners, you're gonna have to run.

Coach Don Eddy brought the 'Runners to 10-17 in Year Two after an 8-19 season the first year out of the egg. He has one senior for Year Three, 6-10 Rick Doyle (12 ppg, 8 rpg). Doyle spent the first half of last season in perpetual foul trouble, then wised up. George Gervin's little brother, Derrick, isn't so little. A 6-8 soph, he averaged 14 points and 7 rebounds. Roger Rollocks, a 6-6 transfer from Syracuse, will be eligible after four games. And Ike Thornton, a 6-4½ junior, is cool enough to be called Ice Thornton.

UTSA's downfall last year was at point guard. "We had Lamar 11 with five minutes to go, and they beat us by two," said Eddy. "We just couldn't hold the ball." To remedy that, the coach has recruited 6-foot Vince Cunningham from Allegheny CC and 5-9 Gary Payne out of the Army.

TENNESSEE STATE

This is a program in turmoil. At the end of last year, athletic director Samuel Whitman wanted to fire Coach Edward Martin after an 11-16 record. Martin survived, mostly because he had delivered an average of 18 victories through his first 13 years at TSU. Speculation is, however, that Martin needs a good season to save himself again.

FEET SEED OF TO VICIOIS

The Tigers' top player, forward Robert Cross, had one of (those) kinds of seasons, too. Suspended early when he missed a practice, Cross ran afoul of Martin's rules twice more and was finally booted for the season, despite averages of 14.3 points and 10.1 rebounds for 16 games. Martin has allowed Cross to return this year and if Robert is ready to play, he could make a major difference.

Ronnie Cage, an aptly-named guard, scored 13.3 last season and guard Glen Washington was worth 6.2. But the Tigers will miss the fluid moves of forward Mike Milligan (17.1).

Martin is strapped by a recruiting budget that some other schools spend in a week. But he needs just 14 wins for 500 in his career.

BROOKLYN COLLEGE

You gotta root for a college whose address is Bedford Avenue and Avenue H. Whose home gym seats 1,700. And whose nickname is the Kingsmen. They sang, "Louie Louie," didn't they?

Anyway, let's hear it for Brooklyn College. One of the few places in America where the sons of graduates will be heard to say, "Yondah lies da college of mah faddah."

Coach Mark Reiner took the Kingsmen to third place in the country in Division III in 1982. Last season, their first in Division I, the Kingsmen were 11-17, but considering that 18 games were on the road, 11-17 wasn't bad.

Only one man is missing, center Rick "The Rejector" Davis (8.8 ppg., 7 rpg.) Senior guard Richie Micallef (15.3) is the best of the returnees. Keith Williams is also a senior guard, but he sat out last season after scoring 12.6 two years ago.

You've heard of windfall profits. BC is looking for Wigfall profits from 6-6 forward Charles Wigfall (9.5 ppg., 8 rpg.). Michael Russell (25 ppg., 15 rpg.) from Brooklyn Tech is considered the Can't Miss Kid of the freshmen.

UTICA

At one point last season, the Pioneers were 4-12 and headed for the big two-oh; which is to say, 20 losses, hold your nose. Instead, Coach Larry Costello turned it around. Utica won 8 of its last 11 and of the three losses, one was in overtime and one was to Syracuse.

That left the Pioneers 12-15 and with nine returning players, it also left them optimistic. Team MVP Wallace Williams, a 5-9 junior guard, scored 9.7 points last season and his running mate, 6-2 soph Paul Brown (9.2) also returns. Junior forward Keith Walker (9.3, plus a shooting percentage of .628) is the top front-court returner.

Costello recruited 6-9, 220-pound Carlos Owen (22 ppg, 16 rpg) from Cumberland, Md., and also pulled in juco transfer Dave Smith, an outside scoring threat.

The Pioneers had two major statistical failings last year. They shot a horrid .579 from the free throw line. And their defense let opponents shoot .508 from the field. Improvement in both should push Pioneers over .500.

PAN AMERICAN
The Broncs played before the largest crowd in the history of their program last year, 11,043 at LSU. Two games later, they played before probably one of the smallest in their history, 200 at Mercer.

That might lead you to believe last season was either feast or famine for the Pan Ammen. Don't believe everything you're led to believe. It was strictly famine. The Broncs went 7-21.

Second-year coach Lon Kruger, formerly an assistant at Kansas State, isn't used to losing and doesn't much like it, but he may have to put up with it for one more year until he gets his system entrenched.

Kru recruited three junior college types, including the quaintly named Troy Dingle, 6-8 from Hagerstown, Md. Pan-Am's leading scorer, guard Larry Skinner, is gone. Senior forward Terry Jones (11.6) was the only other Bronc in double figures. Jones led the Broncs in about every category except trips to the rest room (TRR).

The question is, who's gonna help him out? Soph forward David Monroe (6.9) will. Now, who else?

BAPTIST

Gardner-Webb College gave us Artis Gilmore, back when it was just a junior college, and now it gives us Tommy Gaither.

He is the new coach at Baptist College in Charleston, S.C. He's no relation to Jake Gaither, the former Florida A&M football coach ("I like 'em agile, mobile and hostile," Jake once said), but Tommy sounds like he's studied a similar book of bromides.

Gaither, who was an associate coach at G-W for five years, pulls out all the platitudes in talking about the challenge he faces in forming a new team—there are nine freshmen on the Buccaneer's basketball squad—about teamwork, determination, dedication, defense. Sound familiar?

Former coach Phil Carter, who directed the Bucs to a 13-14 record before resigning, probably subscribed to the same manual.

The Bucs need ballplayers more than anything else. There are five lettermen back, headed by starting forward Anthony Woods (7.2 ppg) and guard Marcus Beasley (6.3 ppg) and a lot of newcomers known only to their mother, and next of kin.

The schedule is more familiar-looking, loaded up front with Alabama-Birmingham, Jacksonville, Clemson, Stetson and Florida State, so Gaither better get after his young guys early. Beat 'em, Bucs.

GEORGIA STATE

When he resigned in early May, Coach Jim Jarrett had the line of the year in Atlanta: "I'd rather mow lawns and wash cars," he said, "before I'd continue to work in this situation."

Nor did he quit there. "It looks like this pro-Dayton's Roosevelt Chapman, New Orleans' Tim Peyton, Terrance Breaux, SE Louisiana's Thelander "Leggs" Tillman are main men. gram is gonna go back down the drain where it was five years ago," he said.

Jarrett had been men's coach at GSU for two years, during which he went 4-23 and 9-19. The latter record was the best at GSU since 1976. But Jarrett was caught in a double pincer movement. The NCCA was investigating alleged recruiting irregularities and also alleged practice violations. Plus, Jarrett apparently couldn't get a monetary commitment from the administration that would put GSU on an equal footing with other Division I schools.

So, bye-bye. Four of the Panthers' top five scorers are back. Leader Chavelo Holmes, a 6-4 junior (18.3 ppg, 5.7 rpg) and 6-foot senior guard Tony Graham (12.8) are the best. The other two are 6-7 Reggie Chennault (9.4 and 4.4) and 5-8 senior Eric Ervin (6.3). The Panthers will miss 6-6 Joe Brown (12.3 and 8.1).

NEW ORLEANS

Carnak sits behind his desk, holding the envelope near his right eye. He is deep in thought; trancelike. "Name a card game, a lousy American phrase and a basketball program that just lost everybody," he says. He rips open the envelope and brings out the answer (which has been stored in a mayonnaise jar, etc.). The answer is, "UNO, you know and UNO." The audience groans. Don Smith groans. New Orleans fans groan. You know?

The Privateers, 18-8 and 23-7 the last two years, are missing their top four scorers from those teams—forwards Mark Petteway (17.4) and Oscar Taylor (16.4) and guards Claude Butler (12.3) and Wade Blundell (11). It should be mentioned that Petteway and Taylor each vanked away 7.9 rebounds.

It's clip and paste time for Coach Smith. His one returning starter is center John Harris (6 ppg., 4.1 rpg). Eugene "Beetle" Washington (2.6) better have himself a year at guard and soph Terrance Breaux (4.6) better have himself a year at forward. Or things won't be gay down yonder in New Orleans.

UNC-WILMINGTON

Seahawk fans will have to buy programs this year because of a 13-man roster, nine of them ain't been seen in these-here parts before. Coach Mel Gibson has brought in all these new faces (attached, presumably, to new bodies) in answer to 11-16 record. "We needed some new spirit," Gibson said.

The Seahawks also needed someone to take the place of Shawn Williams, a swingman who led them in scoring at 16.1. Gibson's hope is that 6-5 senior forward Carlos Kelly (10.8) and 6-foot senior guard Tony Anderson (also 10.8) can each raise his average 5 or 6 points to make up for the fact that Shawn's gone. Walk-on forward Terry Shiver, who led the team in rebounding (6.6), is being counted on too.

And then there are the new guys. Eight of the nine are from North Carolina. And eight of the nine are freshmen. Two scored more than 26 ppg in high school: Marvin Phillips, a 6-3 swingman from Jacksonville, N.C., and George Durham, a 6-2 guard from—where else?—Durham.

The last two national champions have been from this state. The odds are slightly against UNC-Wilmington making it three in a row. Or, as Gibson put it, "We will have to walk before we can run."

South Carolina State's "Home of Champions" claim is no empty boast. The Bulldogs' trophy case overflows with proof. Football, track and field, golf, tennis...just name the sport and chances are good that S.C. State owns a recent title.

The one glaring exception stands out like a sore thumb. The Bulldogs' efforts in men's basketball over the past few years have ranged between poor and mediocre.

Predicted order of finish:

- 1. North Carolina A&T; 2. Howard;
- 3. Delaware State:
- 4. Maryland-Eastern Shore;
- 5. South Carolina State:
- 6. Florida A&M;
- 7. Bethune-Cookman

To correct the "problem," S.C. State is bringing in still another head coach, Percy (Chico) Caldwell. But he will discover in a hurry what the old heads around know: Howard and North Carolina A&T dominate basketball in the Mid-Eastern Athletic Conference.

The other five MEAC members will play the same game this winter: chase Howard and A&T. None will come close to upsetting the balance of power.

Howard set a conference record by winning 11 straight league games last season before A&T captured the MEAC tournament title and a berth in the national playoffs. Both squads return three starters for 1983-84 and rank head and shoulders above the pack.

Joe Binion, North Carolina A&T's 6-8 senior forward, should be the MEAC's top individual and gives the Aggies a slight edge. After Howard, Maryland-Eastern Shore and Delaware State figure to battle for third place with the others—S.C. State, Florida A&M and Bethune-Cookman—trying to avoid cellar.

NORTH CAROLINA A&T

The Aggies suffered an unexpected loss with the departure of 6-9 center Juan Lanauze, Still, coach Don Corbett's cupboard is not exactly bare, and matching last season's 23-8 record is a reasonable expectation.

Senior Joe Binion and juniors Eric Boyd and Jimmy Brown provide a nice nucleus. The 6-8 Binion, who averaged 19.9 ppg and 11.1 rpg last season, anchors the frontcourt, and Brown and Boyd form the conference's best guard combination. Boyd scored at a 15.3 clip and Brown 10.1 ppg in helping the Aggies gain a spot in the NCAA tournament last year.

With Lanauze (12 ppg, 6.1 rpg) and Antoine Collins (8.7 ppg, 5.9 rpg) among the missing, Binion must carry more of the load inside. But he's capable of meeting the challenge; he's got a long list of honors.

In addition to several veterans, Corbett can look to a pair of freshmen for help. George Cale checks in with averages of 29 ppg and 11 rpg, and Claude Williams averaged 21.6 ppg and 8 rpg in the prep ranks.

The Aggies have fashioned a 63-25 record and participated in both the NCAA and National Invitation tournaments over the last three years. Look for more of the same.

HOWARD

The Bison turned a rebuilding season into a bonanza last winter, posting a 19-9 record with four first-time starters. Now, Howard will be playing with an inexperienced backcourt, but nobody is selling them short.

Coach A.B. Williamson, whose club has played in the MEAC tourney finals for six straight years, plans on an instant contribution from freshman Fred Hill to shore up the guard spots. Overall, seven players will compete for playing times in the backcourt.

Seniors Dave Wynn and Kevin Scott and soph Derek Carraciolo are proven performers up front. The 6-5 Scott and 6-6 Wynn will take up the scoring slack created by the graduation of Bernard Perry. Lack of size could be a problem, however; Caracciolo starts in the pivot at 6-8.

"We've improved our quickness," says Williamson, "and that's important. We had a good year without great size, but I think we need more quickness to compensate."

Williamson also beefed up his schedule, arranging December road dates with UCLA and Hawaii. "Those games will be tough," he said, "but they should help our recruiting and will help prepare us for the conference schedule." Even without help, the Bison will be plenty tough for MEAC foes.

DELAWARE STATE

If impressive credentials win games, look for the Hornets' stock to zoom. Joe Dean Davidson moves into the head coach's chair with a 224-40 record to his credit.

Davidson, who racked up that record at Washington's Dunbar High, replaces Ajac Triplett and inherits three starters among seven lettermen. He added six recruits.

Junior guard Danny Sapp (16.9 ppg) tops the list of veterans and joins Albert Anderson (9.5 ppg) in forming a sound backcourt. Walter Fields adds depth at guard.

The loss of 6-11 Ed Wallace (12.4 ppg, 7.1 rpg) leaves a gaping hole around the basket, and Davidson may go with freshmen in the forecourt. The No. 1 recruit is 6-6 power forward Terrance Henry, who averaged 18 ppg and 14 rpg in high school. Desmond Thomas (16 ppg, 7 rpg) and Ralph Baltimore (18 ppg, 8 rpg) also report with solid prep credentials.

MARYLAND-EASTERN SHORE

In two seasons since rejoining the MEAC, the Hawks' fortunes have steadily improved. Now, coach Kirkland Hall hopes his club is ready to climb over the .500 mark.

To reach that plateau, the Hawks must replace their top two scorers and No. 1 rebounder. Hall believes he has the personnel to get the job done...although lack of size could present difficulties.

Guard Donnell Boney (10.1 ppg), forward John Moorman (6.3 ppg, 6.8 rpg) and swingman Robert Boney (6.3 ppg) head the cast of veterans returning from a 5-7, 10-19 club. Moorman, a 6-7 sophomore, will be counted on to provide additional board strength.

Scoring punch could come from a pair of newcomers, James Black (22 ppg in high school) and Michael Ewing (15 ppg, 7 rpg in junior college). Frosh Ian Burzhoff (18 ppg, 11 rpg in high school) will get a quick trial inside.

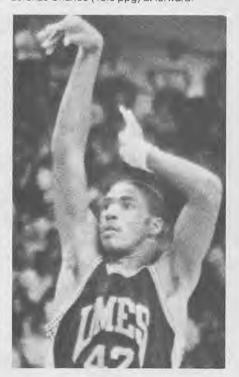

"We've lost some close ones over the last two years," says Hall. "Hopefully, we can turn some of those around. We should be better."

SOUTH CAROLINA STATE

The Bulldogs finished around the break-even mark again last season, but that 13-15 mark did not save coach Johnny Jones' job. Percy (Chico) Caldwell takes the reins with the same mandate given his predecessors; win a title.

That will be easier said than done immediately. Although the nucleus looks solid, the same cast struggled much of last season.

The top veteran is center Franklin Giles, who scored at 15.9 clip and his 12.8 rpg ranked second nationally in the final NCAA Division I statistics. Marvin Haynes, who splits time between forward and guard, returns with a 19.6 scoring average, and junior Ralph Miller (8.3 ppg, 154 assists) will play a key role in the backcourt. Replacements must be found for three-year starter Kirk Collier at guard and Lorenzo Chance (13.6 ppg) at forward.

In his 19 years as a sportswriter for The State, in Columbia S.C., Bob Spear has covered all college sports and contributed to several publications.

FLORIDA A&M

The Rattlers did enjoy some good moments in a most forgettable season. They knocked off North Carolina A&T and took Howard into overtime before bowing, for example. But they took plenty of lumps in a 7-21 year.

Coach Josh Giles sees three of his top four scorers returning and projects better days in Tallahassee. But his four previous teams have posted an overall record of 41-71.

Heading the list of veterans is center Michael Toomer, a 6-9 senior center who averaged 11.6 ppg and 9.9 rpg. Larry Broner, a 6-7 senior forward, supplies solid support after averaging 11.6 ppg and 8.1 rpg. Mervin Jones, a junior guard, scored 8.8 ppg and dealt out 67 assists last season and will top the list in the backcourt.

For the second straight year, the Rattlers lost a bunch of close games, dropping eight by four points or less over the last half of the 1982-83 season. Curbing that trend would be a giant step in their struggle to escape the second division.

BETHUNE-COOKMAN

After suffering through the worst of his 21 seasons at Bethune-Cookman last winter, veteran coach Cy McClairen will turn to youngsters in an effort to revive the Wildcats' fortunes. Obviously, no player's job is safe after 5-21 mark.

The Wildcats will pin their hopes for immediate improvement on Kevin Bradshaw, a 6-4 all-state performer from Gainesville, Fla. Whether Bradshaw (30.2 ppg, 10.5 rpg, 4.3 steals, 2.5 assists in high school) will be forward or guard remains to be seen. He'll start.

Experienced players abound, but guard Ronnie Weston is the only one guaranteed to start. Weston averaged 11 ppg and led the club in steals and assists. Kenny Boynton (8.6 ppg, 5.4 rpg) and Martin Jackson (6.4 ppg) are veteran starters at forward and 6-8 Greg Ross (3 ppg, 1.3 blocked shots) is back at center.

Providing the challenges will be a bevy of freshmen: 6-1 Ron Streater (12.2 ppg, 7.5 rpg) from Orlando, Fla., 6-4 John Williams from Quincy, Fla., and 6-3 Terrence Montgomery (17.0 ppg, 10.4 rpg) from Brunswick, Ga. All won numerous prep honors.

Kentucky won the Southeastern Conference championship a year ago with Sam Bowie on the bench. With Bowie on the floor, the Wildcats are Final Four material.

The All-American seven-footer missed two seasons with a stress fracture, complications, a bone graft and recovery. Sam's desire for a successful return locks in perfectly with coach Joe B. Hall's national title ambitions. Joe got a contract extension and a raise after last year but money isn't the same as the flags of honor that fly at Rupp Arena.

Louisiana State will challenge for the SEC championship. The Tigers have unusual fire-power plus the bonus of guard Derrick Taylor, back from a year's leave of absence over academics.

Georgia stunned the country last March. It swept through the SEC tournament, knocked out St. John's and North Carolina in the East Regional and stormed into Albuquerque. There, the dream ended.

The Bulldogs are awake again . . . but they'll contend.

Sensational recruiting has made Auburn into a potential league power. Alabama, despite the loss of guard Ennis Whatley to the NBA, will be competitive.

Tennessee will slip some. It was not able to replace All-American Dale Ellis. Ole Miss, a surprise last winter, will be nearer to normal. Florida signed guards and is coming up. Vanderbilt and Mississippi State make this the strongest league, from top to bottom, in the country. Isn't that what Al McGuire said?

KENTUCKY

No college front line provides the potential of 7-1 Sam Bowie, 6-11 Melvin Turpin and 6-8 Kenny Walker. Two years ago, Bowie was 17.4 ppg and 9.1 rpg, excellent on defense and nimble enough to play forward. He has since been a medical case.

Turpin, 15.2 ppg and 6.3 rpg, was at times dominating as a junior. He rejected NBA overtures because he thinks the Wildcats can win it all.

Marvin West is sports editor of the Knoxville News-Sentinel and president of the U.S. Basketball Writers Association.

Walker was MVP at the National Sports Festival. He is agile and quick. He may be best all-around in blue. While foes worry about what to do with the tall trees, Walker will score high on short jumpers and weakside rebounding. Defensively, Walker can guard a forward or a center. He leaps well and plays very unselfishly, Walker is a sophomore.

Predicted order of finish:

- 1. Kentucky; 2. Louisiana State;
- 3. Georgia; 4. Auburn; 5. Alabama;
- 6. Tennessee; 7. Mississippi;
- 8. Florida; 9. Vanderbilt;
- 10. Mississippi State

Jim Master, 6-5 senior, is the shooting guard. He had 12.5 ppg and converted 81.2 percent of his free throws. He can drive or bomb from long range. Dickie Beal, 5-11 senior, has finally inherited the playmaking role. Beal is the key to team success. If he looks after the ball, directs traffic and feeds the giants, Kentucky won't lose more than three or four.

Wildcat depth is good...6-9 Bret Bearup and 6-7 Winston Bennett can play. Top signee James Blackmon, 6-4 scorer from Indiana, showed well in the Sports Festival. He is a future All-America type.

LOUISIANA STATE

Colorful, controversial coach Dale Brown expects to do better than 19-13 this time. His Tigers struggled with problems last season but the outlook is better. There was a key loss in Howard Carter but the Bengals had some great additions. Five freshmen bring combined prep averages of 110.4 points and 61 rebounds!

Leonard Mitchell, 6-7 senior, is the No. 1 Tiger. He scored 14.7 and rebounded 9.1 He is the type the NBA takes in the first round. Other returning regulars are 6-8 sophomore Jerry Reynolds (10.6 ppg, 6.2 rpg) 6-6 senior John Tudor and 6-2 senior Johnny Jones. Derrick Taylor, starting guard in 1982, is back in good graces. He contributed 14.8 points and broke up opponents' breaks. Tudor is a floor leader, a role player, a sometimes defensive specialist. Jones has great speed.

LSU newcomers are exciting. Since the team lacks a genuine center, 6-10½ Damon Vance has a chance to start. Rookie Nikita Wilson is certain to contribute and could crash the opening lineup. Dennis Brown, Oliver Brown and Anthony Wilson bring outstanding prep credentials.

Even without 6-9 Tom Curry, denied eligibility because of academic shortages, LSU had a strong recruiting roundup. The mix of experience and new talent ought to be just about right. Brown is fired up.

Mississippi's Johnny Rebel (Matt Andrews) is a fans' favorite

GEORGIA

We'll soon see if last season was a miracle, never to come this way again. The Bulldogs were 9-9 in the SEC but overpowering at the end. They zoomed to heights above anything in previous school history. This has been a big-name football institution but Hugh Durham changed all that at tournament time.

Gone are good workers Terry Fair and Lamar Heard. Returning are three regulars, 6-5 senior Vern Fleming, 6-6 senior James Banks and 6-1 junior Gerald Crobsy.

Hoping to win starting jobs are 6-6 Richard Corhen and 7-2 Troy Hitchcock with decent touch and a broomstick physique. Guard Donald Hartry, 6-5 Horace McMillan and 6-6 Joe Ward can help. Key signees are 6-1 Melvin Howard, 6-7 Dwayne Rainey and 6-9 Johnny Smith.

Fleming and Banks are the stars. Fleming, best guard in the league, averaged 16.9 ppg and scored inside and out. He needs but three assists to get the school record. Vern has quick hands to stab enemy passes. He is smooth

Banks, 14 ppg and 5.4 rpg, is a battler at both ends. He has started every game since he came to Georgia and is on his way to the NBA

The question is at center. Durham has never had a conventional big post player at Georgia. If he makes Hitchcock into one in time for this season, it'll be his finest coaching effort.

AUBURN

Sonny Smith has been making a living with good effort, funny stories and a so-so record. He is about to become a very successful coach. Outstanding recruiting, among the best in the country, has transformed Smith's Tigers into rippers and tearers.

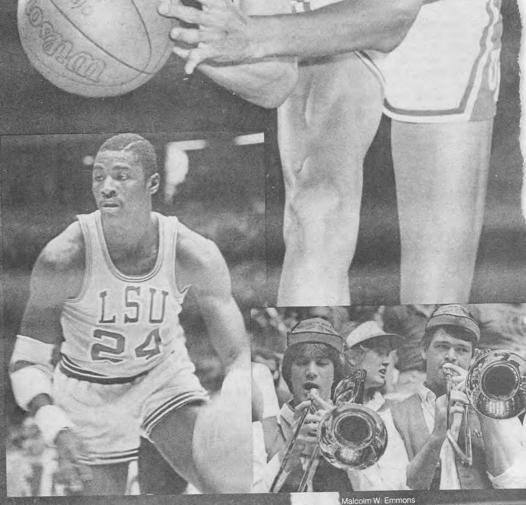

Rugged Charles Barkley, 6-6, 272-pound junior, returns as the big man at both ends of the court. Barkley has twice led the SEC in rebounding. Last player to do it back-to-back was Bernard King. Barkley gets 14.4 ppg and 9.5 rpg. He hit 64.4 percent of his field-goal tries. Charles is all man on defense. He takes charge, and doesn't go down.

Vanderbilt guard Phil Cox

Chuck Person, 6-8 sophomore, looks more like a basketball player. He contributed 9.3 and 4.6 as a beginner and is already an all-conference type. Paul Daniels served up 134 assists last season and may keep the playmaking role.

Carey Holland, 6-7 junior college recruit from national champ San Jacinto, is a selective shooter and potential rebounding force. Prep star Frank Ford, 6-4, brings averages of 26.4 and 21.5 to Auburn. Terry Martin, 6-6, Michael Rutledge, 6-10, and Gerald White are expected to play as freshmen.

"I think our team will be improved, in inside power and overall quickness," said Smith. "The recruiting class more than filled our needs."

ALABAMA

The Crimson Tide, hoping to recover from an 8-10 conference record, suffered the additional discouragement of the premature loss of guard Ennis Whatley to the NBA.

Encouraging are returnees Bobby Lee Hurt, 6-9 junior, and Buck Johnson, 6-7 sophomore. Hurt produced 15.3 ppg and 8.9 rpg. He is a picture-perfect athlete who can run and jump. Coach Wimp Sanderson keeps hoping Hurt will become more consistent in intensity. Everybody agrees Bobby Lee has great potential.

Johnson showed his with 8.3 ppg and 4.5 rpg as a freshman. He looked even better in the summer Sports Festival. The Tide looks to part-time starter Terry Williams, 6-8 senior, and 6-11 Mark Farmer for inside experience. Darrel Neal, 6-8 transfer from Oregon State, may help.

Top forward signees are 6-8 Jerome White and 6-6 Bruce Pettway. Eric Richardson, 6-3 senior, is the probable point guard. Prep star Terry Coner, 25 ppg, will compete for time.

TENNESSEE

There is no Volunteer to replace All-American Dale Ellis. It seems there is no place for the Orangemen to go except down.

Don DeVoe consistently puts his team into the NCAA tournament. He did it last year, despite a 9-9 record in the league race. To do it again will be a sizable accomplishment... even with the return of four regulars.

Michael Brooks, 6-2 senior guard, leads the team. He had 14.1 ppg, mostly from long range, and hit 82.4 percent from the foul line. He is an excellent zone shooter. Tyrone Beaman, 5-11 senior, is the other guard. He had 184 assists as a junior. Many passes went to Filis.

Willie Burton, 6-7 senior, is the most dependable inside player at 9.1 ppg and 8.1 rpg. Dan Federman, 6-10, is the center unless the game gets too fast.

The fifth starter might be Tyrone Harper or Kevin Woods or Jerald Hyatt or Rob Jones or Kirk Naler or top signee Fred Jenkins, a 6-3 wing guard with the mark of future stardom.

DeVoe has the advantage of preparing teams that seldom beat themselves. The Vols will play intelligent offense and aggressive man defense. The best they can do is work on the boards.

MISSISSIPPI

Lee Hunt received coach-of-the-year recognition for producing one of the surprise teams in the SEC in his first season on the job. He will be hard pressed to give an encore better than his 10-8 beginning.

Ole Miss recruited well, including junior college scoring champion Braxton Clark, 6-7 forward out of DeAnza, Calif. Clark had 35.4 ppg and 12.2 rpg in the Golden Gate League. Sylvester Kincheon, 6-11 Texan, is another prize addition. He blocked 121 shots as a prep senior. Joe Ayers, 6-5 signee out of Birmingham, is also a potential starter.

Returning regulars for the Rebels are 6-4 junior Eric Laird, (11.2 ppg), 6-5 junior Michael Partridge (8 ppg, 5.8 rpg) and 6-0 senior guard Cecil Dowell, capable floor leader. Guard Brad Pierce and forward George Buckner and reliable reserves.

Coach Hunt expects the Rebs to be down a little because of shortage in experience. He thinks this squad has more capable players and more all-around talent than his previous team.

FLORIDA

An excellent front line, second-best in the SEC, kept the Gators from dying last season. The team was 5-13 in the league without guards.

Available and still competitive are 6-8 senior Ronnie Williams, (18.6 ppg, 8.8 rpg), 6-8 junior Eugene McDowell (16.5 ppg, 8.8 rpg), and 6-5 senior Vernon Delancy, (12.9 ppg and 7.9 rpg).

Williams is already Florida's school-record scorer. McDowell hit 64.6 percent of his fieldgoal attempts as a sophomore. Delancy served up 165 assists.

Charles Griffin, 6-6, and Nabe Palmer, 5-11, are returnees who hope to help but Gator improvement depends on freshmen Darryl Grasham, a 6-4 big guard, and 6-0 magician Andrew Moten, proud owner of a 28-point prep average with 78.1 percent floor accuracy. Moten averaged more than 10 assists for a good team. Joe Lawrence, 6-5, is another probable helper.

"I'm excited about this year," says coach Norm Sloan. "Now, we'll be able to do some things we haven't done."

VANDERBILT

The Commodore squad of 14 includes 10 freshmen and sophomores. Coach C.M. Newton is building calmly toward the future. He had a surprising 9-9 record in the SEC last season. It included two victories over state rival Tennessee. That is enough to keep the Vanderbilt faithful encouraged.

Newton lost his best horse, Ted Young, but has three returning regulars in guards Phil Cox and Al McKinney and 6-9 senior forward Jeff Turner. Cox, 5-11 junior, is a slashing driver who can hit the long jumper. He had 14.5 ppg and was among the national leaders in free-throw accuracy (89.7). Turner contributed 13.2 ppg and 5.5 rpg.

Bobby Westbrooks, in all 33 games as a sub forward last season, has grown up to be a probable starter. Brett Burrow, 6-10 sophomore, may be the No. 1 center. Jimmy Lenz and Scott McCabe are important depth.

Top recruits are 6-10 Will Perdue and Steve Reece. Newton's freshman class happens to be all white. He has made a point of explaining that it certainly wasn't by design.

MISSISSIPPI STATE

Be sure the Bulldogs will battle to avoid the SEC basement. Coach Bob Boyd produced a stunning 9-9 record last season but his post-season losses were severe...Jeff Malone with 26.9 ppg, Terry Lewis at 15.2 and rebounding leader Kalpatrick Wells.

Boyd responded with good recruiting. He signed California junior college forward Jeff Wulff and two prep stars with gaudy statistics, 6-7½ Anthony Robinson (24.1 ppg, 15.2 rpg), and 6-4 Todd McCaskill (30.3 ppg, 10.6 rpg).

Five experienced Bulldogs will be factors this winter. Senior guard Butch Pierre, 6-3, contributed 7.4 ppg and 108 assists last season. Chauncey Robinson, 6-4 sophomore, showed flashes of fire and played enough to produce 5.3 ppg and 3.9 rpg.

Kelvin Hildreth, 6-7 senior imported from California, will hopefully do better than 5.3 points and rebounds. Mackey Whyte and Richard Person will contend for starting rank.

Ralph Sampson did take his final exams, and Ralph Sampson was the tallest, as ever, graduate in line when the University of Virginia seniors walked slowly across the tree-lined lawn on May 22, 1983. Now he was ready for a career in professional basketball, where 7foot-4 means dollars in large and extra long figures. Now he's the pride of Houston, helping that town get over its NCAA final setback

The Atlantic Coast Conference has traded a senior, the Big Guy, for a freshman guard who starred on Baltimore's national champion Dunbar High team. He's Tyrone Bogues, already being labeled "The Human Assist," and Tyrone stands, on his tippy toes, 5-foot-3. He enrolled at Wake Forest. It means, to be yardstick truthful, the ACC lost 25 inches in the deal.

But that was about all, because this could be a banner campaign for the league that

After all, on the plus side, it has the back-toback NCAA champions, and not the same school, either. Only the Big Ten matches that, and it was 1940-41 (Indiana, Wisconsin) when the whole thing started.

North Carolina, coached as ever by Dean Smith, will make the challenge for three in a row. Two All-Americans, 6-9 Sam Perkins and 6-6 Michael Jordan, provide the Tar Heel impetus, and there are three freshmen the envy of the entire college recruiting world. Coach Smith, who invented the game along with his cousin Naismith, has 496 victories in 22 seasons, and at age 52 the 500th milestone is about December 10. His NCAA records include 13 consecutive 20-plus-win seasons, first or second in regular season conference standings for 17 seasons. Carolina won the 1982 national title, so that's off his back.

Predicted order of finish:

- 1. North Carolina; 2. Maryland;
- 3. Wake Forest; 4. N.C. State;
- 5. Virginia; 6. Georgia Tech;
- 7. Duke; 8. Clemson

Lefty Driesell goes with the same cards that made the NCAA playoffs for the third straight season, and it's a good hand. Adrian Branch, Ben Coleman, and the crew will challenge during the regular season. Driesell has never won the ACC title, which comes in the March tournament.

From there, the battle is tough and tenacious. It's not attempting to pick third place, but trying to avoid eighth place. A year ago STREET & SMITH'S forecast, "N.C. State could be the leading challenger," and by March it certainly was. Wake Forest, with new blood, the Wolfpack and Virginia, without the Big Guy, form the contending contingent. Georgia Tech, Duke and Clemson become the second row contingent. It's going to be that kind of year in a family that lost two feet one inch in just one player transaction.

NORTH CAROLINA

No sooner do the Tar Heels win a national championship and almost make the Final Four again, than they appear in the top levels again. Coach Dean Smith, coming to his 23rd season and 500 victories assured (496-153), has practically the same strong, talented squad, and, now get this, three of the nation's top recruits. Every time Coach Smith steps on the court, he goes for some kind of record or another. So Tar Heels are perennial favorites.

Lost is Jim Braddock, the point guard, who shared the job with 6-4 junior Buzz Peterson, early injury, and 6-4 sophomore Curtis Hunter, either of whom could assume the role position this year. Unless it might be 6-3 soph Steve Greensboro-based Smith Barrier has written another book on basketball on Tobacco Road that will be available this season.

Hale. Unless it might be Kenny Smith from Archbishop Malloy, coming in as a freshman.

If you put 6-6 junior Michael Jordan (20 ppg, 2nd ACC scorer) in the back court, you're a smart coach. If you put Michael on the frontline, you're still smart. He played the 84-foot court. On the frontline will again be 6-9 senior Sam Perkins, like Jordan an All-American (16.9 ppg); 6-8 senior Matt Doherty, the coach on the floor; and 6-11 soph Brad Dougherty. Or the freshmen: 6-10 Joe Wolf of Wisconsin or 6-9 Dave Popson of Western Pennsylvania.

Carolina is loaded. One rival coach, at a summer basketball camp, said any of the Tar Heel first three teams could be conference champions. Dean Smith won't say that.

MARYLAND

The seniors will be going to their fourth NCAA tournament, but they'd rather have no part of Phi Slama Jama as they did last March. All the Terrapins who played that game will return, and Coach Lefty Driesell snarls optimism for this Maryland team. It also has new blood, as each year Driesell has found a starter from rookie camp. Although the front line, a deep one, remains intact, look for 6-8 Terry Long of Richmond, Va. to work into the headlines soon.

The 6-8 junior Adrian Branch (18.7 ppg, 5.2 rpg) has led the club scoring for two seasons, No. 4 in the conference, an excellent shooter. He teams with 6-9 senior Ben Coleman (15.1 ppg, 8.1 rpg) and 6-8 soph Len Bias, backed up by 6-9 Mark Fothergill and 6-6 Herman Veal, both seniors. Or 6-8 soph Ed Farmer, nagged by injuries.

Coleman and 6-5 junior Jeff Adkins (121 assists) started all 30 games last season, Adkins as both point and swing guard. Senior Steve Rivers and sophomore Jeff Baxter vie for the spot Adkins won't play, but even there Driesell has a promising prospect, a slender 6-5 guard from North Carolina, Keith Gatlin (prep, 25 ppg, 9.8 rpg, 6.2 assists).

It is still a young Terrapin team, only Coleman a senior among the starters. The Terrapins beat N.C. State twice, split with North Carolina, no mean achievement. After recovering from the shock of losing the opener to Penn State, they beat UCLA and Notre Dame. Now, for more.

WAKE FOREST

The Deacons achieved 20 wins and the NIT Final Four, the latter as a major plus in Coach Carl Tacy's program. And now they start his 12th season with a definite role as contender with a young and experienced club, an unusual combination in the ACC. It has a senior touch, as the Deacons of two years ago, and it has Coach Tacy's brightest recruiting results.

"Certainly this recruiting year gives us a great base of talent, something we haven't had before," says the coach, who doesn't make such statements without meaning. Wake came in second to Kentucky for the services of 6-8 Todd May a year ago, but he transferred to the Winston-Salem school in January. May's good friend, 6-7 Mark Cline, prep player of the year in West Virginia, will be a Deacon, following in the footsteps of his father Herb. Then there's that midget from Baltimore, 5-3 Tyrone Bogues, already tabbed "The Human Assist."

Much playing time, even starting roles, await this trio, but four regulars return as well: 6-9 senior Anthony Teachey (10.1 ppg, 8.5 rpg, 3rd in ACC), 6-6 senior John Toms (13.8 ppg), 6-3 senior Danny Young (12.8 ppg) and 6-2 junior Delaney Rudd (12.8 ppg). That is certainly balanced scoring, with sophomore Kenny Green (9 ppg) also in starting potential.

The Deacons, for a change, have a bench, which appeared in the NIT run, and the rookies want to be starters. Soon.

N.C. STATE

It seems ridiculous, possibly even stupid to demote the NCAA national champions to a "best of the rest" role in the Atlantic Coast. Coach Jim Valvano is still there and, even though the coach cannot play, under normal conditions, he might be considered a player. But he won't have that senior triumvirate, what were their names? Valvano got on the road recruiting, he learned to like the road with that tour of the West, the Wolfpack's easternmost NCAA tournament site being the finals, Albuquerque.

North Carolina's national championship bid will be led by deepthinking Dean Smith, bemused Sam Perkins, intensive Michael Jordan.

The Wolfpack that comes alive now will probably have 6-11 junior Cozell McQueen (5.5 rpg), 6-7 junior Lorenzo Charles (8.1 ppg, 6 rpg) and 6-7 senior Alvin Battle on the front line. They are backed by 6-8 junior Dinky Proctor and 6-7 junior Mike Warren.

Terry Gannon, who led the country in three-point field goals, now a junior, will battle 6-4 soph Ernie Myers (11.2 ppg) and injured 6-0 soph George McClain for the regular guard positions. There is also 5-6 Spud Webb from Midland (Tex.) JC (49 dunks and 37 blocks.) The Dematha Connection continues with 6-7 Bennie Bolton, all-metro (15.5 ppg), teaming with 6-8 Russell Pierre of New York, 6-7 Rodney Butts of Atlanta and potential 6-10 Terry Shackleford of Denton in North Carolina.

Opening games will be important, but Jim Valvano must remember. Phi Packa Attacka got strong in March-April.

VIRGINIA

Nobody has to mention this little fact around Charlottesville: Big Guy is gone. Ralph Sampson played superb basketball for four seasons, but now Coach Terry Holland realizes there is life after death. The Cavaliers face that rebuilding with a lot of materials, brick and mortar and all that stuff. Replacing Sampson and Craig Robinson at forward will be difficult.

Defending the conference regular season co-title Coach Holland retains three starters, including both 6-8 junior Jim Miller (9.6 ppg) and 6-5 junior Tim Mullen who split a forward position in the playoffs, after Mullen's ACC tournament injury. The front line must be filled by 6-7 senior Kenton Edelin, 6-6 junior Dan Merrifield or one of the freshmen: 6-8 Tom Sheehan of Rochester, N.Y. (prep, 27 ppg. 12 rpg) and 6-10 Olden Polynice of All Hallows. That's a great name, Olden Polynice of All Hallows. Goes well on a marquee.

Othell Wilson (13.6 ppg), All-ACC as a soph, heads the senior guard corps, along with 6-5 Rick Carlisle (10.9 ppg), supported as usual by the speedy, clever 5-10 senior Ricky Stokes. They had 321 assists among them, and the Cavaliers shot an ACC-leading 53.2 percent.

It will have to be a more cautious Virginia game, not that Coach Holland opened up the dikes with Sampson. It will have to survive without a bench, for all practical purposes. But Othell Wilson can drive an enemy stark, raving mad.

GEORGIA TECH

What more can a coach do? Bobby Cremins established the Jackets as a formidable conference foe last season, a 13-15 overall record and gaining. He brought in 6-0 Mark Price, who became ACC rookie of the year as well as the scoring king (20.3 ppg). For all this, Bobby was selected conference coach of the year, ahead of people like Smith, Holland, Valvano, and you've heard of them.

North Carolina's Sam Perkins puts one in, teammate Matt Doherty drives on Adrian Branch.

Price, who engineered Tech's first-ever tournament win (over Maryland, overtime), will have a working partner in the attack. Coach Cremins recruited 6-4 Bruce Dalrymple of Vermont, one of the East's bluest chippers (29 ppg, 19 rpg), and together the pair can make Tech even more dangerous. A senior, 6-2 Anthony Byrd (8.9 ppg), provides stability, along with freshman Craig Neal, point guard.

Two junior college transfers, 6-11 Yvon Joseph and 6-6 Scott Petway, compete with returning regulars 6-9 soph John Salley (11.5 ppg), 6-5 soph Danny Pearson (8.5 ppg) and 6-10 soph Tim Harvey. Only losses came up front, where several players shared time.

Coach Cremins had to hold the ball his first year in the ACC, he allowed players, or Mark Price, to bounce it a few times last season. Current strength remains in the backcourt, but ACC honors, like their tobacco heritage, go with what's up front. The coach knows that.

DUKE

Freshmen live in fear in the ACC, as the Duke Little Devils learned last winter. But Coach Mike Krzyzewski's kids are now sophomores, with considerable knowledge of the pitfalls in the league. They still seek that big guy in the Mike Gminski mold, and whether the Dukes located him in 7-2 Martin Nessley of Whitehall, Ohio, remains in the computer. As a prep he was 20 ppg, 12 rpg.

Maybe, of course, another rookie will be just as important to the rebuilding Blue Devils, who tried four freshmen and Tom Emma last season, finished seventh in the ACC and won only 11 games. Johnny Dawkins made several freshman All-Americans, more essential the 6-2 guard was fifth in ACC scoring (18.1 ppg). He might be moved to the Blue Devils' shooting guard, opening space for another incoming freshman, Tommy Amaker of Falls Church, Va., but he's just 6-0, 150.

Coach K hit the roads and redid his team completely last year. Four freshmen started, Dawkins and a frontcourt trio of 6-8 Mark Alarie (13 ppg), 6-8 Jay Bilas (8.8 ppg) and pleasantly surprising David Henderson (9.1 ppg). Dawkins went 38.5 minutes per game, dished out 134 assists.

The bench is still meager, meaning 6-7 Dan Meagher, and 6-9 Todd Anderson when Bill Jackman went home to Nebraska. Defense must cut down on opponents' 51.6 percent shooting average.

CLEMSON

About the best thing that can be said about the Tigers' latest hunt is that Vincent Hamilton at least got to work out most of the season. When Coach Bill Foster took the team to the Alaska Shootout, they held a contending role in the tough ACC. When Hamilton broke a bone, the Tigers were left gnawing for bones. Dead last, they were 2-12 in the league and managed only 6-8 junior Raymond Jones in double figures (11.5 ppg). Hamilton, 2nd All-ACC as a sophomore, was scoring 15.3 ppg when cut down.

It caused considerable disorder in the Foster scheme of things, having to rearrange the backcourt. Returning are the veteran guard pair, Marc Campbell and that guy who is also the starting Clemson quarterback, Mike Eppley, both 6-2 seniors. Eppley, a tough competitor, started 18 games after the football team returned from Tokyo. These Tigers travelled.

Basically, the same front is there: 6-6 senior Murray Jarman, 6-7 junior David Shaffer (9.1 ppg) and Jones, and they should get some relief from juco transfer Glenn Corbitt and twin recruits Harvey and Horace Grant, both 6-8, along with 6-7 senior Clarke Bynum.

After a 5-3 start and Hamilton getting hurt, Clemson experienced a horrendous January-February spell, suffering 4-16 in that won-lost column everybody points to.

ACC aces are (top to bottom)
Cozell McQueen, Lorenzo Charles,
Othell Wilson, Mark Price and Anthony Teachy. Watch 'em go.

mid-american

by Dave Woolford THE TOLEDO BLADE

lost a lot of firepower.

A basically guard-oriented conference last season, the Mid-American Conference has seen the graduation of backcourt aces Melvin McLaughlin, Ray McCallum, and Marlow Central Michigan's McLaughlin led the MAC in scoring last season with a 24.1 average. McCallum, of Ball State, was the conference Player of the Year, while McClain led Eastern Michigan in scoring and ranked eighth in the MAC.

Predicted order of finish:

- 1. Bowling Green; 2. Ohio U.;
- 3. Toledo; 4. Miami of Ohio;
- 5. Ball State; 6. Northern Illinois;
- 7. Central Michigan;
- 8. Eastern Michigan;
- 9. Kent State;
- 10. Western Michigan

Those three were also the first Mid-American players to be selected in NBA draft.

But there wasn't a total obliteration of "Mc's" in the MAC. Toledo's M.C. Burton, a transfer from Michigan, will become eligible this season

The emphasis will swing toward the dominant forwards this season as, again, MAC schools failed to lure top quality centers.

It's possible that the final MAC standings last season will be duplicated, especially at the upper echelon where Bowling Green and Ohio are expected to prevail with Toledo close behind.

A lot of schools will have to rely on freshmen and transfers in an effort to rebuild.

BOWLING GREEN

Falcon coach John Weinert has four starters returning from a team that won the conference title last season with a 15-3 record, equalling the MAC record for most league victories.

But BG has lost its quarterback in point guard David Greer, who scored over 800 points in his career and broke the conference and school career assists records with 768.

Greer averaged about 37 minutes of playing time and was probably more important to his team than any other guard in the MAC.

Sophomore Brian Miller is the first choice to replace Greer with junior Al Thomas and junior wingman Keith Taylor also figuring in plans.

Miller is the quickest of the three, Thomas is a steady player, while Taylor is best shooter.

David Jenkins, a 6-5 forward who might be the best all-around player in the conference, heads the list of returnees. He'll be joined by 6-6 forward Colin Irish, who survived two knee

Dave Woolford of The Blade has been one of the most respected reporters on the Mid-American Conference scene for some time.

Take the "Mc's" out of the MAC and you've operations to play in 30 games last season and lead the Falcons in rebounding. He was second to Jenkins in scoring. Taylor came on strong to also average in double figures. Bill Faine, 6-7, returns at center. Four reserves are also back to give BG a strong bench.

The Falcons are 46-20 in MAC games over the last four years, finishing second in 1980, tied for first in 1981, second in 1982, and first again last season in winning their first outright MAC title in 15 years.

The Bobcats finished second to BG, three games behind the Falcons, and they also must find replacements in the backcourt with the loss of Jeff Thomas and Eric Hilton.

One of the replacements will be sophomore Bob Tatum

Ohio's big and talented frontcourt returns intact, led by center John Devereaux, the best big man in the conference last season.

Devereaux was the top rebounder in the conference with a 9.8 average and was 12th in scoring. His excellent touch from the outside gave opposing defenses problems Forwards Vic Alexander and Eddie Hicks are both talented, but Hicks must contribute more scoring.

The Bobcats posted a 23-9 overall record last season and won the post-season MAC tournament, defeating BG for the first time in three meetings between the two schools.

OU coach Danny Nee has turned the program around in three seasons. He was 7-20 his first year and 13-14 in 1982. Nee was named MAC Coach of The Year last season.

TOLEDO

Rocket coach Bob Nichols is in search of a center who can rebound after losing 6-7 Mitch Adamek.

Adamek was second in the conference in rebounding, with 9 per game, and was UT's second-leading scorer (12.7).

Burton could step into Toledo's motion offense and contribute in a lot of ways. Nichols feels the 6-5 forward could be his team's best defensive player.

The Rockets will probably need instant help from at least one of their incoming freshmen. The freshman most likely to succeed is 6-8 Blake Burnham, a first-team all-state selection from lowa

Nichols experimented with a number of big men coming off the bench last season, but none responded consistently. That was the main reason he was forced to use a threeguard offense the latter part of the season.

UT is not at a loss for guards with starters Tim Reiser, Jay Gast, and John Green back. But speed and quickness are not their forte.

Forward Ken Epperson, a junior is expected to continue to be one of the most forceful players in the MAC. He was fifth in rebounding, sixth in scoring, fourth in field goal percentage, and sixth in free throw percentage

If backup big men, such as 6-10 center Barry Sonnenberg and 6-8 Jim Lange, respond this season the Rockets should be very competitive.

MIAMI

Here is still another team that lost its leading scorer, guard Craig Tubbs (14.9 ppg)

The Redskins must find more scoring this season as they were ninth in team offense.

Ron Harper, a 6-6 forward who was Freshman of The Year in the MAC last season, should help there. He averaged just under 13 points and 7 rebounds last season.

Other returning standouts include forward Chuck Dahn (3.5) and Tony Lehman (1.7) center John Marx (9.3), and guards Billy Lewis (6.6), Chuck Stahl (4.6), and John Willoughby (4-1)

How did Miami finish in a three-way tie with Ball State and Toledo for third in the MAC last season? They did it with defense and it appears their success again will be measured by how well they hold down the opposition.

The Redskins ranked second in team defense, yielding an average of 62.9 points per game. Ohio led in that department with an average yield of 60 points.

As always, the Redskins will face a tough pre-season schedule. It's probably the most difficult of any MAC school. Among their early opponents are Indiana, Purdue, Dayton and Cincinnati. Miami will also participate in the Milwaukee Classic which includes Davidson and Marquette.

BALL STATE

This is the P.M.—Post McCallum—era for the Cardinals. With their 5-9 guard they won two MAC titles and finished third twice.

Also departed are starting forwards Dave Scott and Jon Mansbury. The 6-9 Scott and 6-7 Mansbury, along with McCallum, accounted for more than 65 per cent of Ball State's scoring and 51 per cent of its rebounding.

Larry Jones and Marcus Lacey are the only two returning starters, but BSU coach Al Brown has an assortment of players returning with varying degrees of experience.

A lot of BSU's success will revolve around the response of four transfers.

Heading that list are Indiana all-stars Mike LaFave and Rick Rowray, both of whom played at Indiana University before transferring to BSU. The 6-9 LaFave spent two campaigns at IU, while the 6-6 Rowray suffered a broken arm after his first game with the Hoosiers two seasons ago.

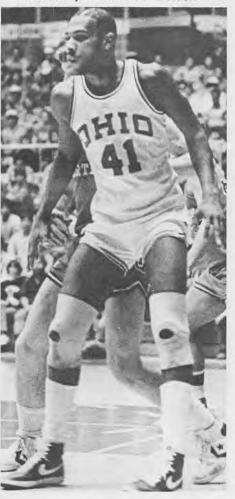

NORTHERN ILLINOIS

The Huskies will be built around Tim Dillon, but he probably won't be the center.

For the first time in recent memory, NIU will lack a dominating middleman. All the more reason why the team's success will revolve around the 6-8 All-America forward. He was the Huskies' leading scorer (18.9) last season and second leading rebounder (7.5).

Dillon, a first team all-MAC selection and a first-team member of the conference all-academic team, will be surrounded by returning starters Carl Armato and Brad Waller in the backcourt and power forward Bob Thomas.

The loss of 6-10 center Ron Lindfors and his 13.8 scoring average and 8.4 rebounding average underscores Dillon's responsibility. Thomas and letter-winner Stan Adams will get a good look at center.

Among the new players this season, which include three freshmen and two transfers, is 6-5, 240-pound Dennis Douglas, a consensus all-stater last season at Quincy High School.

CENTRAL MICHIGAN

While the Chippewas had one of the most prolific scorers in conference history in McLaughlin, they were never successful.

In "Sugar's" four seasons, the Chippewas were 6-10, 5-11, 4-12, and 5-13 in MAC.

Central could be a much improved team this season with more of a team concept. A good frontline consisting of forwards Derek Boldon and Mark Anderson, along with center Kim Thompson, returns.

CMU coach Dick Parfitt came up with a couple of excellent freshman recruits in 6-6 Dan Majerle and Eric Nordmann. Majerle averaged 37.5 points and 16 rebounds at Traverse City, Mich., High School.

EASTERN MICHIGAN

Like Central Michigan, Eastern returns a good-looking frontline in forwards Phil Blevins and Ricky Buttrom and center Vince Giles.

This, too, is a team in search of guards and added scoring. Only two of last season's top five scorers return, and EMU ranked ninth in scoring margin and field goal percentage.

Mike McCaskill, a first-team Class A Michigan all-stater is the best of four recruits.

Just when it appeared that Eastern coach Jim Boyce had the program turned around following the Hurons' first winning season (15-12) in over 10 years in 1981-82, EMU went flat last season with a 12-16 mark that included an 8-10 MAC record.

KENT STATE

Coach Jim McDonald probably did more with his available talent than any other MAC coach.

In his first year as head coach, following 12 years as an assistant coach at Toledo, Mc-Donald took the Golden Flashes to a 9-9 conference campaign with a 15-13 overall mark. That was good for sixth place in the Mid-Am. That followed on heels of a 10-16 record.

But McDonald must replace four of his top seven scorers, including his leading scorer, guard-forward Dave Zeigler. Among those who graduated were three of the team's top four rebounders.

KSU has guards Anthony Grier and Larry Robbins back, along with center and leading rebounder Marvin Robinson. Four recruits should get a long, hard look as McDonald searches for forwards.

WESTERN MICHIGAN

The Broncos are ticketed to be "much better" this season, the only team in the conference to receive such high marks.

But all Western can do is get better. By how much remains to be seen.

Western was last in the MAC last season with a 3-15 record and was 5-23 overall. The Broncos ranked last in every conference statistical category.

Second-year coach Vernon Payne has all of his key players returning, including the team's leading scorer, guard Cordell Eley (18.I).

Dane Suttle could have solved a lot of problems for the West Coast Athletic Conference if he had only made those free throws

You may remember them. They were the ones that would have eliminated North Carolina State from the NCAA tournament, but didn't. The Waves led by six points with a minute left in overtime, blew that lead and lost in the second extra period.

Predicted order of finish:

- 1. Pepperdine; 2. Santa Clara:
- 3. Saint Mary's; 4. Gonzaga;
- 5. San Diego; 6. Portland;
- 7. Loyola-Marymount;

North Carolina State went on to win the national championship. The Waves, and their conference compatriots, sat at home wondering what to do now.

That loss cost the conference both badlyneeded money and even more needed prestige, at a time when there is a vacuum in the West Coast basketball scene. With San Francisco still two years away from rejoining the conference after standing itself in the corner for multiple transgressions, the WCAC is trying to figure out just where it is, and how does it get out of where that is.

Pepperdine, the two-time defending champion, is without three important starters. Santa Clara is between good years, with a monstrous schedule to help 1983-84 go down in big lumps rather than in one fluid motion. St. Mary's is hopelessly erratic. Gonzaga and San Diego are solid but unprepossessing. Portland and Loyola-Marymount are at least a year away from a happier fate.

And the league itself is on unsteady ground. No television contract. No monopoly in a major media market. No San Francisco. In short, more problems than even Dane Suttle could have solved. Still, if he had only made those free throws . . .

PEPPERDINE

Suttle leaves Pepperdine, taking with him 23.5 points per game and teammates Orlando Phillips (20 ppg, 9.6 rpg) and Bill Sadler (13.8 ppg, 7.7 rpg). What remains is a beatable team, but one with ample replacements from the recruiting wars. Fifty-six points and 20 rebounds per game to the contrary, the Waves just might win it again.

Returning for his senior year, 6-8 center Victor Anger becomes the key to coach Jim Harrick's hopes for a third straight title. The senior brings with him 10.4 points and 7.8 rebounds per game in a league markedly shy of imposing big men.

Mark Wilson, a 6-2 senior, is the best of the guards, but needs to develop a better eye for shots. His likely running-mate, 6-4 junior Grant Gondrezick, will probably inherit the point guard position. The Waves, usually strong in the backcourt, will need to make some adjustments here for immediate aid, due to the problematic situation at forward.

The two likely inheritors of the jobs left by Sadler and Phillips are transfers Dwayne Polee (Nevada-Las Vegas) and David Prenatt (North Carolina-Wilmington). Polee, a 6-5 sophomore, could play either position, but is likely to become the Waves' best small forward Again, bench strength will be a problem, at least until the backlog of freshmen and redshirts find their own levels. That, however, hasn't stopped Harrick before, and unless Prenatt and Polee are complete busts, the Waves ought to be good enough to run to daylight again.

SANTA CLARA

The Broncos are still grousing about not getting a post-season invitation after a 21-8 season. Anything to get their minds off this year's schedule

First, the Great Alaska Shootout, with North Carolina State, Arkansas, Oklahoma and Southern Cal. Then USC and San Jose State. Then the Kettle Classic with Houston and Princeton. Then the Cable Car Classic, with Ohio State and St. Joseph's. Apparently the Soviet Olympic team couldn't find an open date for the Broncos.

If Santa Clara weren't at least solid across the board, this news would be much worse than at first and second glances. Junior center Nick Vanos (9.9 ppg, 6.6. rpg) developed into a forceful player late in the season, and at 7-1 might well be the best big man in the league.

Guards Harold Keeling (14.9 ppg, 2.9 assists) and Steve Kenilvort (5.3 ppg, 2.7 assists) are set.

The best returning forward is 6-7 senior Michael Norman, who had an inexplicable year in 1982-83. He started horribly, and didn't hit his stride until 20 games had come and gone. His final stats (7.6 ppg, 4.5 rpg) should have been much better. His likely mate in the other corner is 6-5 junior Scott Lamson (9.5 ppg, 3.5 rpg).

Norman is one of only two seniors, so the bulk of the team returns next year, when coach Carroll Williams can plan on making his big run at the championship. This year, though, looks like too tough a nut to make. Then again, he knew the job was dangerous when he scheduled it.

SAINT MARY'S

A good third-place team, this. Also, a good fifth-place team. Does the term "erratic" strike a responsive chord?

The Gaels finished 14-12 last year, 7-5 in the conference for their second-best finish in 19 years. Still, there is the nagging feeling that they should have been better.

Center David Cooke (7.9 ppg, 4.8 rpg) is a 6-7 junior who can be a force but too often isn't, because of foul trouble or moodiness. Guard Paul Pickett (13.6 ppg, 3.8 assists) is a superb shooter, but a bit streaky. Forward David Boone (8.8 ppg, 7.3 rpg) is an accomplished small forward, but flourished in part because of the presence of graduate Peter Thibeaux on the other side.

Thibeaux (19.8 ppg, 7.8 rpg) is now seeking his fortune in the NBA, and there seems no replacement at power forward. The only two recruits coach Bill Oates could lure to Moraga, Brian Shaw and Gerry Karczewski, are both guards.

On the point, 5-9 junior Seward Patrick averaged nearly three assists per game, but is prone to the spectacular turnover. What is more, you wouldn't want him shooting for your mortgage, given his 36 percent field goal mark. He might find his job has gone without him if Karczewski, a 6-0 JC transfer, makes a swift adjustment.

WCAC wunderkind include (left to right) Santa Clara's Nick Vanos, Pepperdine's Victor Anger, Portland's Dennis Black, San Diego's Mike Whitmarsh, LMU's Forrest McKenzie. In all, the Gaels are capable of delightful work and egregious mistakes. They could finish as high as third, or as low as sixth, and it is said. 'tis better to err on the side of mercy when you have no other ideas.

GONZAGA

The Bulldogs are as steady as the Gaels are not, and the differences between the teams Dan Fitzgerald coached and the ones Jay Hillock now coaches are minimal.

For one, they play the clock like a cheap ocarina, working long and hard for shots no-body else would imagine possible on a regular basis. For two, they play defense the way kindergartners play with blocks—they are eternally amused by it. Barring two mutations against Loyola-Marymount, an early-season loss to Washington State and a hilarious mismatch with Eastern Oregon, the Zags neither scored nor allowed more than 68 points in any game.

Those numbers help to obscure a pair of small players without whom the 'Dogs would be dogs' lower case. One is point guard John Stockton, a 6-1 senior whose numbers (13.9 ppg, 7.9 assists) make him the best in the conference. The other is 6-3 forward Bryce McPhee, whose size should rule out his statistics (16.6 ppg, 4.9 rpg) but don't.

Senior forward Jason Van Nort (12.3 ppg, 5.1 rpg) is set, as is 6-9 senior center Blair Anderson (4.9 ppg, 4.9 rpg). The other forward will come from a crop of play-alikes that include juniors Dave Clement and Jeff Reinert, sophomore Mike Champion and freshman redshirt John Hobus.

Expect nothing spectacular from the Bulldogs, but a record like last year's 13-14 should be considered a profound disappointment. Expect 16 to 18 wins, but not a championship. Solid is good, but something extra usually wins a championship, and the Bulldogs haven't gotten to that point yet.

SAN DIEGO

When coach Jim Brovelli made the leap from Division II power to Division I fledgling for his Toreros, he talked about a five-year plan to respectability. That sound you hear is his alarm clock. Time's up.

The Toreros have improved their record in each of the last four seasons, but have never cleared .500. If this is indeed the put-up-or-shut-up year for Brovelli & Co., they'll need to Senior Mike Whitmarsh (15.3 ppg, 5.3 rpg) has a gentle shooting touch, an interest in rebounding and defense and led the team in steals. His credentials are, if not impeccable, then guite satisfactory.

Around him, though things get a little dicey. Six-foot point guard John Prunty (6.5 ppg) and 6-4 second guard Bill Penfold are both seniors who will have to deliver more than they have to date. In addition, some people are going to have to replace center Robby Roberts' 6.8 rebounds. To that end, Brovelli has brought in three freshman frontliners—6-11 Steve Thompson, 6-9 Steve Krallman and 6-7 Nils Madden. Sophomore center Mario Coronado (2.2 ppg, 1.6 rpg) started 10 of the 12 conference games, but the influx of youth indicates that Brovelli isn't altogether satisfied.

Brovelli flirted with joining the San Diego Clippers as an assistant coach, but remained to see out his five-year plan. Again, improvement, but still not enough.

PORTLAND

After five consecutive winning years, Jack Avina's Pilots went Boot Hill last year, going 10-18, 4-8 in conference. For that he can blame the league's worst offense, and despite the return of Fred Harris after a year off, that offense still looks substandard going into this season.

Forward Dennis Black (11.1 ppg) is the only senior on the roster. Darran Jenkins is the only other returning starter. In addition, guards Brian Fundingsland (9.1 ppg, 5.2 assists) and Kevin Williams (6.5 ppg) return as a solid if unimposing unit.

The middle remains a problem after the departure of Bryan Beard. Junior Gary von Waaden played only sparingly in 1982-83, resulting in Avina's recruitment of junior transfer James Van Ness and freshman John Piwarchuck. It remains to be seen if any of the three can win the job outright and allow Black some breathing room in the corner.

The schedule is rougher than many, with NIT winner Fresno State, WAC power Wyoming, Oregon State, San Jose State and USC in a three-week period in December. Given the conference's relative parity, those games may well determine whether 1982-83 was aberration or omen.

LOYOLA-MARYMOUNT

There is no defense the Lions can't shoot over, which explains their nine wins last year. There is also no defense they can play, which explains 18 defeats and a 2-10 conference record. Barring an unforeseen dedication to stopping others, the Lions are likely to stay right where they are in 1983-84.

Coach Ed Goorjian lost his son, Greg, to the NBA, where he was a seventh-round choice of Golden State. Coach Ed also lost the 26.5 points and 24.1 shots per game his offspring provided. There isn't a shot that Greg wouldn't take, anytime anywhere. Still, in 18 games in which he led Lions in scoring, LMU went 4-14.

His departure makes it easier to change the attack to suit forward Forrest McKenzie (20 ppg, 7 rpg), a junior, clearly the best LMU has to offer. He might be the best forward in the conference. Johnny Brown (12.5 ppg, 8.7 rpg) would have helped even more, but he was declared academically ineligible over the summer

The lvy League basketball race has been a broken record for longer than most of us care to remember. Penn and Princeton. Princeton and Penn.

This season, all bets are off. The underdogs have risen up, challenging the traditional powers. Certainly, Princeton could win the league again. And Penn could win it. But, so could Yale, Brown or even Harvard.

"I never remember the Ivy League being as balanced as it is this season," said Yale Coach Tom Brennan.

Brennan came to New Haven last year from William and Mary, where he was an assistant to Bruce Parkhill. He has wasted no time establishing the Bulldogs as a contender.

Predicted order of finish:

- 1. Princeton; 2. Yale; 3. Penn;
- 4. Brown; 5. Harvard; 6. Cornell;
- 7. Dartmouth; 8. Columbia

Brennan has the best player in the lvy in 6-3 senior guard Butch Graves, who led the league in scoring last year. He has also recruited enough quality size to flesh out a front-line that also includes vets Chris Kelly and Gerry Parker.

During an unusual year when Penn and Princeton are both undergoing reconstructions, the Dogs could be the team to beat.

But, first they will have to act like a contender and show they can survive Friday-Saturday games with Penn and Princeton on the road.

That goes for any other pretenders. Princeton and Penn might both have to replace large chunks of their frontline, but they will have program and tradition on their side.

Pete Carril—one of the best technical minds in the game—did another superb job last year, coaching the Tigers (20-9) to the Ivy championship and then advancing to the NCAA Western Regional semis with victories over North Carolina A & T and Oklahoma State.

For Carril's next trick, he will try to duplicate that success with an entirely new frontline. "Replacing Craig Robinson, Gordon Enderle and Rich Simkus is, "without a doubt, our biggest concern," Carril said. "It will be rough in the beginning. We'll just have to see who sticks his head out of the pile."

Senior swingman Kevin Mullen (4.8 ppg), the team's sixth man, has already made his presence felt. Carril is hopeful 6-9 junior Howard Levy (1.8 ppg), Simkus' backup, can plug the hole at center although 6-9 freshman Tony Vlatas of Annandale, Va. High (17 ppg, 9 rpg) looks like the eventual heir apparent. Alan Williams, a 6-6 freshman from Pensacola, Fla. Catholic (16 ppg, 15 rpg) and 6-7 frosh Tony Philadelphia has spawned many basketball mavens, and Dick Weiss of the Philadelphia Daily News is near the top of the list. Bubniak of Detroit Central Catholic (16 ppg) should also be factors.

The Tigers appear set in the backcourt with 6-3 Bill Ryan (4.8 ppg, 3.1 rpg) back for a fourth year at starting lead guard and 6-3 John Smythe (11 ppg) ready to explode onto the eastern scene as a soph.

Carril added depth to his guard line when he recruited 6-0 Joe Scott, who averaged 24.2 ppg and had 132 assists for Toms River East, N.J., High School.

YALE

Second-year Coach Tom Brennan calls Butch Graves the best player in the Ivy League. That is hard to dispute after watching Graves bury more than his share of opponents recently, averaging 23.3 ppg for a 12-14 team that finished 7-7 in the conference.

The 6-3 senior All-Ivy guard will not have to work any more Graves-yard shifts for the Bulldogs if the excellent size Brennan recruited starts paying early dividends.

Brennan's biggest catch was 6-11 Ricky Ewing (18.7 ppg, 11.5 rpg, 6.4 blocks) of Nashville, Tenn. University High. Ewing, no relation to Patrick, was recruited by both Georgetown and Virginia and could be the best big man ever to play at Yale if he develops. Brennan has also lured 6-8 Chad Luddinton of Phillips Exeter Academy (17 ppg, 17 rpg) and 6-8 Chris Dudley of Torrey Pines, Cal. (17.6 ppg, 12.3 rpg) to New Haven.

"Our biggest problem last year was lack of size," Brennan said, "and I think we've rectified that."

Chris Kelly, a 6-7 junior who averaged 11.3 ppg and 6 rpg, and 6-6 senior Gerry Parker (6.1 ppg) add stability to the forward spots while 5-11 senior Bart Williams (3.3 ppg) is also back after moving into the lead guard spot at midseason.

PENNSYLVANIA

The Quakers traditionally have sold out their allotment of student season tickets to the Palestra. But, even the most rabid of their fans might have a hard time telling the players without a program this winter.

Second-year coach Craig Littlepage will have to replace five key players from a 17-9 team that finished second to Princeton, including All-lvy forwards Paul Little and Michael Brown. The biggest cavities to fill are in the frontline where Littlepage is gambling that 6-6 junior Rick Maloney (1.1 ppg), 6-7 sophomore Chris Borrillo (1 ppg) and 6-5 junior Rick Maloney (1.1 ppg) and 6-5 junior Rick Maloney (1.1 ppg) and 6-5 junior Rick Maloney (1.1 ppg).

wing Jim Wolf (3.1 ppg) and 6-5 junior swing Jim Wolf (3.1 ppg) are ready to play full-time in the Ivy wars.

If the Quakers have any pluses during a rebuilding year, they should be in the back-court where 5-10 junior Karl Racine (7.3 ppg, 95 assists) is solid at lead guard and either Willie Oliphant (6 ppg) or sophomore Anthony Arnolie (2.7 ppg) should be more than adequate at the other spot.

Recruiting produced one plum in 6-7 forward Bruce Lefkowitz (27 ppg, 21 rpg) from Scarsdale, N.Y. Edgemont High, the state's Small School Player of the Year. Lefkowitz should start. Another frosh, 6-8 Abe Okorodudu of West Deptford, N.J. could ease the pressure at center before the season is through.

BROWN

Stark Langs, perhaps more than any other player, typifies the way the Bruins have turned their program around in the past two years. The 6-10 center played only 45 minutes as a frosh, then started every game last year, leading the team in rebounding (10.5 rpg) and averaging 12.2 ppg.

Brown's record jumped from 5-21 to 9-17 and included wins over Penn and Rhode Island. With all five starters back, coach Mike Cingiser could have a contender.

The frontline is solid with Langs, an Honorable Mention All Ivy; 6-4 senior John McBride (10.1 ppg, 4.7 rpg) and 6-6 junior Todd Mulder (8.2 ppg, 4.9 rpg). Ivy Rookie of the Year Mike Waitkus, who led the team in scoring (14 ppg) and assists (140), is back at one guard while 5-7 senior Alex Bynum (9.6 ppg), a three-year starter, will run the team from point.

Cingiser has the option of experimenting with 6-10 soph Jim Turner in either a double post or at power forward. The Bruins continued to recruit well, bringing in three freshmen—6-6 forward Todd Murray of New Canaan, Conn. 6-5 Pat Lynch of Pawtucket, R.I. St. Raphael's High and 5-10 Mark Daly of St. John's High in D.C.—who should play.

HARVARD

Bob Ferry Jr. was the outstanding recruit to enter the Ivy League two years ago. The 6-4 guard from DeMatha Catholic's distinguished prep program has done his best to live up to that reputation, averaging 14.7 ppg and making second-team all₂conference as a soph.

But, Ferry could only do so much for a 12-14 team that finished a disappointing seventh (4-10) in the league. This season, things should look up in Cambridge. Coach Frank McLaughlin has two more starters back, including 6-9 senior center Monroe Trout (10.6 ppg, 6.2 rpg) and 6-7 senior forward Ken Plutnicki, and could make a run at the title if 6-7 junior Joe Carrabino, a key contributor two years ago, is sufficiently recovered from a back disc injury that kept him out all year.

Kevin Boyle (whose father Jim is the coach at St Joseph's), a 6-0 junior and soph Pat Smith will battle for the opening at lead guard. McLaughlin can get backup frontcourt help from 6-8 soph Felippe Farley.

CORNELL

The Big Red's basketball program does not make folks in Ithaca blush with embarrassment anymore.

Coach Tom Miller's 10-16 team is rapidly approaching respectability, defeating six of seven other lvy League teams for the first time since the 1966-67 season.

This year, with four returning starters, Cornell could contend for a spot in the league's first division. Ken Bantum, a 6-7 senior who led the team in scoring (14.5 ppg) and rebounding (6) and was selected honorable mention All-Ivy, is back at center. He will be flanked by 6-7 senior Brad Bomba (11.3 ppg. 5 rpg), a two-year starter, at one forward and 6-5 soph Drew Martin (9.4 ppg) at the other.

Stu Mitchell, a 6-3 sophomore who averaged 2.7 ppg, is the only letterman back at guard but Miller has recruited to fill that need, bringing in 6-1 John Bajusz of Benet Academy in Naperville, Ill. (17 ppg, 5 assists), a first team All-State selection; 6-1 Derek Williams of Bishop Ireton (20.1 ppg), the Player of the Year in Alexandria, Va.; and 6-3 Bryan Colangelo of Phoenix Central High (whose father Jerry is GM of the Phoenix Suns).

There is plenty of depth at forward with 6-4 sophomore Eric King (3 ppg) and 6-6 freshman Dean Kartsonas of Shady Side Academy in Pittsburgh (30.4 ppg), the leading scorer in southwest Pennsylvania last year.

DARTMOUTH

Reggie Minton was an assistant at the Air Force Academy for 13 years. Last spring, he accepted the challenge to try to make Dartmouth's sagging program straighten up.

Minton will try to start the propellers of a 7-19 team with seven returning lettermen, including 6-6 senior Paul Anderson (18.2 ppg, 6.3 rpg). Anderson, who finished second in the league in scoring, had his magic moment last March when he ripped Penn for 40 points during a stunning 76-66 upset victory at Hanover, so much for the highlights.

Senior forward Brian Burke (11.7 ppg, 4.4 rpg) and 6-4 sophomore swing Scott Schroeder (10.3 ppg) are also back but Minton will have to retool a young, inexperienced backcourt behind tiny 5-8 junior Derek Sells (3.4 ppg) and sophomores Mike Collins and Joe Kilroy, who finished 1-2 in assists.

Mark DeAngelis, a 6-7 forward from Winchester, Mass. High, figures to be the biggest influence among the newcomers. But, the Winter Carnival figures to be the biggest event of the season, at least for another year.

Senior Lew Hacinthe and freshman Ken Wheeler could also push for playing time.

COLUMBIA

Buddy Mahar decided to go all out for the Ivy title last season, starting five seniors in a noble effort to earn an NCAA bid.

The Lions (10-16) fell short, finishing with a 7-7 league record and leaving their fiesty coach, who once punched out a clock in the locker room after a painful loss, wishing time would stand still.

Carl Scholz, a 6-4 senior center who averaged 3.1 ppg, and junior guards Dale Smith and Mark Ley (4.1 ppg) are the only returning players who logged meaningful minutes. The rest of the lineup looks like a patchwork quilt.

George Meikel, a 6-3 junior (3.6 ppg), should inherit one forward spot while George Mohlmann, a 6-6 transfer from St. Peter's, could get the other. Sophomore guard Mark Settles is also back but Mahar will have to be heavily dependent on the remnants of a 13-3 javvee team.

by Roger Shuler BIRMINGHAM POST-HERALD

Since the league itself is going into only its eighth season, perhaps it was appropriate that last year the Sun Belt Conference was dominated by young players.

Three of the five first team all-league players were sophomores, including co-players of the year Calvin Duncan of Virginia Commonwealth and Charlie Bradley of South Florida. And seven of the eight teams were starting at least one freshman at season's end.

Predicted order of finish:

- 8. Jacksonville

Still, four Sun Belt teams earned post-season trips last year, UAB and Virginia Commonwealth in the NCAA and Old Dominion and South Florida in the NIT. The Sun Belt's best players should be more mature, making for a stronger, more balanced league.

An unusual recruiting season should add intrigue to the league race. Many times, the rich just get richer in recruiting. But in the Sun Belt, last year's bottom two teams—Western Kentucky and Jacksonville—landed the best recruiting classes. However, both schools will have a top recruit academically ineligible—6-8 Willie McDuffie of Barnwell, S.C., at Jacksonville and 6-7 Tyrus Baynham of Nashville, Tenn., at Western Kentucky.

Virginia Commonwealth, with four starters back from a 24-7 team, is definitely the favorite. Look for South Florida, UAB and South Alabama to be the Rams' strongest challengers.

VIRGINIA COMMONWEALTH

Few coaches got as much out of their talent last year as VCU's J.D. Barnett. Barnett started three sophomores and a freshman. His forwards were 6-4 and 6-3. And his center was a 6-8 non-leaper.

But the Rams were a fierce bunch of overachievers and may be a legitimate Top 20 entry this year.

Forwards Fred Brown, a 6-3 leaper who graduated, and Randy Corker, a chunky 6-5 who flunked out, are the only key losses.

The top returnee is 6-3 junior guard Calvin Duncan (17.4 ppg, 5.2 rpg). Duncan is a splendid all-around player who is especially tough in the clutch. He probably will be joined in the backcourt by 6-3 junior Roland Lamb (7.2 ppg, 72 steals). Lamb, a quick-handed defender is a two-year starter. But he may be pressed by 6-3 Nicky Jones, a promising recruit from Amarillo (Texas) Junior College.

Up front, dependable 6-8 junior Mike Schlegel (9.8 ppg, 5.8 rpg) and 6-4 sophomore Michael Brown (10.6 ppg, 4.2 rpg) return. Two junior college recruits, 6-6 Robert Dickerson from Amarillo and 6-7 Neil Wake from Southeast (Neb.), probably will battle for the other forward spot.

Adding depth will be two promising freshmen, 6-5 Don Franco and 6-9 Alvin Robinson.

VCU is not an overpowering team and it is not well known nationally. But the Rams win on solid team defense, high percentage shooting and mental toughness. Now that Ralph Sampson has graduated from Virginia, VCU may be other returning starters, 7-0 senior Jim Grandholm (13.0 ppg, 9.2 rpg) and 6-8 sophomore Curtis Kitchens (4.7 ppg, 5.3 rpg). They should give South Florida excellent inside defense.

Returning at one guard is 6-3 senior Keith Douglas (8.5 ppg, 3.3 rpg), the older brother of Illinois' Bruce Douglas. But Rose must find a point guard from among 6-0 senior Dave Bastian, 6-2 sophomore Tom Tonelli and 6-0 junior Darryl Patterson, a newcomer from Florida Junior College South Florida did not have an outstanding recruiting year which may leave them short on depth. Point guard may be a problem spot. Rose is a master at getting the most from his the best team in the state. The Rams certainly figure to be the class of the Sun Belt.

SOUTH FLORIDA

We correctly picked the top three Sun Belt finishers last year. But South Florida hurt our percentage by finishing fourth after being picked sixth.

The Bulls were a low pick because they did not figure to have much offense. But Coach Lee Rose changed from a deliberate, pattern offense to a fast-breaking style. And 6-6 forward Charlie Bradley, who had averaged 5 points as a freshman, averaged 28.2 as a sophomore, finishing as the No. 4 scorer in the nation.

Bradley is not a household name—yet. But he figures to once again electrify Sun Dome crowds with long, left-handed bombs and acrobatic slam dunks.

Bradley will be joined on the frontline by two talent, however, and should have the Bulls in title contention.

UAB

This program has existed only five seasons but has a remarkable 20-win-per-season average. If the Blazers are to continue that pace, it will be up to a talented soph class.

Three prized freshmen from Memphis—6-I Steve Mitchell (6.4 ppg, 103 assists), 6-6 Jerome Mincy (5.9 ppg, 4.3 rpg) and 6-7 Anthony Gordon (4.2 ppg, 4.6 rpg)—were key members of last year's 19-14 Sun Belt Tournament champion team. This year, they will combine with two sophomore transfers—6-8 Archie Johnson from Oklahoma City and 6-7 Jay Thursby from Furman—to form the guts of UAB's team.

Two key players will be 6-4 senior Luellen Foster (11.1 ppg, 3.1 rpg) and 6-7 junior Marvin Ray Johnson (4.3 ppg, 3.6 rpg). Both are talented, all-around players who were plagued by inconsistency last year.

UAB should have excellent quickness and depth. And, led by Gordon and Mincy, the Blazers should be a strong rebounding team. But they lack consistent outside shooting. Coach Gene Bartow hopes that comes from 6-5 senior McKinley Singleton (5.6 ppg, 1.3 rpg) and 6-6 recruit Chester Smith from Midland (Texas) Junior College. UAB's top preprecruit is 6-1 James Ponder from Atlanta.

The Blazers will host the Sun Belt Tournament for the third year in a row. They have won it the past two years. UAB is talented, but it may take Bartow some time to fit the pieces together.

SOUTH ALABAMA

Coach Cliff Ellis is gradually building the Jaguars back to prominence after slipping to last place two year ago.

The Jags were picked last a year ago but finished fifth with a 16-12 overall record. All five starters are back, and two newcomers are expected to make immediate contributions.

Leading the returnees are two first-team allleague selections—6-5 senior Michael Gerren (20.1 ppg, 4.5 rpg) and 6-8 junior Terry Catledge (19.7 ppg, 9.9rpg). Gerren is a dangerous outside shooter and Catledge may be the league's premier inside player.

Ellis is hoping 6-11 Kelly Blaine (6.6 ppg, 5.8 rpg) will become a dominant force inside. South Alabama has plenty of inside depth with 6-8 senior Willie Jackson (5.8 ppg, 4.2 rpg), 6-7 sophomore Jose Waitman (4.6 ppg, 4.1 rpg) and 6-6 soph Dale Osbourne (6.4 ppg, 2.4 rpg).

South Alabama needs more quickness in the backcourt and hopes to get it from 6-2 Dexter Shouse, a juco All-American last year at Panola (Texas). Last year's starting point guard 6-3 sophomore Joe Karr (6.0 ppg, 138 assists) may move to shooting guard. Also in the picture is 6-5 Calodeis Canion, a gifted freshman from Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

South Alabama once dominated the Sun Belt, winning three titles in a row. The Jags probably are too young to win it all this year. But Ellis has the Jags back on the right track.

NORTH CAROLINA CHARLOTTE

Hal Wissel, who built a Division II powerhouse at Florida Southern, suffered the usual ups and downs of a first-year coach at UNCC last year. It took his players time to adjust to his fast-break offense and demands for all-out effort on both ends of the floor.

The 49ers struggled to an 8-20 record. But all five starters are back and the recruiting class will add much-needed size and quickness.

UNCC should have a splendid forward combo in 6-9 senior Melvin Johnson (16.3 ppg, 6.3 rpg) and 6-5 senior Emery Atkinson (11.8 ppg, 7 rpg). Johnson was benched for poor defense at times last year. But he is a deadly long-range shooter and was the team's offensive leader down the stretch.

UNCC hopes its center problems are solved this year by 6-8 junior Leroy Smith (5.4 ppg, 4.4 rpg) and 6-11 freshman Ray Gromlowicz. Smith, a high school teammate of North Carolina Michael Jordan, made definite progress last year. Gromlowicz is the tallest player UNCC has ever had.

The steady backcourt duo of 6-1 senior Randy Davis (11.5 ppg, 170 assists) and 6-3 senior John Gullickson (14.2 ppg, 3.3 rpg) returns. The 49ers need more quickness, and that may come from 5-11 freshman Keith Williams, who is billed as the quickest player UNCC has ever signed.

With possibly four senior starters, UNCC will be one of the most experienced teams in the league. If the two freshmen—Gromlowicz and Williams—come through, the 49ers may wind up in the upper division.

OLD DOMINION

The team started two freshmen forwards and its starting guards both shot less than 42 percent from the field. That team surely had a losing record, right? Well, not last year's Old Dominion Monarchs. Thanks largely to 6-11 shot-blocking wizard Mark West and Coach Paul Webb, ODU went 19-10 and won the regular-season Sun Belt title in its first season in the league.

Webb, who takes 473 career wins into the season, will be hard-pressed to keep the Monarchs on top this year.

ODU should have a sound frontline, led by 6-6 sophomore Ronnie Wade (9.4 ppg, 4.8 rpg) and 6-8 sophomore Kenny Gattison (8.4 ppg, 7.5 rpg). Gattison, an awesome physical specimen, probably will move to center with 6-8 junior Horace Lambert taking over at power forward.

The starting guards figure to be 6-3 junior Charlie Smith (12.2 ppg, 3.2 rpg) and 6-3 sophomore Keith Thomas (9.8 ppg, 2 rpg). They must give the Monarchs more consistent outside shooting this year.

Old Dominion may be thin on the bench. Mark Davis, 6-4 junior, and Tim Southerland, 6-7 senior, are the only experienced reserves. Webb is hoping 6-10, 235-pound sophomore Clarence Hanley is ready to help.

WESTERN KENTUCKY

The Hilltoppers received a rude welcome to the Sun Belt last year. After dominating the Ohio Valley Conference for 35 years, Western jumped to the Sun Belt and promptly went 4-10 in the league, 12-16 overall.

Fourth-year coach Clem Haskins may be under some pressure to finish in the upper division this year.

That will not be easy. Haskins landed an outstanding recruiting class. How well the newcomers perform may be the key to Western's season.

The Hilltoppers will not get pushed around under the boards. Haskins out-recruited Kentucky, Louisville and a host of others for 6-9 Kannard Johnson, the Ohio Player of the Year. He figures to be a sure starter. Johnson should combine with 6-8 sophomore Clarence Martin (6.6 ppg, 4.5 rpg) and 6-10 freshman Tellis Frank to give Western plenty of inside muscle. Two seniors, 6-6 Ken Hatcher (8 ppg, 4 rpg) and 6-6 Gary Carver (5.6 ppg, 3.3 rpg), will see lots of time up front.

The Hilltoppers should be solid at point guard with 5-10 senior Bobby Jones (13.1 ppg, 111 assists) and 6-1 sophomore Billy Gordon (2.6 ppg, 20 assists), the brother of Louisville's Lancaster Gordon. The other guard spot is very unsettled. No fewer than five players will battle for the position. Western figures to need an outside shooting threat and may get it from 6-5 sophomore James Johnson or 6-3 sophomore Mike Ballenger, a transfer from Kentucky.

JACKSONVILLE

When a team goes 7-22 overall, 0-14 in conference play, it is no secret what is wrong. The players simply are not good enough.

With that in mind, Jacksonville coach Bob Wenzel hit the recruiting trail in earnest after last season. The result was an impressive crop of young players who should make the Dolphins much more competitive this season.

At least three freshmen—6-5 Ronnie Murphy, 6-3 Alfred Brown and 6-7 William McBroom—figure to contribute immediately. A fourth freshman, 6-8 Willie McDuffie, would have been a sure starter but he will be academically ineligible.

By far the best returning player is 6-4 sophomore Otis Smith (14.3 ppg, 8.7 rpg). A powerful hometown product who was heavily recruited, Smith was the league's best freshman last year and led JU in 10 categories.

Wenzel likes to use a fast-break offense, and the Dolphins should have an explosive scoring duo with Murphy and Smith. But JU will have a hard time climbing out of the Sun Belt's cellar.

South Florida's Jim Grandholm, Western Kentucky's Clarence Martin, Jacksonville's Otis Smith, UNCC's Melvin Johnson are Sun Belt stars who are back.

The odds on three straight Final Fours? Guy Lewis shudders at the notion. "You've got to have a good team but there will be 50 good teams," says Lewis, starting his 28th season as Houston coach with a 530-246 record. "You have to play well in March and you have to have some luck. I don't know how much of a longshot three in a row would be. Call Lloyd's of London."

Not since the final three seasons (74-75-76) of UCLA's reign has a team reached the Final Four three years in a row. Houston bowed out to North Carolina in '82 at the Superdome and fell to NC State in '83 at Albuquerque.

Lewis still is extracting arrows from his rear after he ordered the '83 championship-game tempo slowed with his Cougars up by 7 midway through the second half. Before that, Houston had won 26 in a row, No. 1 national ranking and first SWC championship.

"If we don't win it again, I'm sure it'll be the same old story of run down the coach," says the coach. Awarded a three-year contract extension, Lewis will celebrate his 62nd birthday in late March, when the Cougars again likely will be in the NCAAs.

Like last year, the Southwest Conference again should produce three post-season teams. Besides Houston, Arkansas is a probable, SMU a maybe. Behind that trio, the outlook is muddled, meaning they all look alike. Texas should be the most improved.

Best SWC big men, all juniors, are Houston's Akeem Olajuwon, star of the NCAAs, Arkansas' Joe Kleine and SMU's Jon Koncak. Best freshmen should be Houston's Rickie Winslow, Arkansas' Kenny Hutchinson, SMU's Terry Williams, Texas' Raynard Davis, TCU's Carven Holcombe, Baylor's Dwayne Brown.

ADs are carrying heavier wallets after signing a three-year, $8.75 million TV deal for league games that will bring each school about $300,000 annually.

HOUSTON

Two charter members are gone to greater rewards in the NBA but never fear—Phi Slamma Jamma lives. Akeem Olajuwon, Michael Young, Alvin Franklin, Reid Gettys and Benny Anders return to dear old PSJ. Anders, heirapparent to the gliding Clyde Drexler's starting role, enunciates the Jamma credo, "Take it to the rack and stick it on them."

The Cougars horrified some purists with their rain of 181 dunks before the season's final slam (by NC State's Lorenzo Charles) beat them in the NCAA finals. The stunner ended a 31-3 season and SWC hopes for its first NCAA title.

Olajuwon, the 7-foot Nigerian, suddenly arose like an agile Frankenstein during the NCAAs, when he was voted outstanding player in the Final Four and Midwest Regional. In five NCAA games he compiled 18.8 ppg, 13.2 rpg, 32 blocked shots and shot .656. He swatted 175 shots for the year, then considered following Drexler, who passed up his senior season. Akeem returns for his junior year, and eight SWC coaches ordered an extra supply of Maalox.

Predicted order of finish:

1. Houston; 2. Arkansas;

2. SMU-4. Toyan Took 5. Toyan

3. SMU; 4. Texas Tech; 5. Texas;

6. Texas A&M; 7. Baylor;

8. TCU; 9. Rice

Guy Lewis, the coach with the contented look, says, "We'll be a lot smaller without Drexler and (All-SWC) Larry Micheaux. Rebounding is a big concern. We won't be able to bang it inside like last year, not that we won't try."

Young, 6-6 senior (17.3 ppg, 5.9 rpg), and 6-5 junior Anders (5.9 ppg) have the range to keep all five defenders from mugging Akeem. Anders sulked on occasion over lack of playing time. Says Lewis, "Now, if he starts, I'm sure he'll think, 'That Coach Lewis sure is a helluva smart coach.'

Franklin's quick freshman progress at point guard helped the Cougars swamp SWC foes by an average 22 ppg. Franklin and 6-6 junior Gettys (209 assists) may now be deployed in a two-guard front. Slimmer Renaldo Thomas, 6-4 soph, Derek Giles, 6-3 senior, and Eric Dickens, 6-1 junior, also await a call at guard. Gary Orsak, 6-7 junior, looks like Olajuwon's backup.

Rickle Winslow, prep All-American from Houston Yates, is a 6-7 smoothie who can play guard or corner—and soon. High school teammate Stacey Belcher, 6-7, will hit the boards, So will another recruit, 6-9 Greg Anderson, Houston Worthing.

"We'll run more this year," says Lewis, "We were only fifth nationally in scoring (82.4); we need to move up."

ARKANSAS

Their two-year SWC championship hold broken by Houston's NCAA finalist, the Razorbacks still have plenty to squeal about. They can start with 6-3 senior Alvin Robertson (14.2 ppg, 4.9 rpg, 3.6 assists) as a worthy successor to departed NBA first-rounder Darrell Walker.

Joe Kleine (13.3 ppg, 7.3 rpg) is a 6-11, 250 banger who came on strong down the stretch of a 26-4 season ended by Louisville in NCAA Mideast semis. Third returning starter, 6-6 senior Leroy Sutton (6.4 ppg, 3.4 rpg) is one of the SWC's best defensive forwards; he can also score inside.

Part-time starter Charles Balentine, 6-6 junior, might be the other corner. Darryl Bedford, 6-8 soph, and 6-7 redshirt Eric Houston coach Guy Lewis.

Ricky Norton, 6-2 senior, and 6-1 soph Willie Cutts are point guards who will be pressed by 6-4 frosh Kenny Hutchinson, a Street & Smith's prep All-American at NYC's Martin Luther King. He's reputedly another Darrell Walker type—strong on the baseline on offense, a wrecker at the other end.

Other rookies are 6-6 guard Kevin Rehl, Velma-Alma, Okla., and 6-3 Hunter McDonald, Leawood, Kans. (two sharpshooters); 6-8 Jay Crane, Forth Worth, Tex.; and 6-7 William Mills, who redshirts after transferring from Tennessee. Remember Mike Ratliff, 6-4 freshman redshirt from Brooklyn; could be a big contributor.

Coach Eddie Sutton, who has directed SWC-record seven straight 20-game winners, says, "This is probably the deepest team we've ever had. We have experience and quickness as assets. This could be a very good defensive team. We still don't figure to shoot real well. There couldn't be a better defensive guard around than Alvin, and Joe is the most physical center we've ever had.

Only Arkansas, Louisville and North Carolina have played in the last seven NCAAs. In that span the Razorbacks won three SWC titles, shared two more and compiled a 177-37 record (.827). Not bragging, just the facts, ma'am.

Penned up with four SWC wins in Dave Bliss's first two seasons, the Mustangs showed some thoroughbred traits last year—best league finish (tie for fourth) since '76, most wins (19) since '67. "We scrambled for a couple of years and made some strides. We've served our time. The next step is to challenge for the championship," Bliss announces.

He looks as well-stocked inside as any

Kevin Lewis, 6-6 soph, or 6-4 freshman Scott Johnson, Meridian, Idaho, can play the wing, with 6-5 soph Carl Wright (7.7 ppg) or 6-4 junior Reggie Pink at small forward.

"Butch flat-out won four or five games last year," says Bliss, "and he's only scratched the surface at leading the fast break. Wright defensively was one of the best in our conference and his shooting should be more consistent."

TEXAS TECH

Gerald Myers' first losing season (11-20) was one of his best coaching jobs as the Raiders finished 7-9 in the league. They appeared headed for far worse when Myers booted three veterans (two starters) before the SWC schedule. Two players had quit shortly before.

Result: three sophs and a freshman starting and a walk-on named Tobin Doda who won two games. On the road, assistant SID Alfred White filled out the scout team. Now, Myers says, "If we play to our potential, our chances are as good as anybody except Houston and Arkansas. We might make a lot of progress."

Especially if sophs Ray Irvin, 6-10, and Kent Wojciechoski, 6-11, improve enough to help SWC's worst rebounding team. Return of 6-9 junior Dwight Phillips, one of the three miscreants, should help on the boards.

Guard Bubba Jennings, 5-10 junior, is one of the league's best shooters (16 ppg) and a slick playmaker. The All-SWC tourney pick can spend full time at shooting guard if Mike Nelson, 6-3 freshman from Pampa, Tex., develops quickly at point guard.

Vince Taylor, 6-5 junior (10.4 ppg, 5.5 rpg), and 6-6 senior David Reynolds (9.1 ppg, 3.6 rpg) are capable swingmen. Quentin Anderson, 6-9 junior (6.9 ppg, 4.9 rpg), could help inside. Tony Benford (6.7 ppg) helped off the bench as a 6-3 freshman. Phil Wallace, 6-4 junior, comes from DeKalb, Ga., Central CC with rep as a shooter after 23.7 ppg.

TEXAS

By the end of his first season at UT, Bob Weltlich was coaching four able-bodied scholarship players and a collection of walk-ons, including a cheerleader who started one game. When Weltlich had gotten the message across that his way was the only way, the school's losingest season (6-22) was at high tide.

This time the Horns should return to respectability, perhaps even from last place (1-15) to the first division.

Best returnees are 6-7 senior Bill Wendlandt (15.3 ppg, 6.5 rpg) and 6-4 junior Carlton Cooper (12.5 ppg, 9.3 rpg). Karl Willock, 6-3 guard (10.5 ppg); 6-8 David Seitz (5.7 ppg, 3.5 rpg); and 6-5 Mitch Parrish earned battle stripes as frosh. Another who survived under fire was 6-5 senior Don Ellis (8 ppg. 3.5 rpg).

Mike Wacker's return still is in doubt. A strong 6-9, he was one of the nation's premier sophs when he tore up a knee in January 1982, and sat out last year. A previously gloomy medical report had taken more of an upbeat note in late summer.

Weltlich's first real recruiting class includes Texas all-staters Raynard Davis, 6-9, San Antonio Sam Houston; Jerry Holmes, 6-8, Longview; Marcus Bolden, 6-3, Killeen; and Dennis Perryman, 6-5, San Antonio Jay; plus 5-11 George Davis, Fort Worth, Tex., and 6-0 Mike Hess, Newport Beach, Calif.

Another newcomer, 6-9 John Brownlee, was rated Texas' No. 1 prep prospect in 1981. He transferred to UT after two years at North Carolina and will be eligible as a junior in 84-85. By then, the Horns should again be full-fledged contenders.

TEXAS A&M

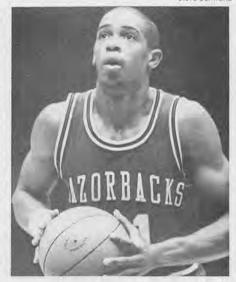

Coach Shelby Metcalf starts his 21st season only three wins away from Glen Rose's SWC career record 328 at Arkansas. Last year, after season-long rumors that his job was in jeopardy with the new regime, Metcalf received a new three-year, rollover contract. It came at the right time, since he lost starters Claude Riley, Tyren Naulls, Roy Jones and Reggie Roberts plus part-timer Lowell McHenry (the last two because of grades).

Jimmie Gilbert, 6-9 and 220, started every game as a freshman but must boost his 6.2 ppg. Contact lenses may help. Gilbert and 6-4 bomber Kenny Brown made the SWC all-rookie team, 6-4 soph Doug Lee proved a dependable outside scorer. Gary Lewis, 6-1, part-time starting guard two years ago, returns for his junior season after leaving in mid-year.

Soph Al Pulliam, 6-5 air force vet, and Winston Crite, 6-6, 215 frosh from Bakersfield, Calif., get a chance to help at the high post. Darnell Williams, 21 ppg at Garden City, Kan. JC, receives a shot at point guard. Other recruits are frosh Phil James, 6-5, Playa del Ray, Calif., and Clint Thomas, 6-2, Snook, Tex.

Last year's team played 12 of its first 13 on the road including four tournaments. Less demanding schedule lists LSU at Houston, tourneys at Indiana and Vanderbilt. This could be a year when the Aggies will be thankful for such small favors.

BAYLOR

After a 6-0 start the Bears fizzled to 12-16 and their 4-12 league record was the worst of Jim Haller's seven-year tenure. Biggest reason for the demise was the zone defenses thrown up in 14 of 16 league games and resulting 44.5 shooting percentage.

The Bears may have solved that problem with addition of outside shooters like Dwayne Brown, 6-5 freshman from Dallas Kimball, and James Malone, 6-6 junior from Jacksonville, Tex., JC. Brown was voted one of the state's top five prospects by SWC coaches.

Most important of eight newcomers may be Paul Kuiper, 6-11, 250 center from Hillsborough, Fla., JC (18 ppg, and 14 rpg). "Paul has to step in right away," says Haller.

Returning starters are playmaker James Stern, 5-11 junior, (9.5 ppg) and 6-7 junior David Glover (6.3 ppg). Other lettermen are Glen Mays, 6-5 senior (6 ppg, 3.4 rpg); 6-9 senior Mike Heller and 6-5 soph Gary Heyland.

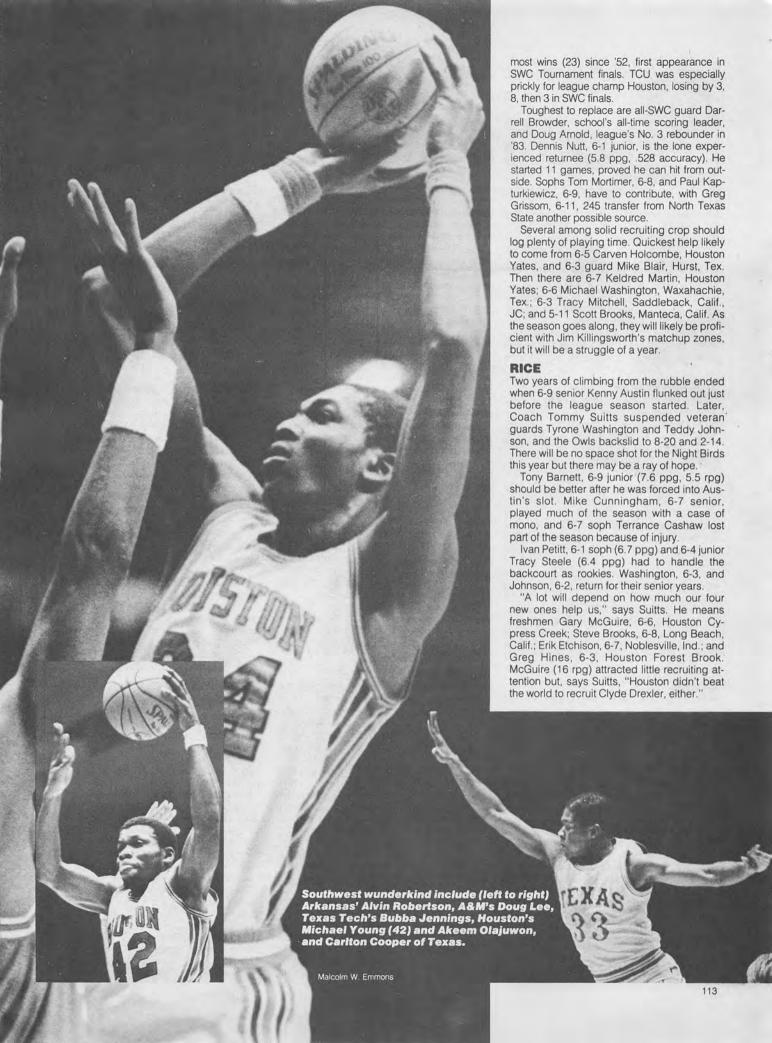

Other new faces are frosh Sean Jones, 6-7, Fort Lauderdale, Fla.; Jody Reeves, 6-7, Allen, Tex.; Dave Reichert, 6-3, Dallas Highland Park, and Michael Tate, 6-9, Pensacola, Fla., JC. John Wheeler, 7-1 transfer from Cleveland State, will sit out this year.

Life's certainties go well beyond death and taxes where Lamar University and the Southland Conference are concerned. With uncanny consistency, Lamar emerges as the league champion, wins all its home games, authors a shocker in the NCAA tournament, sees Pat Foster snubbed in SLC Coach of the Year voting and awaits the annual format change in the conference's unnecessary, financially senseless post-season tourney.

It looks like more of the same in 1983-84, although Louisiana Tech and awesome 6-9 soph Karl Malone (20.9 ppg, 10.3 rpg) figure to make the Cardinals work overtime in their bid for a sixth title in seven years. Foster, 70-20 in his three years at LU but never coach of the year, boldly predicts this will be the best Cardinal team yet, a team that merits top 20 consideration right from the opening tipoff at Wichita State.

Lamar owns the nation's longest home floor winning streak of 68 games, as well as an equally enviable string of success in NCAA play. Following last year's 73-50 blowout of Alabama, the Cardinals are 4-0 in NCAA openers.

The SLC will once again disdain shot clocks and three point baskets, while making a change in its post-season shootout for the fourth time.

LAMAR

With four starters back from a 23-8 team that routed Alabama before dropping a two-point decision to Villanova in the NCAA, Pat Foster didn't need a good recruiting year to approach this season with optimism. Understandably, then, the addition of 6-4 junior college transfer Jerry Everett, a player the former Arkansas assistant compares to Sidney Moncrief, and 6-9 San Diego Player of the Year Anthony Todd, has left the normally pessimistic LU coach absolutely bubbly.

Lamar's returning strength lies in the senior backcourt duo of 6-5 Tommy Sewell (18.6 ppg.) and Lamont Robinson (7.7 ppg. 112 assists) and 6-6 forward Kenneth Perkins, who'll be starting for the fourth year. Foster's intentions are to team Sewell, a deadly outside shooter (51.8 percent), Robinson, whose claim to fame is decisively outplaying Alabama's Ennis Whatley and Villanova's Stewart

Bob West has been the sports editor of The Port Arthur News for 11 years, and has covered the SLC during that span. Granger in the NCAA, and Everett (20.2 ppg at McLennan Community College) in a threeguard passing game.

An excellent man-to-man defensive team, LU's biggest drawback is rebounding. Perkins and 6-9 senior center Randy Gray (6.8 ppg) were the top board men last year, but neither is physical. If Todd asserts himself around the basket as a freshman Lamar will be dynamite.

LOUISIANA TECH

Karl Malone's expected improvement, coupled with the return of the top eight players from a 19-9 outfit, have Andy Russo thinking championship with good reason. Malone, alone, in fact, would be a good reason for most coaches to start making post-season plans.

The intimidating 6-9, 230 pound sophomore, after honing his skills at the World University Games during the summer, is back to dominate a conference that saw him finish second in scoring (20.9), first in rebounding (10.3) and earn Newcomer of the Year and Outstanding Player honors as a freshman.

"I really believe we'll see a much more polished Karl Malone in 1983-84," predicts Russo.

Helping keep the heat and zone defenses off Malone will be 6-10 junior forward Willie Simmons (9.6 ppg., 5.3 rpg) and outside shooters like junior Alan Davis (9.1 ppg) and Tony Dawson, a sophomore who showed flashes of brilliance late in the season.

Rounding out what is a deep and now experienced cast are 6-5 seniors Rennie Balley (8.5 ppg), 6-6 senior Ken Robertson (5 ppg) and 6-3 sophomore point guard Wayne Smith (5.6 ppg, 4.5 assists).

MCNEESE STATE

Glenn Duhon's Cowboys are the perfect example of how tough things figure to be at the top of the Southland Conference. With what looms as the best of his six McNeese State teams—all five starters and a pair of top reserves from a 16-13 club return—Duhon will be hard-pressed to rise above third place.

The Cowboys, due for some good luck after injuries ravaged them last year, put their best foot forward with brilliant 6-3 junior guard Joe Dumars. Already a two-time all-SLC choice, Dumars followed a superb freshman year (18.2 ppg), by averaging 19.6. Dumars and 6-7 sophomore Kenny Jimmerson (11 ppg), provide McNeese with the best one-two outside shooting punch in the conference. Hardnosed 6-3 junior Guy McInnis (9.4) adds a third outside scoring threat.

How high the Cowboys can go depends on the inside progress of 6-9 junior Chris Hardin (8.1 ppg, 7.4 rpg.), promising 6-5 sophomore Ronald Cox (7.2 ppg, 5 rpg) and the contributions of 6-6 South Alabama transfer George Kearse and 6-7 junior college import Nate Givens (25 ppg, 12 rpg).

NORTHEAST LOUISIANA

Unless they can learn to be respectable on the road, the return of four starters doesn't guarantee the Indians any more success than last year's break-even performance (6-6, 14-14) in their first season as a Southland Conference member. NLU was tough enough to upset Lamar and Louisiana Tech at home, but went 1-5 on the road in league play.

Headed by 6-9 second team all-conference forward Terry Martin (15.1 ppg., 8.1 rpg), the Indians' boast an all senior front line that should help alleviate the woes away from Monroe, La. Teaming with Williams will be 6-7 center Gerald Morris and 6-5 forward Bruce Williams. Gerard Phillips, a 6-7 sophomore who started nine games last year, and 6-7 transfer Michael Mattox are the top inside reserves.

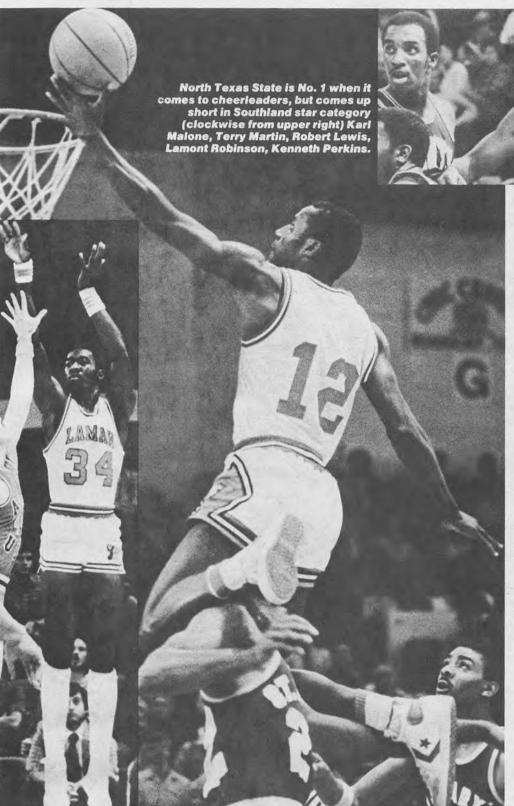

Most pressing need for the Indians is developing a backcourt running mate for late blooming senior point guard Bobby Joe Douglas (9.8 ppg, 4.1 assists). Leading candidate is Southwest Mississippi Junior College import David Candilora (18.1 ppg).

TEXAS-ARLINGTON

Bill Blakeley's dismissal at North Texas State leaves Snake LeGrand and his Movin' Mavs the major advocates of run and gun basketball in the Southland Conference. Unfortunately for the Mavs, most of the guns were pointed in their direction last season as a league-worst defense (76.7) helped bury them in the basement.

Return of three starters, headed by 6-6 junior Sam Norton, bodes well for another explosive UTA offense. Norton, who became eligible at mid-term a year ago, shot 64 percent in league games, averaging 13.3 pgg. and 6.5 rpg. His major offensive support figures to come from senior guards Danny Johnson (16.1 ppg) and Charles Harris (11 ppg).

The Mavs chances of bettering a 3-9, 9-19 showing hinge on boistering their shaky defense, getting improved play from 5-6 Ronnell Peters and 6-7 Dennis Kwiecinski, both of whom were part-time starters last year, and having transfer Andre Allen realize the big things that were predicted for him coming out of high school.

ARKANSAS STATE

Once the introductions are complete, Marvin Adams will go about the task of trying to match what was a superb coaching job last season. With by far the least talent in the league, Adams produced a 17-12 overall record, a 5-7 conference mark and a string of heartbreak underscored by eight losses of three points or less.

With two of his better players—6-10 Jeff Bolding and guard Darryl Dodson—gone, Adams will lean heavily on crafty point guard Jay Hansen to direct the traffic jam created by an influx of eight junior college transfers. Other than Hansen (13 ppg, 131 assists), the lone returning starter is 6-8 senior forward Scott Horrell (8.6 pg, 5 rpg).

In the absense of a true center, Adams is considering a three-forward offense that would pair Horrell with the best of newcomers Dwayne Harris, 6-8, Marvin Stevens, 6-6, and returning squadmen Troy Taylor, 6-4, Curtis Harrell, 6-5 and Mark Priest, 6-6.

NORTH TEXAS STATE

Tommy Newman didn't exactly inherit a warm bed in succeeding Bill Blakeley as the head man of the troubled Mean Green program.

From a team that was 5-7, 15-15, Newman arrived in time to say farewell to school's scoring and rebounding leader Kenneth Lyons and two other starters. Making the situation even more difficult, 7-0 center John Horrocks (10.1 ppg., 8.5 rpg) will be eligible for only the first semester and will miss all conference games.

Newman will attempt to build around the other returning starter, 6-5 senior Robert Lewis (7.1 ppg, 5.4 rpg), and senior reserves Javan Dupree (4.3 ppg) and 6-9 Tony Macalik (4.5 ppg, 4.1 rpg). A pair of junior college transfers—6-5 Vincent Green (22 ppg, 11 rpg) and 6-3 Andre Boutte (18.9, ppg, 9.5 rpg)—must make major contributions for North Texas State to keep its head above water.

ecac south by Jerry Lindquist

The ECAC South ranked either 10th or 11th among the nation's 28 Division I conferences, according to computers used by the NCAA to determine its 1982-83 tournament field. Rankings were based on composite records, strength of schedule, big wins, color coordination of uniforms, cheerleaders' looks, you name it. The point is, the ECAC South surprised a lot of people.

What is the ECAC South, anyway?

Glad you asked.

It's a compact, six-school conference caught in a publicity vice between the Atlantic Coast and Big East conferences which command most of the area's attention. ECAC South coaches, for the most part, recruit sleepers, generally overlooked (or unwanted) by the biggies.

For that reason, coaches learn to adapt to their material. They get what they can then (invariably) make the best of it. Nobody in this league can afford to throw the ball onto the floor and tell the players to go get 'em. The most successful teams play multiple defenses and control the ball, counting each possession as crucial to the game's outcome.

And, naturally, the coaches are criticized for their conservatism, for "taking the game away from the players." Yet, put an ECAC South team on the floor with most of the traditional powers, and they have every reason to be concerned. So-called upsets are not uncommon.

James Madison University has been to the NCAA tournament each of the last three years and (in order) shocked Georgetown, Ohio State and West Virginia in the first round. That is more than just coincidence.

Whether an ECAC South team will be able to pull it off again remains to be seen. This appears a down year for JMU. Defending regular season champion William and Mary will be relying on freshmen in the middle. Navy and George Mason should be stronger. East Carolina and Richmond shouldn't.

WILLIAM AND MARY

There's a new coach but don't expect the Indians to come out running and gunning or anything so foreign to the old regime. Bruce Parkhill left for Penn State and was replaced by Barry Parkhill who assisted his brother for five years. Last year W&M (20-9) set several milestones, including first conference championship (9-0) and first major post-season tournament (NIT). It's a tough act to follow.

All-ECAC South center Brant Weidner is gone. Likewise the team's most complete player, Michael Strayhorn. But there are six lettermen including 6-7 Herb Harris who wasn't in school a year ago. If either 6-10 Mark Boddy or 6-9 Bob Dail, both freshmen, can adapt quickly to the college game, the Tribe could be a solid choice to repeat as regular-season champion. In fact, it probably will be favored anyway.

Predicted order of finish:

- 1. William & Mary; 2. Navy;
- 3. James Madison;
- 4. George Mason: 5. Richmond:
- 6. East Carolina

The Indians are especially potent in the backcourt where all-conference Keith Cieplicki returns as a junior after leading the team in scoring for two seasons. Cieplicki can fill it up in a hurry, as can Tony Traver, also a junior. They are 85 percent-plus from the foul line, too. Sophomore Scott Coval is a more than adequate backup. Up front, Parkhill has starter Kevin Richardson to team with Harris, a regular in 1981-82. Junior Matt Brooks will be given first crack at Weidner's old spot.

In all, there are only two seniors on the squad, both reserves (one a walk-on). The Tribe could be the conference team to beat for several more years.

NAVY

If W&M can't do it, maybe the Midshipmen can. People are actually starting to take the Middies seriously again, thanks to a reclamation project started by coach Paul Evans three years ago. Last year they finished 18-11, their best since 1959-60 and most victories since 1958-59. Seven of the 11 losses were to teams that wound up in either the NCAA tournament or NIT. No one can afford to look past Navy.

The school's No. 3 all-time marksman, guard David Brooks (1,389 points), is gone. With him went a 17-points per game average. When Brooks was on, there was none better from 18 feet or more. Without him, the Middies probably will take the ball inside more often for higher percentage shots. Why not?

They've got rugged 6-7 Vernon Butler who, as a freshman last year, led the ECAC South in rebounding (10.2). And they've got the academy's tallest player ever, 6-10 Cliff Maurer. A knee injury hampered Maurer's effectiveness a season ago but he still led the conference in blocked shots (68).

Evans has nine lettermen. If opponents clog the middle, there's Rob Romaine who can score from outside but usually deferred to Brooks. Romaine averaged a conference-leading 6.8 assists in 1982-83. He scored at a 12 points per game clip after being the team's top scorer two years ago (14.9 ppg).

Senior Gary Price and sophomore Kylor Whitaker, both 6-6, were candidates to join Butler, Maurer, and Romaine in the starting lineup. Of Price and Whitaker, Evans said, "If they have great years, we'll be in the race."

JAMES MADISON

If you like a good mystery, then look no farther than Harrisonburg, Va., and JMU's pre-season drills. The suspense began building once the Dukes were eliminated from the NCAA tournament's second round by North Carolina. That spelled The End for Dan Ruland, Charles Fisher, David Dupont, and Bob lonohoe.

During their four years, JMU compiled an overall record of 83-34 (70.9 percent), winning at least 20 each of the last three while claiming two ECAC South tournament titles and one regular-season crown. Who's going to replace them? Good question. Coach Lou Campanelli doesn't have an answer.

His returning lettermen (10) averaged 32 points. That's all. Derek Steele accounted for 7.9, and the stocky 5-9 guard is assured one of the starting slots. "We will be counting on Derek to do everything but rebound." Campanelli said. The Dukes let Steele do it as time was running out in the ECAC South tournament final (vs. William and Mary). He responded with a three-point play that provided the victory and was named tournament MVP.

After Steele, it's pick-'em. Senior Keith Bradley and juniors Greg Mosten and Darrell Jackson all have started at forward. Freshman Eric Brent and sophomore Bill Hughes are leading candidates for No. 2 guard although two-year letterman Jimmy Masloff could step in. Sophomore Eric Esch probably will replace Ruland, conference co-MVP and JMU's top scorer (15.1), rebounder (6.7), at center.

GEORGE MASON

The Patriots have Carlos Yates, which means they are capable of beating anyone. A 6-5 junior, Yates ranked third among Division I scorers (26.8) as GMU wound up 15-12, losing five games by a total of 10 points. Double and occasionally triple-teamed, Yates nevertheless hit 52.9 percent from the field, scoring anywhere from 15 feet in. He is a genuine, bonafide All-American candidate, for sure.

"You'll see his point total go down," said coach Joe Harrington. "but we'll be a better team because the pressure won't be on him to do it all."

Andy Bolden is back after missing the second half of last season. A senior guard and one-time conference Rookie of the Year, Bolden is an excellent shooter who will keep teams from ganging up on Yates. Lefthander John Neihoff will direct the offense. The Patriots are deep at guard, inexperienced in the middle. Sophomore Vince McQueen (6-7) and redshirt Chuck Dyson (6-9) and Rob Nieberlein (6-8, injured) will be used at center. Neiberlein was sidelined at the outset of last season with a stress fracture of the left ankle.

One of the trademarks of a Harringtoncoached team is aggressiveness. The Patriots were the one of the league's most physical teams (22.3 personal fouls per game) and probably will be again.

RICHMOND

The Spiders skidded from their first NIT appearance and 18-11 to 12-16 and last (2-7) in the conference. They could be hard-pressed to improve, too, considering the loss of guard Tom Bethea (11.6 ppg) and 6-10 Jeff Pehl (11.3 ppg), the Nos. 2 and 3 scorers both selected in middle rounds of the NBA draft. What that means is that 6-9 swingman Bill Flye (7.7 ppg) probably will move into the middle and a freshman, Marty Johnson, takes over at point guard. Kelvin Johnson will replace Bethea at No. 2 guard.

Third-year coach Dick Tarrant will have to do a considerable amount of masterminding, and UR will need more timely work under the boards and at the foul line—two areas that have plagued the Spiders—for any chance at a break-even record. Of six recruits, Johnson and 6-7 junior college transfer Gary Powell figure to play a lot. Tarrant is counting on Powell to add muscle underneath.

EAST CAROLINA

Count on the Pirates to focus their attention on six recruits possibly the school's best (as a group) in recent memory. "All are coming to East Carolina because they want to play for the Pirates and not because someone else did not want them." said second-year coach Charlie Harrison. They include 6-10 Leon Bass who has grown 5½ inches over the last year. "Leon will be a seven footer...there's just no telling how big he will be."

Chances are Harrison will call on several freshmen early and often. For example, 6-7 Roy Smith who averaged 21.6 points and 12.8 rebounds as a high school senior and 6-6 Derrick Battle (18 ppg, 14 rpg). They will be prominent in the sweepstakes to replace Johnny Edwards, All-ECAC South last year as a freshman. Edwards led the Pirates with 18.6 points and 8.4 rebounds then left school. Also lost were senior starters Charles Green (11.7, 6.6) and Thom Brown. Forward Barry Wright (11.8 ppg, 3.7 rpg) and guard Bruce Peartree (10.4 ppg), both juniors, will have to pick up the scoring slack.

ecac metro by Bill Heller

The teams are singing, "We're better," while the size of the chorus continues to shrink.

Last year—finally—respect seeped into the conference. St. Francis (Pa.) lost by one at LSU. Wagner won by seven at Duke. And two-time champion Robert Morris had a dead heat with Purdue with five seconds left before losing their NCAA Tournament meeting.

"We always felt we were competitive," Wagner Coach Neil Kennett said. "Robert Morris proved it against Purdue."

The strong non-league showings breathed life into the conference, yet its pulse still weakens from a steady exodus of teams. Towson State left last season. This spring, the University of Baltimore announced it was dropping all intercollegiate sports. Next year, Siena switches to the ECAC North Atlantic.

Eight teams are left this time and all in one division to deny Robert Morris a hat trick. "We did a job last year," RM Coach Matt Furjanic said. "This year, we expect the same."

Strong words. Furjanic has the backcourt to back it up, national steal leader Chipper Harris and his four-year shadow, Forest Grant. Five other regulars are back from a 23-8 team which won 19 of its last 21.

Fairleigh Dickinson University, with former Tulane assistant Tom Green replacing Don Feeley, has its entire lineup returning to keep the Colonials honest. It's a scramble for third.

Robert Morris was tabbed No. 1 here last season. One more time.

ROBERT MORRIS

"We've got to be just as hungry," Furjanic said. In the NCAAs, the Colonials played as if they hadn't eaten in weeks. After swallowing Georgia Southern by 10 in a first-round game, they took Purdue to the limit, losing 55-53 on Steve Reid's 22-footer at :05. "We didn't play anybody in the Big Ten that pressed us like that," Reid said.

The key to the press are seniors Harris and Grant. You may remember them from "It Takes a Thief." Harris (17.4 ppg, 120 assists) won his second straight theft title with 133 steals. Grant (12.5 ppg, 152 assists) wasn't far behind at 102. "They've done a lot for us," Furianic said

The frontline is manned by veterans, too: 6-7 seniors Roy L. Dudley (10 ppg, 7 rpg) and Skip Koskoski (6.3 ppg, 5 rpg), 6-6 Tom Un-

Bill Heller has been a college basketball writer for ten years for the Albany Times Union and Knickerbocker News and has been a contributor to Basketball Weekly and Eastern Basketball. derman (5.7 ppg), 6-5 Phil Coles (3.6 ppg) and 6-6 Greg Junk, who missed the last 24 games because of a knee operation.

The new people, 6-8 redshirt Garth Wurstle and freshmen guards Roland Shannonhouse (21 ppg) and Bob Roache (9 ppg) keep Furjanic's options open. The schedule keeps him humble with games at Pittsburgh and West Virginia and appearances in the Carrier and Far West classics.

Can the Colonials appear in their third straight NCAA Tournament. "We won it twice. We're getting a little greedy," Furjanic said.

FAIRLEIGH DICKINSON

Feeley's reward for a 17-12 season, the most wins by the Knights in 24 years, was a ticket out of Rutherford. Green, hired May 14, said, "I'm coming into the situation totally blind."

To compensate, he's reviewed more films than Rex Reed, trying to get a handle on his veteran, talented and explosive group, one good enough to beat Robert Morris by 10 during the regular season. "We played an extremely fast-tempo game and zone defenses," Green said. "My philosophy is manto-man. And we're not going to play 100 miles per hour. We'll play about 85."

Whether the new speed zone helps or hurts the Knights is up to Green. He certainly has the tools to win.

Marcus Gaither, a 6-5 senior guard (22.7 ppg, 108 assists) and 6-4 junior swingman Larry Hampton (17 ppg, 5.4 rpg) are the best scoring tandem in the league. Gaither scored 36 vs. Rutgers; Hampton had 35 against Siena. Quick-leaping Greg Foster, a 6-3 senior forward (11 ppg, 11.2 rpg) is a remarkable rebounder, while 6-5 senior forward Mike Payne rebounds and scores (15.3 ppg, 8 rpg). Sophomore point guard Fred Collins (6.1 ppg, 108 assists) is responsible for running the Knights to a slower tempo.

Green didn't get signed in time to sign recruits, but was presented with 6-8 redshirt Akila Brutos Shoki from the Sudan. "He can run. He can jump. But he really needs some fine-tuning," Green said.

SIENA

The youthful Indians may be a year away They also may be ready for a major ambush.

Three freshmen and two sophomores figured prominently in a 12-16 debut for Coach John Griffin. Now he adds the best recruiting class in the league.

Eastern Basketball Magazine called 6-5 forward Steve Geduldig "a sleeper." He missed his senior season in high school when he transferred, but represented the U.S. against the Russian Junior National Team. Kevin Brown, a slender 6-10 center, may be an even bigger sleeper, giving Siena unaccustomed size in the middle. In only his second season of organized ball, he averaged 11.3 points and 10.4 rebounds for Wyandanch, L.I.

Point guard Matt Brady (15.9 ppg, 11 assists per game) and 6-7 forward Gary Ressell (20.3 ppg, 16 rpg) complete the freshman quartet. "I'd have to be like Kreskin to figure out what these players are going to do for Siena next season," Griffin said.

For openers, they and Vaughn Miller, a 6-6 transfer from Richmond, will complement sophomore guards Corey Easley (12.2 ppg) and Art Tooles (2.9 ppg), junior guard Troy Turner (6.8 ppg), senior guard John Williams (3.5 ppg, 95 assists), 6-6 junior forward Doug Poetzsch (10.4 ppg, 6.3 rpg) and 6-4 soph forward Eric Banks (6.2 ppg). Easley had moments of brilliance: two buzzer-beating long jumpers, and periods of visibility.

Robert "Smooth" Cole not only averaged 18.4 points, 6.2 assists and 2.4 steals; he made the Blackbirds (20-9) go. Without him and forwards Russell Davis (16.7 ppg, 6.8 rpg) and Todd Person (10.9 ppg, 6.7 rpg), Coach Paul Lizzo will be hard-pressed for a third straight 20-win season.

Lizzo does return one of the best big men in the conference, 6-9 junior center Carey Scurry (12.3 ppg, 10.1 rpg, 98 blocks). Jeff Meriwether, a 6-4 senior forward (8.5 ppg) and junior guard Robert Brown (9.4 ppg) are also back, but help must come from three tall transfers: 6-11 Vincent Wiggins of Logan Junior College, 6-8 Dennis Thompson of Arkansas-Little Rock and 6-6 Tyrone Whitehead from Massachusetts. Freshman point guard Glenn Daniels has to age quickly if the Blackbirds want to make a run for the title.

ST. FRANCIS (Pa.)

Everybody is back-except Coach Dave Magarity. He got axed in late spring despite improving a 6-20 team to 12-17 without the benefit of a single senior.

The Red Flash, with former Frankie Flash and NBA playmaker deluxe, Kevin Porter, as coach, are ready to strike with a balanced. veteran unit joined by two redshirts back from injuries, guard Spike Walters and 6-5 forward Gary Potts. Magarity recruited freshman point guard Greg Jacobs (21.3 ppg, 5.5 apg).

Three juniors, speedy guard Napoleon Lightning (9.1 ppg, 199 assists)-you gotta love that name - and swingmen 6-4 Jeff Hamilton (14.6 ppg, 5.7 rpg) and 6-5 Joe Sharkey (13.6 ppg, 6 rpg), provide much of the offense. Inside, 6-6 senior forward Mike Wagner 8.1 ppg, 6 rpg) teams with 6-9 senior center Lou Schmitt. The 230-pounder averaged 10.8 points on 71.4 percent field shooting. His problem was only 4.9 boards a game.

WAGNER

"We improved from the year before (4-22) and we'll improve again," second-year Coach Kennett said. The Seahawks did not, however, follow up their early-season win at Duke, losing their next two games to Marist and Siena and sinking to last in the Metro Division (the conference was split last year) for the second straight season. A car accident involving leading scorer and rebounder Mike Nelsonhe returned five games later but "was never the same" according to Kennett-was one reason Wagner finished 10-18.

Actually, the whole Seahawk program was almost finished when a decision was announced to move to Division III, a decision subsequently put on hold.

The strength of the Seahawks is in the frontcourt. Furjanic calls 6-7 junior forward Art Redmond (16.2 ppg, 7.5 rpg) the best frontline player in the Metro. Few disagree. Greg Khaleel, a 6-8 sophomore center (9.7 ppg, 5.6 rpg) had impressive games including 20 points and 13 rebounds vs. St. Francis (N.Y.) Depth comes from 6-8 Utah transfer Greg McAdams, 6-7 Emman Agbehjemesin of Nigeria and 6-2 freshman forward Kelvin White (12 ppg, 9 rpg).

Redshirt Greg Clay, a starter two years ago, and freshmen Todd Holloway (24.3 ppg) and Terrence Bailey (20.2) patrol the backcourt with Arvie Powell (8.9 ppg, 126 assists).

MARIST

The Red Foxes foreshadowed a disappointing 14-15 season in their second game last year, a five-point loss to Castleton State-at home. Now, they lose scoring machine Steve Smith (20.4 ppg), the MVP of the conference, and forward Keith Denis (8 ppg).

Guards Tom Meekins (11 ppg) and Bruce Johnson (9.5 ppg, 165 assists) force a fast pace, but a pair of 6-8 players, senior Chris Metcalf (7.5 ppg, 3.3 rpg) and junior Ted Taylor (5.6 ppg, 7.9 rpg) have to get more involved in the offense

The freshmen are 6-6 forward Mark Shamley (17 ppg, 12 rpg), 6-5 swingman Charles Wynn (24.2 ppg, 9 rpg) and 6-3 guard Mark Johnson (20.4 ppg)

The opener is at Notre Dame.

ST. FRANCIS (N.Y.)

The Terriers were chronic underachievers last season, beating FDU then losing to Utica by 13; following a close loss by three to Robert Morris with a seven-point loss to Loyola, 1-21 at the time.

Height isn't a problem with 6-11 junior Julian McKelly (7.6 ppg, 6.1 rpg) and 6-8 senior Robert Jackson (16.1 ppg, 8.5 rpg). Yet the Terriers were outrebounded last year.

Three regulars, Kevin Henry, Lorenzo Distant and Edgar DeLarosa are gone from a 10-18 team. A trio of freshmen will try to replace the missing 36 points and 13 rebounds per game: 6-3 guard Dickens Benoit (26.1 ppg, 7.8 rpg), Jerome Scott (21.2 ppg, 8.1 rpg) and Tim Briscoe (21.6 ppg). A schedule with Boston University, Manhattan, Notre Dame and Clemson won't make it easy for Coach Gene Roberti in his fifth season.

LOYOLA

Poor Mark Amatucci must have thought he was in the Twilight Zone movie. One winter, he's guiding nearby Calvert Hall to a 34-0 record and No. 1 national high school rating. Next year, he's at Loyola, deep into the season and still has a zero-on the wrong side of the ledger. A 13-point win at Baltimore ended the 0-17 streak, and the Greyhounds limped home 4-24

Sophomore 6-6 forward Kevin House (15 ppg, 6.8 rpg) and junior guard Maurice Hicks (14.5 ppg) are ready for some new faces. Amatucci got three who may step in: 6-5 forward Tommy Lee (10 ppg), guard Tom Gormley (15 ppg) and Niagara transfer Kevin Carter, a 6-5 swingman. Dave Urban a 6-4 senior forward (7.6 ppg) is back, too.

Even writers can get lucky once in awhile. A year ago, we picked Boston University to win it all in the ECAC North Atlantic Conference and despite the unexpected loss of their best player, the Terriers finished on top.

Forward Arturo Brown suffered a fatal heart attack only weeks before the start of practice but BU still tied surprising New Hampshire for the regular-season title and the Terriers squeaked past Holy Cross in the league finals to gain their spot in the NCAAs.

Predicted order of finish:

- 1. Boston U.: 2. Northeastern:
- 3. Niagara; 4. Canisius;
- 5. New Hampshire; 6. Maine;
- 7. Vermont; 8. Colgate

Northeastern, which ruled the North two years in a row before taking a significant slide last season, figures to be back in the battle for the big prize. "We have the best team coming back and we should be right in there with BU," says Northeastern coach Jim Calhoun. "If it's a four-team race, I'd have to put Niagara and Canisius in there."

What happened to Holy Cross? The Crusaders have moved out to join the Metro Atlantic Athletic Conference.

So the ECAC North Atlantic is now an eightteam league and all eight will be in the playoffs in March. Although the coaches didn't feel it made much difference, they have voted to keep the 40-second clock.

BOSTON UNIVERSITY

The Terriers started last season with some unhappy memories and three losses but after losing to LaSalle in the first round of the NCAAs they finished with a no-shame 21-10 record. Guards Tony Simms and Brett Brown have to be considered key losses but that first NCAA team since '59 was a young one—seven freshmen and four sophomores.

Gary Plummer, the 6-9 forward who ended his season early when he twisted his knee in the opening game of the ECAC playoffs, is back for his senior year. When he was healthy he averaged 16.3 points and 7.9 rebounds. Also back is 6-5 forward Mike Alexander (16.9 ppg and 5.1 rpg), the North Atlantic rookie of the year.

Point guard Shawn Teague (9.7 ppg) was a clutch scorer in addition to dealing out 165 assists a year ago and figures to run the offense again. Tom Ivey, a 6-8 forward, and guard Dwayne Vinson were in the starting lineup at the end of last season as freshmen and will be tough to push out.

Jerry Radding is a 32-year veteran of the Springfield (Mass.) Union sports staff, a former president and current director of the U.S. Basketball Writers Assn., and was the first publicity director of the Naismith Basketball Hall of Fame.

Young coach Rick Pitino feels he has the ingredients for another championship team and his rival coaches aren't disagreeing. He's recruited a couple of good guards in Jeff Holmes and Jim Christian; a 6-8 forward Peter Gabriel who played on title teams in Hamilton, Ontario; and has 6-5 red-shirted swingman Paul Hendricks ready to help.

NORTHEASTERN

Calhoun's optimism is based on two factors—his top seven players from a year ago are returning and he calls his new recruits "maybe the best in my 11 years here." And one of his returnees, 6-6 senior forward Mark Halsel, is called by the coach "without doubt the best player in the league."

Halsel, (19.5 ppg, 12.5 rpg) a skywalker from Pittsburgh, was the nation's fourth-leading rebounder a year ago. He'll be getting help up front from 6-8 center Roland Braswell (13.2 ppg, 8.4 rpg) and 6-9 sophomore Gerry Corporar

Glen Miller, a transfer from Connecticut, speedy junior Skeeter Bryant, offensive-minded sophomore Enndy Basquiat and senior point guard Phil Robinson give the backcourt a solid look.

Calhoun has brought in five players. He's most excited about 6-7 forward Reggie Lewis, a do-everything talent from Dunbar of Baltimore—the best high school in the nation last season. "It would be tough to keep him out of the lineup," says the coach.

The other recruits with top credentials are 6-5 swingman Wes Fuller (21.2 ppg, 10.7 rpg) from Camden, N.J. and guard Andre LaFleur, a 19.1 prep school scorer. More help up front could be coming from 6-9 Kevin Lee of Washington, D.C. and 6-7 Todd Grain from Malverne, Long Island.

NIAGARA

The Purple Knights had three straight losers but bounced back to 19-10 two years ago and were supposed to have continued the upswing last year—but it didn't happen. They started 1-10 and never recovered.

Encouraged by a highly-improved second half, a squad which has everybody returning plus a quartet of highly-promising recruits, coach Pete Lonergan has a team ready to make waves in the North Atlantic.

Mike Curran, a 6-4 senior guard, led last year's team in scoring at 14.6 and still had time to dish out 107 assists. The other veteran point producers are 6-4 senior guard Rick Townsend (13.7 ppg) and 6-5 Canadian forward Joe Alexander (10.4 ppg).

The other experienced frontcourters are 6-8 Rich Howse, 6-6 Greg Mitchell and 6-5 Leon Blalock. With Howse, at 6.6 rpg the team's best rebounder, the Eagles could have flying problems if the freshman class doesn't help.

Lonergan has faith in 6-10 Sean Dodds, who was an excellent glass cleaner at St. Michael's Institute in Toronto. Other inside help should be coming from 6-8 recruits Joe Arlauckas and Doug Fogt. Arlauckas carries 23.9 ppg and 15 rpg from Rochester, N.Y.

CANISIUS

The Golden Griffins had the best backcourt in the league a year ago but serious troubles up front caused a collapse which even coach Rick Macarchuk found difficult to explain. The team went from 19-8 the year before to a disastrous 11-17. But with a 9-4 log over the last six weeks, a team with everybody important back and an interesting group of newcomers, the Griffs should be ready to battle the leaders.

Junior Ray Hall, a hometown Buffalo product, is the sweetheart in the backcourt. He's coming off a 19.9 scoring season which easily led the team. His partner again will be senior Robert Turner, who popped 'em at a 15.1 clip.

The frontcourt, where both scoring and rebounding lacked consistency last season, needs improvement from seven-foot junior center Mike Smrek (4.5,ppg, 4.7 rpg), 6-7 senior Ed Becton and 6-7 sophomore Derrick Russell.

A couple of junior college transfers, 6-7 Lamont Gilbert and 6-6 Tim Harvey, may be called upon for immediate help. Macarchuk also is anxious to see Chris Heinold, a 6-6 forward from North Collins, N.Y., play the college game. In high school, he was a 24.5 ppg, 17.0 rpg producer.

NEW HAMPSHIRE

It seems like every year coach Gerry Friel wins the badge of courage. But last year was different because his Wildcats were the surprise of the league, finishing the regular season tied for the top and ending with a respectable 16-12 record after losing to Holy Cross in the playoff semifinals. So, no more sympathy for Friel who promises, "we'll be a threat.

The Cats will have to come up with some strong replacements, especially for 20.8 ppg scorer Robin Dixon, who burned a lot of teams from his backcourt station.

The best of the holdovers are guard Al McClain, a 12.8 scorer when he wasn't injured, and 6-6 forward Dan Nolan (16.1 ppg, 9.4 rpg). Also back are 6-7 Dirk Koopman, sophomore forwards Ty Bridge, Ted Di-Grande and Pat Galvin and guards Rodney Johnson and Vince Connelly.

The recruits most likely to be battling for starting jobs early are 6-7 Greg Steele from Tarboro, N.C. and 6-3 guard Todd Black from Virginia Beach.

MAINE

The Black Bears improved from 7-19 to 12-14 in one year and were a solid 6-4 in the league. Their leader, 6-10 center Jeff Cross, was named conference player of the year off his 19.2 ppg, 11.9 rpg production. Cross is back for his senior season, a valuable security blanket for coach Skip Chappelle.

Forward Clay Pickering will be missed but 6-6 forward Paul Cook and guards Jeff Wheeler (10.1 ppg) and Jeff Sturgeon are returning starters with Cross. Mark Hedtler, a 6-2 guard who was redshirted last year, could be the other man in the backcourt.

Chappelle is looking for more production from the forward positions to take the pressure off Cross. The best prospect is 6-6 Richard Henry, a transfer from North Dakota State by way of Milwaukee, Wisc. Another promising freshman is guard Jim Boylen from East Grand Rapids, Mich.

The Bears also should get an assist from their schedule this year—no more road trips to the national powers and an increased number of home games. Getting 12 teams to come to Orono, Maine in the winter is progress in itself.

VERMONT

Howard Hudson will be back to run an offense which the Catamounts (10-19) had trouble finding much of last season but coach Bill Whitmore has more than one problem-like 16 road games which include Notre Dame. Dayton and LaSalle.

In the league, the Cats have a chance to better their 4-8 mark if 6-5 guard Bill Brown (15.1 ppg) continues to shoot well and replacements are found for graduated doublefigure frontcourters Peter Cole and Tim Woodlee. Much is expected from 6-7 sophomore forward Jim Simko (7.0 ppg) and 6-11 sophomore David Thompson, who hasn't played a game yet. Thompson was a redshirt and according to Whitmore, he showed "signs of brilliance" in practice.

Another Thompson, 6-7 Matt who came from a California junior college and 6-7 freshman Chris DeWeaver are the others figuring to bolster the inside game. The Cats are a nonsenior group and only experience can improve their success.

COLGATE

Tony Relvas took over a declining program a year ago, and from a record standpoint things got worse. The Red Raiders were 3-24 overall and winless in the league. But Relvas insists, "the kids did learn a new system and they were very competitive. Eight of our losses were by five points or less.

Speaking of losses, forward Eric Jones, the team's top scorer and rebounder is gone.

Three sophomores, 6-3 forward Don Pugh (7.7 ppg), 6-8 center Brad Crooks (5.0 ppg) and 6-1 guard Tad Brown (7.8 ppg) form the returning nucleus. The other lettermen are 6-7 Robin Graff, 6-5 Dave Carty, 6-4 Lowell Steen and 6-3 Steve Errico, all forwards; and guards Derrick Godfrey and Willie McDonald.

There's some talent in the freshman class but 6-5 forward Bob Bamford is the only member of the new quartet over six feet. The others are guards Mike Boswell, Josh Farrell and Mike Rossi.

Relvas learned defense as an assistant to Pete Carril at Princeton and the Red Raiders will need plenty of that to stay afloat.

metro atlantic

by Don Markus

In the conference-conscious world of college basketball these days, it's usually upcoming programs that join well-established leagues in order to gain exposure and recognition.

In the Metro Atlantic Athletic Conference, otherwise known as the MAAC, things are being done a little backwards in hopes of this much-improved two-year-old league moving a couple of steps forward.

Holy Cross and LaSalle, two schools steeped in basketball tradition, will add credibility to the previously-maligned league. Both teams figure to make a dent into what might have been a one-school (lona) race.

The theme of tradition became the MAAC's message when the Crusaders and Explorers joined this pilgrimage to the promised land of the NCAA tournament, No MAAC team has ever made it to Mecca.

What these schools offer, aside from competitiveness, is accessibility to a major market (Philadelphia) and a couple of large arenas (The Spectrum in Philly and the 12,500-seat Centrum in Worcester, Mass.).

The addition of Holy Cross and LaSalle could make the MAAC a little top-heavy because Fordham and Manhattan are rebuilding while Fairfield and Army are still a couple of years away.

But the MAAC, born out of frustration with the Big East, should finally find some welldeserved satisfaction this winter. After learning to crawl in its first season, after taking its baby steps last year, the MAAC could do some serious running in the next few months.

IONA

Seems like only yesterday that Pat Kennedy was replacing some guy named Valvano and Gary Springer was taking over for some guy named Ruland. Yesterday was four years ago. Will the promise the Gaels have shown finally blossom?

"It's starting to sound like a broken record," Pat Kennedy says, "but we have everybody back." Everybody from a team that finished 22-9 and lost to Nebraska in the second round of the NIT. Everybody, including the 6-7 Springer (13.4 ppg, 8.4 rpg) and 6-2 senior guard Steve Burtt.

Springer, who was the best player in the Met area as a freshman, has been plagued by tendinitis in the knees ever since. He is back to his freshman weight (210) after losing 15 pounds over the summer. It is Burtt who took over from Ruland in the record books, as the top junior scorer (23.2 ppg) in the school's history. He should become the highest-scoring Gael ever this winter.

Don Markus is covering basketball for the Bergen (N.J.) Record after earlier stints at Long Island's Newsday and the New York Post. He's made it to the Final Four two years running and hopes to make it three in Seattle.

The supporting cast is the same: 6-9, 220-pound junior Bobby Coleman (9.7 ppg, 4.9 rpg) patrolling the middle with his Rodney McCray body; 6-4 junior Tony Hargraves (8.3 ppg, 6.3 rpg, 5.4 apg) is Kennedy's top all-purpose player; Rory Grimes, the 5-11 junior point guard who is already No. 1 in the record books for assists. With 6-7 Troy Truesdale eligible again, and with 6-7 transfer Wendell Walters, the Gaels could make the NCAAs.

LA SALLE

The Explorers are certainly not a one-man team, but the status of 6-3 junior guard Steve Black will have a lot to do with their first-year success in the MAAC. Black, who led LaSalle in scoring (20.1 ppg) before and after being sidelined with a stress fracture for 13 games,

Predicted order of finish:

- 1. Iona; 2. LaSalle; 3. Holy Cross;
- 4. St. Peter's; 5. Fordham;
- 6. Fairfield; 7. Manhattan; 8. Army is the difference between a conference race and watching lona run away from the pack.

Lefty Ervin's second season was played in three parts: before Black's injury, the Explorers were 5-4; during it they were 6-7; after he returned LaSalle won seven of 10 games in a stretch drive that produced a final ECC championship and a bid to the NCAAs (Virginia Commonwealth 76, LaSalle 67 in the first round).

Though five lettermen were lost, including one named David, only 7-1 Tom Piotrowski will be missed. The front court combination of 6-9 junior Albert Butts (12.3 ppg, 9.6 rpg) and 6-5 junior Ralph Lewis (13.1 ppg, 8.1 rpg) is back along with Black and 6-4 soph Chip Greenberg, the ECC's top freshman last season (11.3 ppg, 3.7 rpg) in the backcourt.

Either Butts will move to center, or else 6-8 freshman Larry Koretz will have to learn a new position. Koretz was a first-team all-Pennsylvania player in Wilkes Barre, and is a pretty good outside shooter. Black and Greenberg will be backed up by 6-1 freshman Rich Tarr, the state's top scorer at Shamokin H.S.

HOLY CROSS

The Crusaders could surprise a lot of people in the MAAC this winter. Four starters return from a 17-13 team that put things together toward the end of the season and lost by a point to Boston University in the final of the ECAC North playoffs.

The starters, and the renewed eligibility of 6-9 senior Ernie Floyd (10.6 ppg as a junior two years ago) will make up for the loss of Chris Logan, the team's leading scorer.

Pat Elzie, a 6-8 senior (11 ppg, 9 rpg) and 6-7 senior Darren Maloney (12 ppg, 6 rpg) will join Floyd in the frontcourt with 6-2 juniors Larry Westbrook (8 ppg, 6 apg) and Jim Runcie (14 ppg) in the backcourt.

The best of the newcomers is Dennis Ahearn, a 6-6 swingman who was all-Long Island at Holy Family. Remember this about the Crusaders: coach George Blaney has not had a losing season in 10 years. This shouldn't be his second in the last 11.

ST DETER'S

Bob Dukiet is compiling one of those records (81-32) that gets people jobs in higher places. But until Pete Carril leaves Princeton, or until Carril's prize student stops imitating the master himself, don't expect Dukiet to be anywhere but Jersey City.

The stay will be made pleasant by the return of the two top scorers from last year's 22-5 team that lost a shot at the NCAAs with a disappointing conference playoff and a chance at the NIT with a schedule baked by Hostess.

Shelton Gibbs, a 6-3 junior forward, was one of the best players in the Met area (19.0 ppg, 4.3 rpg) and 6-5 senior Tommy Best lived up to his name (15.3 ppg, 6.6 rpg) after transferring from Lafayette.

The most promising newcomers are freshman forward Darren Rowe of New Rochelle, N.Y. and junior forward Leonard Hayes, who averaged 14.8 points a game at Northern Illinois before switching schools.

As for Dukiet, his teams still play one of the best zone defenses around and can hold the ball with anybody (ask Eddie Sutton of Arkansas). But until the Peacocks can get a horse in the middle, and until the Division II's come off the schedule, Dukiet shouldn't expect too many post-season invitations.

FORDHAM

This year Tom Penders might have to do it with mirrors. Gone are David Maxwell and Mark Murphy, the backcourt that provided the Rams with many special moments in their 19-11 season.

. How much they are missed depends greatly on the improvement of 6-2 juniors Tony McIntosh (7.4 ppg, 9I7 assists) and Jerry Hobbie (4.9 ppg). They could make a difference in the Rams being MAAC contenders or also-rans.

STREET AND SMITH'S COLLEGE & PRO BASKETBALL

Penders, now in his sixth season on Rose Hill, had a big recruiting year. The best of the seven incoming freshmen are Joe Franco, a 6-4 first team All-Catholic guard from nearby McClancey and 6-6 forward Frank Williams of St. Agnes on Long Island.

The most interesting new face might belong to Rodney Darck, a 6-7 forward from Zimbabwe. If accepted, Darck is the third African to play for Penders in the last four years. Ed Bona, who has graduated, will be replaced by 6-8 freshman Chris Edwards of Buffalo.

Unless Darck is a quick learner of the American college game—neither Bona nor his 7-foot cousin Dud Tongal were—6-5 senior Dave Roberson (7.1 ppg, 3.6 rpg) and 6-5 junior Don McCormick (4.3 ppg, 1.9 rpg) will start up front. Clean those mirrors, Tom.

FAIRFIELD

Call this The Four Freshmen: the second year. Last season was no Stag party for coach Terry O'Connor as his young team struggled to a 13-15 record. Without leading scorer Pete De-Bisschop, who has graduated, last year's freshmen will be looked upon for leadership.

The scoring role will have to be filled by 6-3 guard Tony George, who averaged 15 points a game but was often erratic. George will be joined in the backcourt by either sophomore Tom O'Toole or freshman Ed Golden of Bergen (N.J.) Catholic.

The frontcourt positions will be occupied by the team's only senior, 6-6 Jerry Johnson (8 ppg, 6 rpg) and either 6-4 sophomore Pat Yarina or 6-5 sophomore Jay Byrne. Two freshmen, 6-8 Jeff Gromis of Joliet, III. and Kevin McCloud of San Diego, (The school's first legitimate 7-footer) will see playing time.

Iona's Gary Springer (42) and Steve Burtt (15) are best of bunch that includes (clockwise from top) Pat Elzie, Jerry Hobbie and Chip Greenberg.

A transfer, A.J. Widner, showed some promise at Massachusettes and could fall into O'Connor's plans if an appeal goes through with the NCAA. The soph guard is trying to challenge the age-old transfer rule because of the coaching change in Amherst last spring.

"We think all of them can help," O'Connor says of a recruiting class that also includes two players from Sheboygan, 6-5 Chip Simena and 6-7 Eric Porter. "Everyone could get a shot."

That could be the problem. Or, perhaps, an answer.

MANHATTAN

The Jaspers started off last year 8-0 and everyone wanted to know what Gordon Chiesa was ordering at his pre-game meals. Reality returned, two key starters got hurt, and the Jaspers faded to 15-13. Not bad in Riverdale, but certainly not NCAA tournament material.

The injured parties, Jim Bronner and Joe McGuinness, have recovered but have since graduated. Sophomore guard Perry Bromwell, the 6-2 skywalker who was second in scoring (13.1 ppg) got homesick and returned home to Philly. Watch for him at Temple or LaSalle next year.

It's going to be a good year," says Chiesa. "We lose a lot but some of our support players will be lead players." The man could find a silver lining in a gold lame dress.

The best of the returnees is 6-7 junior forward Tim Cain (17.7 ppg, 5.7 rpg), the team's leading scorer but primarily a jump shooter. Bill McClellan, a 6-8 junior (2.7 ppg, 1.4 rpg) who started the last 10 games, will be in the middle with 6-5 sophomore Maurice Williams (2.9 ppg, 1.9 rpg) at the other forward.

Chiesa's Clairol backcourt is a rather large question mark: 6-1 junior blonde twins Jim and John Haufler fighting it out with 6-2 sophomore blonde Steve Klemick.

ARMY

The Cadets ended their 11-18 season on a positive note, a victory over Manhattan in the first round of the MAAC playoffs. "Last year was the year to surprise some people," says second-year coach Les Wothke. "This season we won't be able to do that."

But after more than doubling the win production from 81-82, Army should at least equal last year's total. Three starters return, the best of whom is 6-5 all-MAAC guard Randy Cozzens, a junior who led the team in scoring (17 ppg).

Also returning is Ken Schwartz (15 ppg, 6 rpg), a 6-7 sophomore and potentially Army's best player since Gary Winton. Mark Michaelson (8 ppg, 7 rpg), another sophomore is the team's center at 6-7.

At the time of this writing, the team's only senior and captain-to-be, 6-3 guard Dennis Schlitt, was hospitalized in the Walter Reed Medical Center with an undisclosed illness.

Wothke is counting on four plebes to pitch in and help the cause: Kenny Houston, a 6-0 guard from Pearl River, N.Y. who prepped for a year at Fort Monmouth, N.J.; Mike Yaeger, a 6-6 forward from Galesburg, Ill.; Ronald Steptoe, a 6-4 all-city swingman from Washington D.C.; and Eric Mobley, a 6-6 all-state forward from Carlisle,O.

"We made real positive strides with new personnel and a new system," says Wothke, who opened up the offense a bit. "I hope we continue to make progress."

If you're looking for an apt analogy for the Big East Conference, try the television show Dynasty. Many people in diverse places will be watching Big East basketball on TV this year—no other conference has as many of its games televised—but the quality of the show has slipped. Ratings are still rising, though. Ratings up and show down; just like Dynasty.

And returning to prime time play will be the Hoyas of Georgetown, much the best team in the Big East and quite possibly THE team of the country for the next two years. Patrick Ewing has remained in school as expected, the entire cast—a year older and somewhat wiser—is back and John Thompson has landed yet another high school All America.

That's six, if you're still counting.

The only team that can make a run at the Hoyas is Boston College, the football-hockey school that has given slow-to-change Boston a savory taste of the college basketball mania that has swept the country. The show is never dull with the Eagles; exciting Michael Adams directing the production, slick-shooting Jay Murphy scoring the points and manic coach Gary Williams doing his best Kevin Loughery-imitation. Exciting, yes, but also very good.

The major transformation in the Big East this season is the disappearance of the league's competitive balance (BC, St. John's and Villanova all finished the league card with 12-4 marks in '82-83). Georgetown is heads above everybody, BC shoulders above the rest and graduation-depleted Villanova, Syracuse and St. John's will have to retool its machines. Pitt, that ole football school, could surprise.

But all is not bleak. A downtick in the Big East's rapid rise to the top could be all but hidden by the grand potential of Georgetown. The Final Four beckons.

GEORGETOWN

The feeling with Georgetown is the same as prior to the '81-82 season—the Hoyas are about to explode. Coach John Thompson is ready for another run to the Final Four.

The Hoyas are much the best of the Big East and if the hype of last season was a year premature, the hope of this season is not. The Hoyas of '82-83 were too young and Freddie Brown was hurt but Brown and all five starters are back, a year stronger and a year wiser.

Look for two keys this season: (a) the defense will meld into the killer chemistry of '81-82 and (b) the offense will refrain from those mindless 20-foot jumpers of much of last season. And while the Why-Can't-They-Get-The-Ball-Into-The-Middle? spotlight till now shift from Terry Holland and Ralph Sampson to

Mike Madden, now a columnist for the Boston Globe, did his time covering the New England Patriots of the NFL but his first love was always college basketball and those final-round Holiday Festival tripleheaders at the old Madison Square Garden.

John Thompson and Patrick Ewing, the Hoyas have a more complete cast to handle this.

The 6-11 junior Ewing (17.7 ppg, 10.2 rpg) was hounded, hassled and harried by everything from ushers to elbows last season, but Ewing is simply immense at both ends. And with juniors Billy Martin (10.6 ppg, 6.3 rpg) and Anthony Jones (7.5 ppg, 3.5 rpg) maturing and sophs David Wingate (12 ppg) and

Predicted order of finish:

- 1. Georgetown; 2. Boston College;
- 3. Pittsburgh; 4. Villanova;
- 5. Syracuse; 6. St. John's;
- 7. Connecticut; 8. Providence;
- 9. Seton Hall

Michael Jackson (11.6 ppg) developing, the Hoyas have a cast of five high school All-Americans. Add to that list a sixth, freshman Reggie Williams from Baltimore Dunbar HS, the best prep forward in the country.

With Brown back after pre-season surgery in '82 and heady senior Gene Smith to steal the ball on defense and give it to his teammates on offense, Thompson has your basic total team. Nothing was lost from last year's team (22-10, 9-5), gained were experience, a healthy Brown and Williams. Now, if Thompson were only to give this team an offense as good as his defense.

BOSTON COLLEGE

Want to know how deep is the blas against college basketball in Boston where the Celtics are king and all hockey players noble princes?

It extends even to this bred-in-Boston typewriter which has seen the Eagles win two Big East titles in three years yet never has picked them higher than fifth. No more slammed in Boston for the Eagles because BC should be second and, says coach Gary Williams, "we can be a threat if everybody plays well."

Williams needed only a month to dispel the lingering comparisons to departed coach Tom Davis and the Eagles (25-7, 12-4) quickly soared. Before it ended, BC again was in the NCAA final 16, a college game had sold out the Boston Garden and basketball, invented 90 miles down the road, was more than the Celtics in Boston, Finally.

Everybody is back from the '82-83 team that won the Big East regular-season title except center John Garris and reserve Burnett Adams but Garris will be sorely missed. Williams is hopeful that 6-8 frosh Troy Bowers can fill some of the void in the middle and freshman guard Rodney Rice can ease BC's outside shooting problems.

But those are the only questions because 6-11 senior Jay Murphy (17.1 ppg. 8.8 rpg) may be the best-shooting big man in the country and 5-8 junior waterbug guard Michael Adams (18.3 ppg, 4.3 assts.) is the most exciting little man. Senior Martin Clark, 6-9, sacrificed much, including some of his confidence, as a role player last season but he should revert to his sophomore form. Sophs Dominic Pressley, Roger McCready and Terrence Talley all developed steadily on this run and gun for fun team.

Realists will say this team lacks a true center just as realists said last year's team lacked John Bagley. With BC, realists are wrong.

PITTSBURGH

The Panthers walked away with the Sigmund Freud Memorial "Just Who Am I Anyway?" Award with upsets of St. John's, Syracuse and Georgetown and downfalls to Seton Hall, Providence and Connecticut.

But Pitt coach Roy Chipman had to consider his maiden jaunt through the Big East a success, even though "the league was more difficult from top-to-bottom than we thought it would be."

The Panthers (13-15, 6-11) should growl into the first division this season with nine of their top 10 scorers returning and four promising newcomers adding zest. Best of all, though, Pitt boasts 6-4 forward Clyde Vaughan (21.9 ppg, 9.2 rpg), the Big East's leading scorer and third-leading rebounder.

Chipman is hoping that a deeper team will enable Vaughan "to score as much without taking as many shots" and perhaps rest a bit more from his 39 minutes a game of '82-83. The question once again for Pitt is at center with 6-9 junior Andre Williams (9 ppg, 5 rpg) moving back to forward and 6-9 soph Jeff Robinson, a transfer from Cincinnati, possibly taking over the post.

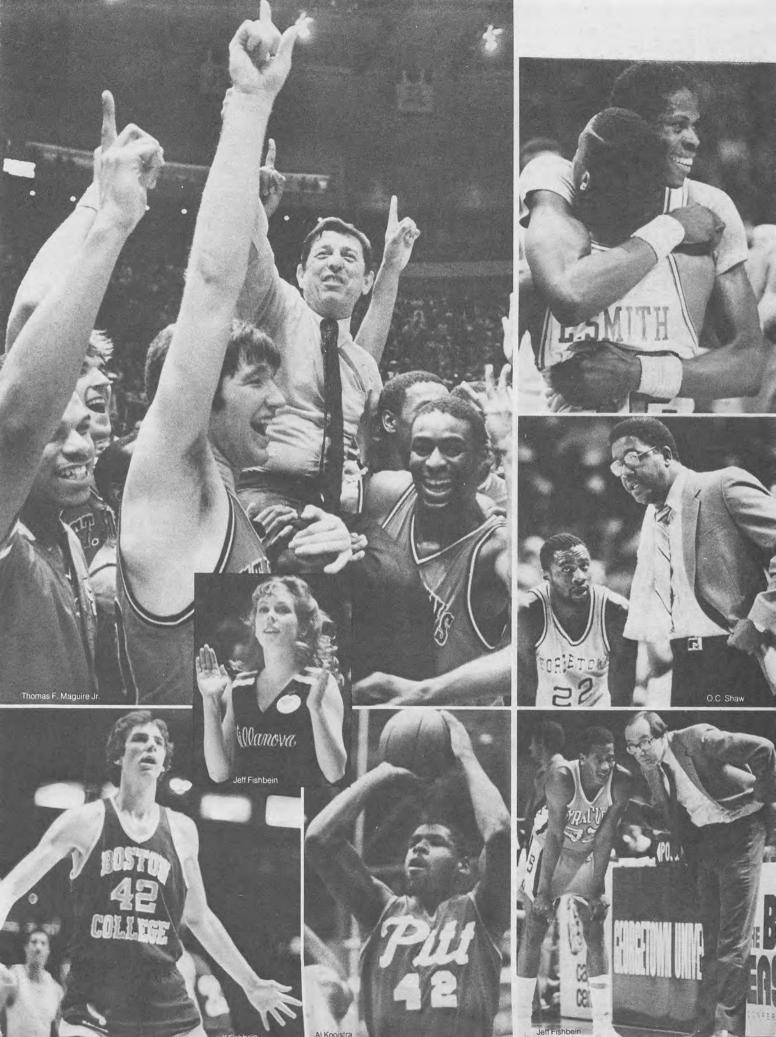

Senior point guard Billy Culbertson was second in the league in assists (5.9 per game) while mucho good things are expected from 5-11 frosh guard Curtis Aiken from Buffalo (40 ppg), a super jump shooter who should ease Vaughan's scoring load. More help is expected from 6-5 soph Darryl Shepherd who touched some raw nerves by transferring crosstown from Duquesne.

Chipman says he would like Pitt "to sneak into the top four or five schools this season" and that is very possible; possible, that is, if somebody besides Vaughan can score in double figures.

VILLANOVA

The way Rollie Massimino looks at the graduation of John Pinone, Stewart Granger and Mike Mulquin, "we lost close to 4000 points, 1400 rebounds and over 900 assists." And you thought the Continental League was highscoring.

All sorts of faces can be found in Big East, topped by triumphant Looie Carnesecca and St. John's, Georgetown's Pat Ewing, Gene Smith and John Thompson, BC's Jay Murphy, Pitt's Clyde Vaughn, Syracuse's Gene Waldron and Coach Jim Boeheim.

The Villanova coach won't need all his fingers and all his toes, though, to add up this season's wins because the Wildcats may end up with less than 20 for only the second time in the last eight seasons.

True, 11 lettermen are returning but when the Wildcats (24-8, 12-4) were vivisected by the Phi Slama Jamas of Houston in the NCAAs, an era of grandeur ended. A new era will have to begin with 6-10 junior Ed Pinckney (12.5 ppg, 9.7 rpg), the slinky-smooth allleague and honorable mention All-America forward who blocked 65 shots and shot 57 percent from the field. Pinckney, though, seemed to level off with the entire Villanova team late last season and, if this team is to cause any ripples, Pinckney must do the splashing.

Junior swingman Dwayne McClain (10.6 ppg, 3.3 rpg) must become more than a 6-6 jump-shooter, and 6-7 soph forward Harold Pressley must find his head. The ex-high school All-America averaged a mere 4.5 ppg and 4.5 rpg, replacing the 76ers on the list of Philly disappointments.

Gary McClain (4.7 ppg. 2.8 assts.) is solid in the backcourt and Happy Dobbs is handy but 6-4 frosh guard Harold Jensen (23 ppg, 8.2

rpg, 5.5 assists) must score and speedy 6-7 freshman Connally Brown (18 ppg, 12 rpg) will have to shore up the frontline.

Unless Rocky IV is filmed out on the Main Line, this may be a rocky season for Rollie.

SYRACUSE

Not since Elvis slipped off to the Army has so much been expected of a recruit—but can Dwayne "Pearl" Washington put juice back into the Orange? And is there life after Rautins, Santifer and Bruin? The answers to those questions better be positive or the winter in Syracuse may be awfully long and very cold.

For at least the start of this season, Dire Straits will be singing the team song and Faded Glory designing the team uniforms because coach Jim Boeheim has many questions to answer.

His three top scorers are gone from the 21-10 team of '82-83 and while the heralded 6-2 frosh Washington (35 ppg, 10 rpg, 8 assists, 4 steals) can do much, the All-American can't play forward. Washington will team with steady senior point-guard Gene Waldron (9.3 ppg, 4.3 assists) in the backcourt with junior Sonny Spera and 6-3 frosh Greg Monroe as the backups.

Now the hard part-the frontcourt. Both 6-8 junior center Andre Hawkins (5.5 ppg. 3.4 rpg) and 6-8 senior forward Sean Kerins (4.2 ppg, 2.1 rpg) are steady but not spectacular while 6-7 soph Rafael Addison (8.4 ppg. 3.1 rpg) and 6-9 soph Wendell Alexis (5.6 ppg. 4.4 rpg) can be spectacular but not steady. Hometown frosh Howard Triche, 6-5, and 6-11 Canadian freshman (never forget that Leo Rautins also was a Canadian) should help in the frontcourt.

Syracuse's 13 consecutive years in postseason play are proof enough that Boeheim will succeed. When that will happen is another matter: in the meantime, roll that videotape of Rautins' pass to Bruin and that alley-oop to Santifer for the stuff.

ST JOHN'S

There is none better than Lou Carnesecca in giving out quotes, but last season he gave New York City a championship, a Big East tournament win over Boston College in Madison Square Garden on a day "my kids walked with kings." And a prince was leading them.

But the St. John's coach will be hardpressed to fall even within the shadow of the wonderful '82-83 season (28-5, 12-4). Gone to the NBA draft are David Russell, Kevin Williams, Billy Goodwin and Bobby Kelly and left are 6-6 junior guard Chris Mullin, memories, hope and Looie's one-liners. Mullin can be described neither by statistics (19.1 ppg, 3.7 rpg, .553 field goal percentage, .889 from the line) nor by adjectives such as savvy, gutsy, street-smart, splendid, marvelous and wonderful for he is all those and more. If he could rebound better, Mullin would be the complete package, C.O.D.

Junior 7-0 center Bill Wennington (5.5 ppg, 4.4 rpg) and junior forward Ron Stewart (3 ppg, 1.6 rpg) return but Carnesecca is looking to see what riches are flowing from his New York City pipeline this year. First off is guard Mike Moses who left the city for the University of Florida but soon joined that long list of players either run off by or run away from Florida coach Norm Sloan. Now Moses is back home and ready to play. More riches come in the person of freshman blue-chipper Mark Jackson (18.6 ppg, 4.0 rpg). The Redmen will be young but fret not; the old coach is wise, and he will win again.

CONNECTICUT

If you can remember how far smallish Georgia went last season with speed and motion, you can imagine what Coach Dom Perno will be trying to do this season-the Huskies will be small but very quick.

Let's start with soph guard Earl Kelley (16.7 ppg), the Big East's Rookie of the Year who had to work for both his honor and his points because UConn (12-16, 5-11) had few threats besides him in '82-83. Kelley is the type discerning fans love-he wants the ball when the game is hanging-but this year he should receive scoring help from 6-5 juco transfer Alvin "Skinner" Frederick (27 ppg). 6-7 Ray Broxton, a transfer from Old Dominion via North Florida JC, should contribute and scouts rate 6-6 frosh Ken Henry a sleeper.

Karl Hobbs' size (5-8) has been knocked for three years but the senior guard (11.8 ppg. 4 assists) does too much not to play. 6-7 soph Eddie Williams (7.6 ppg, 4.7 rpg) made a smooth transition from Air Force basketball to Big East ball while 6-7 soph Tim Coles (5.3 ppg, 5 rpg) and 6-9 junior Larry Blucher (2.9 ppg, 4.6 rpg) can be solid.

Perno may not have a true center and he may experiment with his elements like a mad scientist but the Huskies should be exciting. Mix a dab of motion with a burst of speed and the chemistry can be explosive.

PROVIDENCE

Big East headquarters may be in Providence but Providence has now developed into a hockey school and the Friars again will be suffering through one of those unhappy years. Yet another one.

High-scoring Ron Jackson is gone and much will be expected and demanded of wondrous 6-9 senior center Otis Thorpe (16.1 ppg, 8 rpg) and Joe Mullaney's best recruiting year since he returned to the school. The Friars (12-19, 4-12) have returning seniors Sean Canty and Keith Lomax (10 ppg and 7 rpg between them) and Ray Knight, Carl Hill and Harold Starks now can grow from their year of experience but it is to the freshmen that the Friar faithful gaze longingly.

Jacek Duda, 6-10, from the Polish National Team, is the tallest while 6-7 Canadian forward Dave Kipfer and 6-4 guard Ernest Lewis are impressive. And 6-0 guard Billy Donovan and 6-5 forward Brian Waller should also help. And help is needed, For at least another year, PC's long-suffering fans will have to be content for an upset or two from Mullaney's harassing defenses.

SETON HALL

The Pirates took their first step out of their permanent home in the league coal bin in '82-83 and this year should be even brighter; P.J. Carlesimo has brought excitement back to the He's also brought in players; three juco transfers from California to meld with the eight returnees from last season's 6-23 (1-15 in the league) squad.

"We have continuity this year," says the second-year coach, but the Pirates also have 6-6 soph Andre McCloud (16.6 ppg, 6.6 rpg), good on the boards and soft on the shooting touch.

Both of Seton Hall's 6-6 senior forwards, Tom Brown and Marvin Morris, finished strongly last season, averaging 24 points between them over the final 12 games.

Senior guard Ken Powell (8.8 points, 109 assists) is nifty and both 6-7 junior forwardcenter Sir John Collins and 6-6 senior Michael Ingram will be returning after missing last season with injuries.

Two of the three jucos are guards-Mike Jones of Merced (Cal.) JC and Ransom Eaves of Pasadena (Cal.) City College while the third, Jim Wood, will be the tallest Pirate at 6-9. Hope finally returns to the Hall.

WEST VIRGINIA

by Jim O'Brien

The Atlantic 10 is more ambitious and optimistic than ever, much more so than it was last year, or in its six previous years of operation as the Eastern Eight. And with good cause.

There is, up front, a league-wide TV contract of some merit, with some significant money to help everybody's budget. There is, at the end, a post-season tournament that will have all ten teams at West Virginia Coliseum, where there will be crowds to cheer and jeer, and add some much-needed atmosphere to the championship competition.

Last season, as the Atlantic 10, the tournament attracted 15,555 for three days of competition in the Spectrum in Philadelphia. The year before that, in the Eastern Eight's swan song at the Civic Arena in Pittsburgh, where it had become an annual box-office smash, it drew 16,056 for the finals alone.

West Virginia won the title the last time out, and its athletic director convinced his cronies around the Atlantic 10 to turn deaf ears to their respective coaches' criticism-as he often has to do-and come to his campus coliseum for a real, honest-to-goodness go at it for the automatic NCAA berth.

"We have the ingredients to be good," says West Virginia athletic director Fred Schaus of the Atlantic 10. "We're not there yet, but I think we're headed in the right direction.

"All we need is three or four really blue-chip, well-known players. The rest comes. Our society is star-oriented. When the big guys come in-wherever the 76ers or Lakers play-they sell out. We need some well-known-kids, some bonafide All-Americans, like Patrick Ewing, who was nationally known coming out of high school.'

Ewing, of course, is the star at Georgetown, which competes in the Big East, or Big Beast, the big brother by which the Atlantic 10 suffers by comparison.

The Atlantic 10 has good schools, some good basketball teams, some excellent coaches, and reportedly recruited well.

Temple, which won six straight before bowing to West Virginia in the championship game last March, is thought to be the team to beat, with St. Joseph's, West Virginia and George Washington the top challengers

There will be no East and West divisions this year, just a 10-team league, like the Big Ten, playing a round-robin schedule.

There are some new coaches, Bruce Parkhill replacing Dick Harter at Penn State, and Ron Gerlufsen succeeding Tom McLaughlin at Massachusetts.

The league is dropping the three-point field goal, and hopefully its second-rate image.

Jim O'Brien is in his 13th year as editor of Street & Smith's Basketball Yearbook, and has been a member of the nominating committee for the Basketball Hall of Fame, and the ratings board of the Associated Press

TEMPLE

It took awhile for the 20th Century to open its doors to John Chaney, but it was worth the wait. For Chaney, and certainly the rest of us. He's a gem.

Nobody, not even Rocky Balboa, knows Philadelphia and its basketball-ambitious youngsters, like Chaney, who played and coached on every level. Temple gave him his well-deserved shot at the big time after a highly-successful career at Cheyney State

It took time for his Temple team to get its act together last season, but the Owls opened their eyes and won six straight in a torrid stretch run before running out of gas, and nearly guards, against West Virginia in the Atlantic 10 championship contest. They finished at 14-15.

It's difficult to forget Chaney's comments afterward:

Predicted order of finish:

- 1. Temple; 2. St. Joseph's;
- 3. George Washington;
- 4. West Virginia;
- 5. St. Bonaventure; 6. Rutgers;
- 7. Penn State; 8. Massachusetts;
- 9. Duquesne; 10. Rhode Island

"The lowly-touted sometimes become the gifted. The games are not always won by talent. Our kids never lost their confidence. The human being is unbelievable. The more you ask, the more you can get. And we kept asking for more. That's the difference between the good, the great, and the also-rans."

Temple was missing a good guard, Jim McLoughlin, out with a bad leg for the last game, and even its great guard, Terence Stansbury, couldn't make up for his loss. Both are back this season for their senior years, and there's a chance that Granger Hall might be back, recovered from a knee injury, by January, in time for another run at the title.

Hall, a 6-8 junior, tore ligaments in his knee after five games. He had been averaging 20.6 points and 7.4 rebounds. He has been granted two more years of eligibility.

The Owls have a big, and battle-tested backcourt. Stansbury is a lean, lithe 6-5, an All-American candidate who averaged 24.6 points. McLoughlin is 6-4, and averaged 16.3 points and 4.7 assists.

The supporting cast contributes in a big way. There's 6-5 junior swingman Charles Rayne (10.8 ppg, 6.1 rpg), 6-6 senior forward Pete Aguilar (7.6 ppg, 4.9 rpg), skinny 6-9 senior center Colin McNish (4.2 ppg, 4.6 rpg), 6-6 sophomore forward Kevin Clifton (4.1 ppg, 2.4 rpg).

Best of the newcomers is Nate Blackwell, a 6-4 guard from Philadelphia's Southern High. He'll catch on fast to Chaney's credo.

"This team is motivated to win on adversity. You just keep asking.

Jim Boyle, the basketball coach here, can appreciate Chaney, the Temple team, Philadelphia's rich basketball tradition, and the fact that his Hawks have the best chance at bumping Temple, and last year's champion, West Virginia, off the top this time around

Boyle was a tough, ball-Hawking, fiesty forward in his playing days at St. Joe's. He could make the play. And he recruited good kids, as he proved as an assistant to Jimmy Lynam, and when he went 25-5 two years ago in his first fling as head coach.

He'd don the school mascot's costume and flap his wings during a Big Five game at the Palestra if it would help. He has to appreciate. too, a player like Bob Lojewski, a 6-7 junior forward who was the Hawks' MVP and its leading scorer with an 18.2 average. Lojewski also averaged 7.7 rebounds and, like Temple's Stansbury, rated a Pan-Am Games tryout.

To go with Lojewski in hopes of improving on a 15-13 record, Boyle is banking on Tony Costner, a 6-10, 250 senior center (15.2 ppg, team-leading 9.3 rpg and 60 blocks), 6-6 senior swingman Lonnie McFarlan (16.1 ppg, 4.3 rpg, 82 assists), 6-6 sophomore Maurice Martin (10.4 ppg, 4.8 rpg, team-high 121 assists, 74 steals), and 6-3 sophomore guard Wayne Williams (7.8 ppg, 3 rpg).

Top freshmen are James Flint from Episcopal Academy (20.8 ppg, 5.8 rpg), and two Monsignor Bonner boys, Jack Concannon and Jim Carr. Now they're all Boyle's boys.

GEORGE WASHINGTON

Wherever Gerry Gimelstob goes, the greats of the game go with him, for they are a moveable feast. He packs Bobby Knight in his bag, Red Auerbach, Jerry Pimm, and other people who have had an impact on his coaching career. He pulls them out when he wants to make points.

Temple trio includes Coach John Chaney (at top) flanked by first—rate guards Jim McLoughlin and Terence Stansbury.

At times, Gimelstob stops sportswriters dead in their tracks with his Knight-like bleatings, and comes off as a moveable beast. But he's not a bad guy, once you get to know him, and get past his tough-kid-from-Newark act.

Gimelstob has got GWU going wild about basketball after two years on the job, after the program had bottomed out under Bob Tallent, the previous coach. The Colonials came on fast with a terrific freshman class last year, and hope to make even more significant strides this season.

"We want to have one of the best programs in the East," Gimelstob says. "That's the way we're going, and we're going to do it right. Legally."

For starters, Gimelstob has Mike Brown, a bully at 6-9, 235 and the Atlantic 10's best center (17.1 ppg, 10.3 rpg) as a sophomore last season, and Troy Webster, a 6-4 guard (17.1 ppg, 3.4 rpg) who succeeded Brown as the league's rookie of the year.

Lack of experience killed the Colonials last season when they went 14-15, but Gimelstob sees improvement in a pack of sophomores, Darryl Webster, Mike O'Reilly and Chester Wood, who all averaged about 6.5 points as rookies, and some solid play from senior Craig Helms, a 6-6 forward.

WEST VIRGINIA

Gale Catlett has a great challenge on his hands this winter. The Atlantic 10 tournament is going to be conducted on his home court, wild and wooly WVU Coliseum, and Catlett couldn't ask for more favorable conditions to defend his first league championship.

But gone are star guard Greg Jones and fearless forward Russel Todd, the team's top two productive performers, and Catlett is crying the blues. And golds.

"Any team that loses the likes of Greg Jones and Russel Todd is going to be hurting," conceded Catlett, "but we've got some good young players who figure to improve with increased playing time and responsibilities."

Two solid backup guards, Tony Washam and Quentin Freeman, are gone, too, from the Mountaineers' 23-8 team, but they had lost favor as seniors to some upstarts Catlett will be looking to even more this time around.

Dale Blaney, a 6-4 sophomore guard (6.9 ppg), is a favorite of Fred Schaus, the WVU athletic director who should know a good guard when he sees one, going back to his coaching days here and at Purdue and with the Los Angeles Lakers. "Blaney has natural instincts for this game; I like him.

Catlett likes Lester Rowe, a 6-5 junior forward (10.6 ppg, 6.6 rpg), 6-5 sophomore guard Renardo Brown (4.1 ppg, 3.2 rpg) who figures to blossom with Jones gone, Tim Kearney, a 6-11 good-effort center (7.7 ppg, 6.2 rpg), and Mike King, a 6-5 senior forward. If Adam Powell, a 6-9, 220 junior power forward, ever gets serious, he could shake up some people. Including Catlett.

ST. BONAVENTURE

Jim O'Brien has a name meant for a marquee, or to be in bright lights, at least this author always thought so, going back to O'Brien's days as a slick backcourtman at Boston College and with Kentucky, Pittsburgh and San Diego of the old ABA.

O'Brien had a bright smile, that's for sure, after his Bonnies went 20-10 in his first season, and he shared the league's Coach of the Year honors with Jim Satalin, who had left Olean, N.Y. in favor of Pittsburgh, Pa., and Duquesne U.

O'Brien was smiling even more after he completed what he thought was an outstanding recruiting year. "We've lost some great kids, but we've got some great kids coming in; I'm excited about our prospects."

The Bonnies lost their MVP, Mark Jones, a leader in the classroom—he was the league's perennial scholar-athlete—and on the court (16.4 ppg, team-high 126 assists), and their top two rebounders, 6-8 Eric Stover and 6-8 Rob Garbade.

Norman Clarke, a 6-2 senior guard (10.5 ppg, 90 assists), and Mike Sheehey, a 6-4 senior swingman (13.6 ppg, 3.8 rpg), are looked upon by O'Brien to provide leadership.

Two forwards, 6-5 junior Rob Samuels (7.6 ppg. 4 rpg) and 6-8 sophomore Barry Mungar (4.3 ppg. 2.8 rpg), must improve, but have the tools to be successful.

O'Brien believes he's got the team quickness to run and press again, and fine outside shooting. He'll need help from the freshmen. Immediately. He expects it from two forward-centers, Tom Boney, 6-8, forward-center from Greensburg, Pa., and Pat Allen, 6-9, of Pennsboro, West Va.

RUTGERS

It's hard to put a team coached by Tom Young this far down in the standings in any league, but the handsome coach may need his ubiquitous towel more than ever this winter.

He's lost six seniors from a 23-8 NCAA tournament team, including four starters. The key loss is 6-9 center Roy Hinson (16.6 ppg, 8.6 rpg and 146 blocks), but Kevin Black, Clarence Tillman and Rich Brunson will be sorely missed as well.

Two well-muscled men of the Atlantic 10 are St. Joe's Tony Costner and GW's Troy Webster.

"A big man in the center slot will have to be found," said Young. "Our strength could be the recognized talent of the new recruits. Plus, we've got some experience at guard."

The latter will be provided by Brian Ebberle, a 6-1 junior guard (9.3 ppg, 2.5 rpg), the only returning starter. John Battle, a 6-2 junior (5.9 ppg), is the front-runner at the other spot.

Young needs to find a new frontcourt. Three transfers practiced with the team last season, and there's good size in 6-8 AunDra Bell, 6-6 Steve Perry and 6-7 Steve Williams.

Ker-plunk!

That was LaSalle, last of the Big Five schools, jumping ship in the East Coast Conference and plunging headlong into the placid Metro Atlantic.

The Explorers will hope to make more of a splash in their new league than Temple and St. Joseph's did the previous year when they left the ECC for the Atlantic 10. No one seems to be scurrying for a life ring. In fact, Rider coach John Carpenter can't contain his glee.

The conference, Carpenter says, will be more balanced with the glamor schools gone

Predicted order of finish:

- 1. Rider; 2. American U.;
- 3. Bucknell; 4. Drexel; 5. Hofstra;
- 6. Towson State; 7. Lafayette;
- 8. Delaware; 9. Lehigh

though Rider and the other scholarships-forneed schools outnumber the free-ride institutions by a mere 5-4. With LaSalle drifting away, that leaves only American, two-point loser to the Explorers in the ECC championship game last March, Hofstra, Drexel and Towson State as the remaining schools offering tuition-free educations to their athletes.

The scholarship schools were the big graduation losers, and three of their players were taken in the NBA draft. Rider and Bucknell, who combined for 37 victories last season, now have clear sailing to the first-ever conference title by a non-scholarship school.

ECC teams, no longer divided East and West, will play each other home-and-away for the first time. Carpenter is the dean of ECC coaches at 222-225 for 17 seasons while Terry Truax and Tom Schneider, former assistants at Mississippi State and Penn, respectively, are new head coaches at Towson State and Lehigh.

RIDER

Good news—Carpenter has the horses to replace starters Tom O'Hara (1,279 points), who graduated, and Wayne Gantt, the Princeton transfer whose eligibility ran out. Bad news—the Broncs also could lose starter Ivan Felder, junior who averaged 8.4 points, because of academics.

Whether Felder stays or goes will be the key. Point guard Fred "General" Lee (10.3 ppg) is the stabilizer while 6-8 Kevin Thomas (8.8 ppg, 7.9 rpg) and Derrick Lamar can play with anyone inside. Thomas, at 230 pounds, was the top rebounder in the ECC West.

Lee, Thomas and Lamar were the nucleus of the Rider team last winter that knocked off South Carolina in Columbia and became the first team ever to beat LaSalle at the Explorers' cozy Hayman Hall.

The Broncs open tough—at Alabama, James Madison and Rutgers in their first five games, which Carpenter says will benefit his club over the long haul.

New starters will emerge from a group that includes juniors Mike Bennof and Jim Bolger, Philadelphia Catholic League Player of the Year in 1980-81, and Ray Burke, a senior who has weathered an assortment of academic and physical problems. Jerome Nicholson (12.5 ppg, 8 rpg), 6-8 freshman from St. Peter's Prep in Jersey City, N.J., may help early.

Too many new faces will prevent Rider from going 20-9 again but something like 12-4 will put the Brones in the four-team rush in ECC.

AMERICAN

The American Court System that last season produced a 20-10 record and fell two points short of a berth in the NCAA Tournament will have to come up with some new young minds—and less.

Coach Ed Tapscott, an attorney who expects to take up law practice "somewhere down the road," lost such familiar names as Mark Nickens, Gordon Austin, Juan Jones and Eddie Sloane and Andre Adams. Nickens, Austin and Jones started all 30 games, Sloane, all 26 games he appeared in, and Adams played in every game with 11 starts.

But shed no tears for Tapscott, who saw the crisis on the horizon and spent long days and nights re-stocking the pantry.

Senior Ferdie Aunon (8.4 ppg, 4.9 rpg), 6-7 forward who played in every game last season, is the only returning player with experience. Darnell Swinton (2.3 ppg), swift playmaking guard, and Steve Nesmith (4 ppg, 2.2 rpg) are part of Tapscott's rebuilding.

Frank Ross (16.5 ppg, 4.3 rpg), 6-1 guard from Potomac High School, is one of three talented newcomers. Freshmen Henry Hopkins (17 ppg, 9 rpg) of Summit (N.J.) High School and Pat Witting (21.5 ppg, 7 rpg), 6-4 swingman from Woodson (Va.) will play Forget a fourth straight 20-win season but LaSalle won't be kicking the Eagles around anymore. Raw talent alone should get AU a dozen or so wins in the ECC and maybe 15 overall. The Eagle lives.

BUCKNELL

Good golly, Cholly! Why are you bringing in all those shooting stars?

Charlie Woollum obviously intends to light up a few scoreboards around the ECC, something Jaye Andrews has been doing now for the better part of two seasons. If the lights ever are turned on in Bucknell's Davis Gym, Andrews is liable to score 50.

Andrews averaged a deceiving 13.7 points a game for the Bison last season on a team that featured exceptional balance. If you don't think Woollum isn't a stand-pat sort of a guy, bear in mind the same five players started all 28 (17-11) games.

Reserve Jay Wright is another one who can light 'em up and with Garth Forsyth (28.7 ppg) of Norfolk (Va.) Academy in the freshman class, Woollum's about to begin clamoring for the three-point shot.

Ed Laubach, 43, sports editor of the Easton (Pa.) Express for 13 years, covers Lafayette College basketball. His beat included six winning seasons under Tom Davis and Gary Williams, and three more by Roy Chipman.

Point guard Cal Puriefoy (9 ppg), steady forward Eric Hegedus (8 ppg, 5.3 rpg) and 6-9 Ed Sigl (7.9 ppg, 4.8 rpg) are the other returning starters. Woollum also welcomes back sophs Steve Schrader and Mark Lezanic, a solid backup for Puriefoy. Schrader and Lezanic both sat out last year with injuries.

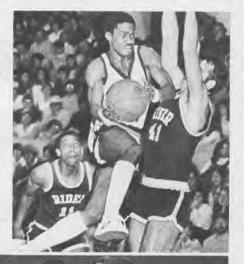

Bucknell's non-conference games won't be too demanding so you can bet Woollum's looking hard at the second 20-win finish in his eight years. The Bison head hanging over the gym entrance in Lewisburg, Pa., nods its approval to that.

DREXEL

Drexel's Dragons will be a fire-breathing beast under the basket but coach Eddie Burke needs a playmaker capable of getting the ball to Richard Congo (13.8 ppg, 7.1 rpg) and Michael Mitchell (9.4 ppg, 6.5 rpg)

For among the departed is John Siorek, a clever little ballhandler who is Drexel's all-time career leader in assists.

If sophomore Chris O'Brien (2.5 ppg) isn't ready to handle the point, then maybe Troy Stribling can do it. Stribling (22.7 ppg, 5.4 rpg) is a freshman from Paulsboro (N.J.) High School who handles the ball well and can shoot. Burke also recruited board help in Casper Cooper (13.6 ppg, 9.2 rpg) out of Kecoughtan High in Hampton, Va.

Burke is counting on 6-7 junior Charlie Hickman (10.2 ppg, 4.6 rpg) and sophomore shooter Walter Fuller (5.6 ppg).

Look for something similar to last year's 14-15 record and make Drexel a darkhorse.

HOFSTRA

The loss of David Taylor, the ECC's most valuable player, and a torn Achilles tendon from tennis that socked coach Dick Berg into a hipto-toe cast, plunged last season's coach of the year into a blue funk over the summer

Berg needn't despair. Charles Minor and transfer Ron Miner should lead their coach from the depths. But with only six returning players, including starters Miles McPartland (9.1 ppg, 7.1 rpg) and Doug Mills (12.9 ppg), Flying Dutchmen can expect no miracles.

Hofstra was extremely Taylor-oriented last season but his departure figures to give Mills, who spent two years at Richmond, freedom to show his stuff. Defensively, Mills was sixth in the country in steals with 3.5 per game.

Minor, a key reserve at 6-7, is a cinch to wind up at one of the forwards with Miner (23 ppg, 8 rpg), transfer from Hilbert JC in Buffalo, a good bet to be at the other.

Robbie Weingard, 5-11 backcourt sub who finished second in assists to Mills a year ago. takes over at the point for durable Eric Harvey who missed one game in four years.

Another 18-9 season seems out of the question; .500 and the middle of the pack in the ECC are more probable.

TOWSON STATE

Towson State has been called the Rip Van Winkle of Division I basketball, a sleeping giant with its modern facility, beautiful campus and ideal location in one of Baltimore's affluent suburban areas.

The Tigers also have a new coach in Terry Truax, renewed enthusiasm and backcourt help to complement a physically awesome frontline that will come from the likes of 6-9

Bucknell's Cal Puriefoy, Hofstra's Doug Mills, Towson State's Dereck Hendricks and Donald Jones are ECC stars.

Truax is hoping that Hendricks, a junior with tremendous potential, will blossom. Key newcomers are Bill Leonard (22 ppg. 6 rpg). Street & Smith's All-America in 1982 from Mc-Keesport, Pa.; Chris Comeaux (6 ppg, 4 rpg), transfer from Hill (Texas) JC; and Alan Gordon (23 ppg) of Bellaire (Texas) High.

The Tigers aren't about to go 7-21 again.

13-12 is a good possibility.

The natives around Easton, Pa., are restless. After 11 winners in a row, the Leopards went 12-15, then 7-21, and no longer are the fat cats of the ECC West.

What's worse for Will Rackley is that he's in the last year of his contract and will be coaching 10 of his team's first 13 games on the road, including stops at the Virginia Tipoff, Princeton, Rutgers, Navy and Notre Dame.

On the positive side, the Leopards were young last season and will continue to be a little damp behind the ears this winter. The entire starting five returns with senior Chet Brightful (12.9 ppg, 3.7 rpg), junior Stan Morse (13 ppg), sophomore Gary Bennett (10.6 ppg, 4.8 rpg), 6-7 senior Allen Goetz (4.1 ppg, 3.4 rpg) and junior point guard Tony Duckett (9.2 ppg, 152 assists).

The Leopards need rebounding specifically, a center. Karl Klinger, a 6-11 junior, is developing slower than expected but Rackley has another 6-11 player to suit up in Steve Everson. Best of the newcomers are Joey Graham of Indianapolis and John Souder of Cinnaminson (N.J.) High School.

DELAWARE

Ron Rainey could not have lost two more valuable players from an 11-14 team than 6-10 Tim Carr (14.6 ppg, 7.9 rpg) and point guard John Staudenmayer, the Blue Hens' career assist leader who had the ability to force-feed a crocodile.

Rainey was unable to recruit a center but is looking hard at Steve Spiegle, 6-9 transfer from Springfield. Best of the freshman class is Brad Heckard, a versatile 20 point scorer from Chief Logan in Lewistown, Pa.

Jon Chamberlain (2.3 ppg) takes over the point in a lineup that includes veterans Tim Tompkins (10.3 ppg, 4.5 rpg) and Len O'Donnell (5.8 ppg, 3.4 rpg).

LEHIGH

Football and wrestling will have their usual winners and basketball, well ... a program might help you identify the players.

The bottom dropped out of Lehigh basketball program when Brian Hill, coach for eight frustrating seasons, took the assistant's job under Bruce Parkhill at Penn State. Then when Hill's assistant, Sal Mentesana, moved on to William and Mary, two of the Engineers' brightest young prospects jumped ship, too.

Carl Chrabascz followed Hill to Penn State and Billy Boesch bolted to Bridgeport.

So, Coach Tom Schneider took up residence on the road in search of players, looking under every rock. Forward Paul Wickman (4.6 ppg, 4 rpg) is the only starter returning. Terry Moran (2.4 ppg, 1.8 rpg), a 6-9 senior, replaces Brain Collins, a 15-point scorer, at center. At last report, Schneider's top recruit was guard Mike Polaha (16 ppg) of Central Catholic in Allentown, Pa.

The Engineers will lose many more than they win this winter.

Fourth is the place to be in the TAAC.

The 1982-83 season will go down in Trans America Athletic Conference history as a year to forget. After losing former charter member Northeast Louisiana to the Southland Conference and having a typographical error lose two expansion members, the NCAA impugned the reputation of the conference by placing the TAAC in the new "pre-tournament qualifying" round. Par for the course, fourth place and surprise champion Georgia Southern promptly confirmed the suspicions of a weak conference by losing to Robert Morris.

Predicted order of finish:

1. Houston Baptist; 2. Centenary;

3. Arkansas-Little Rock;

4. Samford; 5. Georgia Southern;

6. Mercer; 7. Northwestern State;

8. Hardin-Simmons;

Not eligible for championship: Nicholls State

The new season also holds another decided favorite-Houston Baptist. Unlike their predecessors of the last two years, HBU is generally defeated only by other teams-Gene Iba rarely allows his teams to defeat themselves.

Still, favorites have a way of not surviving in the TAAC. None have managed to reach the NCAA's, and if 1983-84 holds to past formula, the third or fourth place finisher wins the tournament. Unless Iba's Huskies can be the wild dogs they were in winning 20 games last year, another breed of dog-Samford Bulldog-or some other animal may spring from pack. Georgia State has signed on for next season.

HOUSTON BAPTIST

Gene Iba, basketball secret agent, is bringing his team in from out in the cold. The truth can now be told, the facts uncovered. There is another basketball team in Houston

Last year's 20-9 finish, 10-4 and second in conference, blew the cover off the Huskies. For 1983-84, cover may not be the only thing HBU blows away. With zero turnover—the only person not returning is an assistant coach-HBU is favorite to win TAAC

Consider the dossiers of the top men:

Anicet Lavodrama, 6-8, 218, All-Conference (10.6 ppg., 6 rpg), son of a diplomat whisked out of Banqui, Central African Republic to receive an American education.

Larry Hollis, 6-6, 195, senior forward (9.5 ppg, 4.45 rpg) NCAA 1983 high jump champion at 7-51/4

Hamilton Lewis, 6-8, junior forward, 1.2 points in 16 games played, recommended to HBU a la his taller cross-town look-alike

Last year, Bill Smith and The Citizen were named the Louisiana Press Association's second place overall sports section in division.

Terry Hairston, 6-5, 218, senior (11.3 ppg, 4.8 rpg) missed being in top three percentage shooters by four attempts.

Sounding more like the characters for a James Bond movie. HBU's agents of basketball are licensed to kill-and with the return of other starters Darryl Jones (8.2 ppg, 165 assists) and Scott Bigott (7.1 ppg, 91 assists) at guards-are primed to do so.

Thanks to Lavodrama's trailblazing, two of the top recruits for HBU also hail from Bangui-by way of Texas TCIL state champions Marion High School-5-7 Fred Goporo (18 ppg., 8 apg) and 6-8 Bruno Konganoin (18 ppg, 13 rpg).

Will HBU beat the favorite's curse? Does 007 get his man?

CENTENARY

This is Willie Jackson's year. The man listed on Centenary fact sheets as a "G-F-C" returns for his senior year with the Gents, after a 16-13, 9-7 third place finish in the TAAC.

The only loss to the Gents' game is 5-11 playmaker guard Napoleon Brydsong's 5 points and 5.6 assists. Returning starters Jackson, senior center Eric Bonner (13.1 ppg. 6.8 rpg), sophomore forward Albert Thomas (11.2 ppg, 5.9 rpg) and junior guard Reggie Hurd (10.7 ppg, 2.1 rpg) make the Gents one of two teams to beat in the TAAC.

Better than last year's record might indicate, Centenary takes on a tough schedule for 1983-84 with appearances in Dallas, Kansas and Montana-providing both exposure for pro prospects Jackson and Bonner and the Shreveport, La.-based Gentlemen.

Coach Tommy Canterbury has signed two juco transfers who can step in immediately-Reginald Mosby of Navarro (14.1 ppg, 7.1 rpg) and Michael Bell of Northern Tex. (17.9 ppg, 14.4 rpg)—and a top high school prospect-Andrew Dewberry of Doyline (22.7 ppg., 13.9 rpg)-making an always tough TAAC competitor, a solid title contender.

ARKANSAS AT LITTLE ROCK

Two games in two years have stood between the Trojans of UALR and the NCAA tournament. Last year, after turning in their second regular season title in as many years, a last second shot from Georgia Southern ended Coach Ron Kestenbaum's best shot for championship in his five years with UALR.

With the loss of 7-0 center Jimmy Lampley (14.9 ppg, 8.1 rpg) and guard Vaughn Williams (15.5 ppg, 2.4 rpg.), last season's 23-6 overall, 12-2 conference, record may have been Kestenbaum's best shot.

The return of UALR to the winner's circle rests squarely on the shoulders of the last of the Bronx Connection-seniors Mike Rivers (13.7 ppg., 4.7 rpg) and Dexter Young (7.7 ppg, 1.6 rpg)

Mourn not for Kestenbaum. With a 74-37 record in the past four years in Little Rock, the

New York native has used his affable style to bring UALR out from under the long shadow of the University of Arkansas. This spring, Kestenbaum pushed back the curtain a little farther with his first major local recruits-Tim Scott (22 ppg), Anthony Ingram (17.8 ppg) and Roy Ralston (25.1 ppg, 8 rpg)-scoring a triple coup.

Craig Beard took the TAAC by storm in 1982-83 making the all-conference squad, and being named the Newcomer of the Year. Now Beard looks to take Samford to the top.

Averaging 20.2 points and 6 rebounds, junior Beard returns with senior center Rob Drum (13.5 ppg, 5.2 rpg) and senior guard Bernie Matthews (10.4 ppg, 2.6 rpg) to assemble the best shot at breaking from the middle of the pack the Bulldogs have had.

The loss of part-time starter Lanaunze Hollis (9 ppg, 5.4 rpg) may slow the Bulldogs' start; however, by year's end in 1983 Beard, Drum, Matthews, forward Ricky Moore and then freshman guard Darryl Hagler were the starters for Samford.

The Bulldogs' only problem is they are one of several TAAC teams back for 1984 virtually intact. Still, with the right breaks, Coach Mike Hanks' third year in Birmingham should see the Bulldogs better the 13-15, 6-8 fifth place finish of 1983.

GEORGIA SOUTHERN

Frank Kerns does not create wins with mirrors, although many tagged GSC for the TAAC basement after losing the nucleus of the team in 1983. Kerns, 169-102 for his career is once again losing the base of his team-forward Dennis Murphy (10.5 ppg, 4.2 rpg), center backcourt, were poised to usurp the TAAC title. After a fast start, injuries—mainly to center Johnny Martin—threw NSU into hole from which they did not recover, finishing 9-19 overall, 5-9 and seventh in the TAAC.

After falling from the penthouse to the outhouse, the Demons will now clean house for 1984. Graduation has taken most of last year's team, with only five players returning—best of which is foward Robin Grays (3 ppg 3.8 rpg).

Coach Wayne Yates wasted no time with empty scholarships. With an opportunity for freshmen starting, Yates landed three of Memphis' best players—Kenneth Moody of Carver (22 ppg), Sylvester Smith of Central (17 ppg) and Gerald Tibbs of Melrose (10 ppg). Tibbs, in leading McDonald's Teen Sportscene's No. 11-ranked school in the nation, can step in immediately for NSU.

Three juco transfers also join NSU for 1984, along with three other top local prospects to round out a pleasant future, but rough present, for the Demons.

HARDIN-SIMMONS

The words "road trip" have special meaning to athletes at Hardin-Simmons University, located in Abilene, Tx. Only one TAAC foe is located in the same state—Houston Baptist. A trip to Mercer University is at best a two day excursion.

Which may explain why the Cowboys have never experienced great luck in the TAAC, turning in a last place 1-13 conference record, 3-25 overall.

Last year Cowboys' Coach Jim Hatfield started with two juniors and seven freshmen recruits. This time around senior forwards Willie Maree (14.6 ppg, 7.0 rpg) and Donald Johnson (13 ppg, 5.1 rpg) and sophomore center Craig Sladek (5.3 ppg, 4.8 rpg) should be well aged.

Joining the low turnover Cowboys are juco transfers Byron Strickland from Trinidad JC (16.8 ppg), Phil Gates from South Plains (13 ppg, 8.5 rpg) and Robert Hayes from Cowley Community College (18 ppg, 8 rpg).

Hardin-Simmons looks better for 1983-84, unfortunately no one else in the TAAC is hurting, making for another long winter out on the old prairie.

NICHOLLS STATE

Colonels' Coach Gordon Stauffer may be bald by the time Nicholls is eligible for the TAAC title. Undone last year by a NCAA typographical error, the Colonels have three more years on the sidelines of the TAAC.

With the returning talent from a 16-12 independent campaign for 1983-84, the Colonels' three year coach has reason to pull out his hair. With sophomore foward Cedric Robinson (15.4 ppg, 6 rpg) among the NCAA leaders in field goal percentage last season, and senior foward Rickie Clements (11 ppg, 5.6 rpg) in the top stealers, NSU may have bid for the TAAC title.

Despite the loss of guards James Matthews and Harvey Brown, the Colonels have signed three recruits which may step in to give NSU another improved season. Ron Spunar of Wawasee High School, Syracuse, Ind., at 6-11 is the tallest player to don the Colonel grey. State products Bryan Gibson of White Castle (18.6 ppg, 7.5 rpg) and Craig Ferguson of Redemptorist (15.5 ppg, 8 rpg) both led their teams to state championships last year.

midwestern city

by Tim Cowlishaw

A record 84 Division I basketball teams drew invitations to the NCAA and NIT post-season parties last year.

Eighty-three were not from the Midwestern

City Conference.

The 1982-83 season was one in which Oral Roberts (14-14) was hurt by the loss of a coach and a threatened players' strike, Evansville (13-16) succumbed following the loss to a knee injury of its (and arguably the league's) best player and Oklahoma City lost coach, nine players, support, respect and 22 games. The final snub came when Loyola, 19-10, failed to receive an NIT bid after losing to Xavier in the MCC championship.

Predicted order of finish;

- 1. Xavier; 2. Evansville;
- 3. Loyola of Chicago;
- 4. Oral Roberts;
- 5. Detroit; 6. Butler; 7. St. Louis;
- 8. Oklahoma City

"We had a better record than 18 of the 32 teams in the NIT," said colorful Loyola coach Gene Sullivan. "We were the only clear-cut conference champion not picked. Of the three teams that played in Chicago (in the NIT), Northwestern was 12-12 if you take away their Division II games, we had a better record than Notre Dame and we beat DePaul.

"We were disappointed, but, well, it's on to the next one." And this is one that should be much better. Xavier, with four starters and sixth man Jeff Jenkins back, may not feel the loss of point guard Anthony Hicks, and rates as the pre-season favorite. But Evansville, Lovola and Oral Roberts each possesses a star capable of guiding his team to the top while Detroit had the league's finest recruiting year. And Oklahoma City has Abe Lemons back. He wasn't hired until four days before national signing date so the roster won't be much better than last year's 4-22 squad. But with Lemons at courtside, fans will be laughing along with the Chiefs this year...instead of at them.

XAVIER

How do you figure the Muskies? Two years ago they had four starters back from a league champion and were the obvious pre-season choice. They turned into regular season chumps and finished 8-20. Yet from the ruins of that club they fashioned a 22-8 record last season and made only their second NCAA appearance. The goal—and the possibility—is an NCAA tournament win.

"I have to be honest," said Loyola's Sullivan. "Xavier really has its team back except Tim Cowlishaw has covered the Midwestern City for the Daily Oklahoman the past three years, but will have to tune in to the Southwest Conference now that he's moved to the Dallas Morning News.

for Hicks and I think the freshman they had fits in with the team better than Hicks." The "freshman" was Ralph Lee, 6-3, who averaged 2.9 assists and 3.1 points while playing only 15 minutes per game. He has the inside track on the point guard spot while the rest of the lineup appears to be set.

Victor Fleming, a 6-6 senior, returns to play big guard after averaging 10.7 last year while the capable frontcourt includes 6-4 senior Dexter Bailey (11.1 ppg, 6.7 rpg), 6-8 junior Eddie Johnson (6.8 ppg, 4.5 rpg) and 6-5 senior John Shimko (6.5 ppg, 3.5 rpg) Jenkins (10.6 ppg, 4.2 rpg) was toughest down the stretch, averaging 18 points and seven rebounds in the Muskies' last five games.

Prior to their NCAA loss to Alcorn State, the Muskies won nine of their last 10 games, losing by one point at Loyola With the league's most experienced squad, Bob Staak's fifth club could be his best.

EVANSVILLE

Dick Walters is an optimist. What other kind of person would have wanted a job four years ago coaching in a program where the team had been tragically wiped out in a plane crash? So even last year's 13-16 record and fifth-place finish which came on the heels of 18-10, 19-9 and 23-6 seasons offered Walters some signs of hope.

"Our tradition is very rich—five NCAA championships at the Division II level, yet we broke our season attendance record last year when we drew in excess of 150,000," Walters said, "We had graduated three seniors from our 23-6 team and so we expected to have three big pairs of shoes to fill. Then Richie Johnson was hurt the second week of practice and our 7-footer, Emir Turam, got married and his interest dropped a great deal.

"So we wound up with five new faces in the starting lineup and seven out of our top eight were new. Still, seven games we lost by four points or less." With the 6-9 junior Johnson returning from knee surgery, the Aces could make up that 4-point difference. The league's Newcomer of the Year in 1981-82, Johnson (12.2 ppg, 6.3 rpg) is the MCC's most versatile talent. He should be accompanied by 6-10 senior Bobby Wallace (9.5 ppg, 5.9 rpg), 6-6 senior Rick McKinstry (9.1 ppg, 8.1 rpg) and 6-8 sophomore Paul Schaefer (6.3 ppg, 5.1 rpg) up front. Last year's Rookie of the Year, 6-3 John Worth (12.2 ppg), joins 5-11 junior Jeff Embrey (3.9 assists) in the backcourt but they will have to watch out for 6-5 Todd Scott, who averaged 31.2 points at Peekskill (NY) High.

LOYOLA OF CHICAGO

As a 6-5 sophomore, Alfredrick Hughes raised his field goal percentage from 39 to 45, his scoring average from 16.6 to 25.7. It may take another increase on his part for the Ramblers to defend their title.

"We've got six of our top eight back but we didn't get a big guy to replace Chris Rogers (10.3 ppg, 9.3 rpg). We're turning small, unfortunately, at a time when the league's going big," Sullivan said.

Sullivan expects Hughes to produce big numbers again and he should. Ranked seventh in the nation after scoring a Loyola-record 744 points last year, Hughes is a power forward with a small forward's shooting touch. He scored 27 points in an 82-76 win over De-Paul, prompting Ray Meyer to call him an "offensive machine." Other returning starters are 6-2 junior Andre Battle (11.8 ppg, 4.3 rpg) and 6-5 senior Gerry Mundt (7.7 ppg, 4.5 rpg).

ORAL ROBERTS

After four games, the Titans lost 6-9 Jeff Acres (10.5 ppg, 4.8 rpg the previous year) to a knee injury. After eight games, they lost their coach, Ken Hayes, when the school's higher-ups decided a 3-5 record was not what they had in mind. A few days later, the Titans almost lost their entire team in to a threatened boycott.

On the strength of 6-11 junior Mark Acres (18.8 ppg, 9.6 rpg), the Titans managed a 14-14 linish. He, brother Jeff, and father Dick (the new coach) are back but the Titans may not have enough elsewhere to take a run at the league title. Point guard Mark Gottfried (8.1 ppg. 3.4 assists) was one of those most upset by Hayes' dismissal and he transferred to Alabama. Starting center Ben Perry (7.8 ppg, 4.8 rpg) dropped out of school and 6-6 Lester Gill (12.2 ppg, 5. rpg in 81-82) failed to solve his academic woes.

"We have had some problems," said Dick Acres. He still has his two sons, however, plus Kevin McGee, unspectacular at 6.6 ppg and 4.8 rpg, but the team's top defensive player. Darrell "Butch" Berry, a 5-10 point guard from Butler Community College in Kansas, will battle 6-2 Mark Wilson, who played for Acres at

"Probably at center, we'll go with Eric Jackson (6-10 of Detroit Henry Ford). Willis Carter (6-8 sophomore transfer from Michigan) will be our small forward." The schedule features Memphis State, Minnesota, DePaul, Michigan and Dayton. The Titans may surprise them.

The good news: Tim McRoberts (13.1 ppg. 5.1 rpg) is back. The bad news: Lvnn Mitchem, Greg Jones, Tony Warren, and Skip Jones (combined 43.5 ppg, 18 rpg) are gone.

The Bulldogs' first winning season (15-13) in five years will be tough to repeat. Center Tim Haseley (3.4 ppg, 2.4 rpg) and 6-3 junior Larry Ikerd (3.8 ppg. 1.8 rpg) are among the few with any playing time. Joe Sexson will ask for immediate help from three Indiana freshmen: 6-6 Chad Tucker of Cloverdale (24.5 ppg), 6-8 Mike Harper of Jeffersonville (16 ppg, 10 rpg) and 5-9 Darrin Fitzgerald of Indianapolis Washington (21.6 ppg, 7 apg).

ST. LOUIS

Only the presence of Oklahoma City in the league prevented St. Louis from being the most depressing story of the year. The Billikens (5-23, 2-12) finished the season with an eight-man roster including two walk-ons. OCU finished with seven including a manager.

Although the Billikens did provide OCU with its only conference victory, St. Louis had an excuse. First-year coach Rich Grawer had little to work with. Luther Burden, a 6-1 junior, earned all-conference honors with a 15.5 ppg average. Other returning starters include 6-10 senior Andre Craig (10.6 ppg, 7 rpg), 6-4 senior Darryl Anderson (10.7 ppg, 6.8 rpg) and 6-1 soph Kevin Williams (5.5 ppg, 3.9 assists).

Top recruit is 6-8 Abdur Rahiim Al Mattiin, who should cause headaches for announcers, if not opponents. At Northeastern A&M in Oklahoma, he averaged 10.1 ppg and 7 rpg.

OKLAHOMA CITY

It is a wiser Abe Lemons who returns to OCU 10 years after he left. Or at least he better be. Lemons' teams won 309 games and had just two losing seasons out of 18 in his last stint with the Chiefs. Times have changed.

OCU will no longer be the only major school in the area recruiting blacks; Oklahoma, Tulsa, Oklahoma State and Oral Roberts have significantly upgraded their programs, making in-state recruiting tougher; the Chiefs no longer play an independent schedule

Lemons, at least in one important aspect. hasn't changed. "I don't know what kind a team we got. We had a guy say he's got a horizontal jump of 23 inches. I'm trying to figure out how he can use it. We don't have big guys or little guys. We've got a bunch of 6-6 guys. I don't know if they're big forwards or small forwards. But there's more good basketball teams around than ever before. I think even the news media is beginning to realize that, if they realize anything," Lemons said.

There will be laughs. There will be some bitterness. There won't be much talent on hand at OCU. Best of those back from last year's 4-22 disaster are 6-9 senior Brannon Craig (9.1 ppg, 5.4 rpg), 6-7 senior Jones Richmond (10.3 ppg, 6.1 rpg) and 6-1 senior David Ward (5.7 ppg). The best player on campus won't play until next year. Jack Worthington, an all-state guard in Texas three years ago who played for Lemons at UT, will have to sit and wait.

Carson, Calif., for one starting spot. Transfer Sam Potter (12.7 ppg at Cal-Berkeley), another Carson-ex, owns one forward spot. "Depth is a question mark for us," said Acres. "If we had Mark Gottfried, if we had Ben Perry, if we had Lester Gill, we'd be stronger.'

The Titans went from 10-17 two years ago to 12-17 last year. That may not sound like dramatic improvement but rookie coach Don Sicko inherited a team with no returning starters. This time, two starters including an MCC first-teamer are on hand along with the league's best recruiting class.

'If we could crack the first division, it would be another step in the right direction," said Sicko. "Out of our 14 players, only five are

One of those is 6-7 senior Doug Chappell, an all-league performer (17.6 ppg, 8.1 rpg). He led the Titans in scoring in 18 games and in rebounding in 15 games.

Kevin McAdoo, a 6-0 soph, will be hard pressed to maintain his starting job. "I think we'll end up starting four new kids," Sicko said. "Bryan Doss (6-61/2) freshman from Benton Harbor, Mich.) will probably play point guard and the other guard will be Keith Gray (6-2 junior from Wabash Valley JC) whose vertical jump Sicko estimated "in the low 40s."

bigsky by George Ferguson SALT LAKE CITY DESERET NEWS

1982-83 marked the 20th anniversary season for the Big Sky and, as predicted, it was the league's tightest campaign.

The four-team race, predicted by this writer, came off. Only the order of finishes was different. Weber State, picked third, and Nevada-Reno, picked fourth wound up tied at the top at 10-4. Idaho, picked first, and Montana, chosen second, were tied at 9-5.

For the first time in league history, however, the post-season tournament host was not decided until the final week of regular action. Another first: Three teams posted 20-win seasons, Weber State 23-8; Montana 21-8, and Idaho 20-9.

Still another first: Idaho, though defeated in the first round by Oregon State, was the first Big Sky club to be invited to the NIT. Weber State also lost to Washington State in first round of the NCAA.

Predicted order of finish:

- 1. Weber State; 2. Idaho State;
- 3. Montana; 4. Nevada-Reno;
- 5. Montana State; 6. Idaho;
- 7. Boise State;
- 8. Northern Arizona

Idaho State was last season's big surprise. Chosen to finish last, the Bengals grabbed fifth place at 7-7. At season's end, ISU was playing as well as any team in the league. With four starters back, rank the Bengals as the league sleeper. Idaho, Boise State and Montana State must react to new coaches. BSU and MSU have a bundle of people back.

After two mediocre years, Weber State bounced back to the dominating ways that have won 10 league titles outright and two ties. That earns the Wildcats the "team to beat" title. Montana, again, will be in the thick of things. Nevada-Reno will be running and gunning with what appears to be some fine JC transfer talent. Incidently, the Wolf Pack moves into new 11,000-seat, Lawlor Events Center. Northern Arizona will be well-coached but...

League talent is widespread—no one dominant player. All of which adds up to another tight campaign—maybe, if approval is granted, under use of a 40-second clock; but minus, as in last year, use of the 3-point rule. Now...that situation could be interesting.

WEBER STATE

Don't feel sorry that Neil McCarthy has the Big Sky "monkey" on his back. He's a veteran at packing pressure. After all, he became the league's winningest coach last year (157) and was coach of the year for the 4th time in his eight years. With a record like that, he deserves pressure, even though the Wildcats lost their second and third leading scorers—Royal Edwards and Tom Heywood.

His returning nucleus ain't too bad. The guard-line is especially tough with starters John Price, 6-2 senior (7.9 ppg) and Greg Jones, 6-1 senior (8.5 ppg). Randy Worster, a 6-7 sophomore coming off a redshirt year, led in scoring at 12.3 ppg and averaged 5 rebounds. He became a fulltime starter in the 12th game.

Some interesting transfers to watch, all juniors, are 7-0 Shawn Campbell, 6-4 Charles Carradine, 6-5 Kent Hagan and 6-8 Martin Nish. And 6-5 freshman Terrell Clayton, from Phoenix, figures in. Lettermen are Richard Escandon, 6-0 senior, Dale Baum, 6-5 sophomore, Thomas Larry, 5-10 senior and Darryle McDaniel, 6-9 sophomore.

Question marks: Untested center on the four-year level, and the power forward slots.

IDAHO STATE

Sure, we're going out on the limb to pick the Bengals from Pocatello second. Let's face it, a 7-7 league record and a 10-17 overall mark aren't fancy. However, ISU finished with four straight wins, two over Weber State and Idaho, and there are those who say they were the hottest crew in Big Sky country. And, they have four starters back.

The Bengals stirred up the Big Sky porridge under first-year coach Wayne Ballard who, no doubt, had a few butterflies. But the butterflies have flown, and Ballard says he had a real good recruiting year. "We'll be a contender," he vows.

He backs up his optimism with these senior starters: Mike Denkers, 6-7, (10.9 ppg), Mike Williams, 6-8, (10.9 ppg, 6.8 rpg), Buck Chavez, 6-5, (13.4 ppg, 6.0 rpg) and Tony Malveaux, 5-11, (4.3 ppg). Also back is 6th man Doug Maratzka, 6-6 junior, (5.4 ppg).

Ballard signed what he says are two top JC transfers, and five freshmen, four of which are eligible. The jucos: 6-4 Nelson Peterson and George Ferguson has been one of the top sportswriters in the Rockies for over 20 years, and is a correspondent for Sports Illustrated.

6-5 Phil Rohr. The top frosh, both first-team allstaters: Greg Housekeeper, 6-9, and Marques Montgomery, 6-3.

MONTANA

Mike Montgomery has to be a frustrated coach. The Grizzlies won their first nine games last year and, after going 19-3 with a win over Idaho, were ranked 18th by Sports Illustrated, the first time a UM team has been ranked by a publication. UM lost at the buzzer to Weber State in a home finale, and again in the last seconds to the Wildcats in the Big Sky playoff. With a 21-8 season mark—only the fifth 20-win season for UM in 75 years—Montgomery's Grizzlies went nowhere. Montgomery has averaged more than 17 wins a season in five years here. He's led UM to the playoffs every year.

Welf, coach, maybe this is your year. There are three starters back, all seniors—Marc Glass, 6-3 (10.6 ppg), Doug Selvig, 6-4 (10.4 ppg) and Rob Hurley, 6-4, (8.1 ppg). Larry Kyrstkowiak, 6-8 sophomore, was touted as the league's top sixth man. He should be a future Grizzly great. Montgomery's greatest hope: "I want some strong forwards to surface."

This serves notice to 6-6 junior letterman Bruce Burns, 6-10 redshirt sophomore Larry McBride, and freshmen Steve Vanek, 6-9 and Herb Jones, 6-5.

Big Sky stars are Montana State

NEVADA—RENO

What do you do when you lose six seniors and four starters. In football, you punt. In basketball, you recruit. Just ask Sonny Allen. He's serious. After all, he needs only 10 wins to surpass the 300 career victory plateau.

Allen and his staff went to work. They have recruited eight new players, five JC transfers and three frosh to add to a rather skimpy returning player list.

How do you rank a club with these problems in the top four—no starters returning (Sonny wonders, too)? Well, Allen's running, gunning philosophy has caused the Big Sky some anxious moments in the past. He could probably do it next season with a little old women's sewing circle.

His transfers, all juniors; are 6-4 Roosevelt Brown; 6-5 Mike Parillo; 6-6 Ed Porter and 6-5 Tony Sommers, and 6-8 Todd Wallen.

"We filled our opening positions (which was everyone) well," says Allen. "Lots of new faces, though. It will take a lot of coming together. I've got an idea this group will jell quickly." So do we, Sonny.

MONTANA STATE

It's really a little disconcerting to place a team with seven lettermen and five starters in the lower division. But when that group went 3-11 in the league and 10-17 overall—and has a new coach, Stu Starner—one has to wonder.

On the plus side, though, the Bobcats were the Big Sky "Kiddie Korps."

Jeff Epperly, 6-4 junior guard, (12.7 ppg) is a real leader. He assists and steals strongly; he's aggressive. Then there is Chris Brazier, 6-5 senior, (11.9 ppg); 7-foot junior Tryg Johnson (10.5 ppg, 7.1 rpg); Phil Layher, 6-7 junior, (7.8 ppg, 5.7 rpg) and sophomore guard Rob Shelquist, 6-3.

Starner and the Bobcats should age against such outside competition as Minnesota, Utah, and the Volunteer Classic field.

IDAHO

You can hear a sigh of relief all over Big Sky Country. Gone is that demon coach, Don Monson, who brought fame back to Vandal basketball. And gone are three guys who helped him—Phil Hopson, Brian Kellerman and Kelvin Smith.

What an act to follow for Bill Trumbo. But, careful, Trumbo has only one losing season in 18 as a junior college coach?

Trumbo's format: A fast-pace offense and a tough man-man defense.

He inherited starters Pete Prigge, 6-7 senior (7.1, 5.6) and 6-0 senior Stan Arnold (9.2 ppg). Of his newcomers watch transfer junior Terrel Cage, 5-11, and freshman Tom Stalick, 6-7 forward.

BOISE STATE

The Broncos don't seem to be recruiting basketball athletes on the same level as football athletes.

Last basketball regime: Dismissed after three rather dismal years.

The Bronco seasons, of late, all seem to be "disappointing"—not too great for one of the Big Sky's largest cities.

Maybe another new coach, Bobby Dye, can change that. He has good credentials. But maybe the folks in Boise care so much about football they don't care about basketball.

At any rate, all five starters are back: Vince Hinchen, 6-4 senior, (17.7 ppg), Rawn Hayes, 6-9 senior (10.8 ppg, 5.6 rpg), James McNorton, 6-7 senior, (9.3, 5), Ron Grossart, 6-6 senior (8.9) and Mike Hazel, 6-3 junior (8.2).

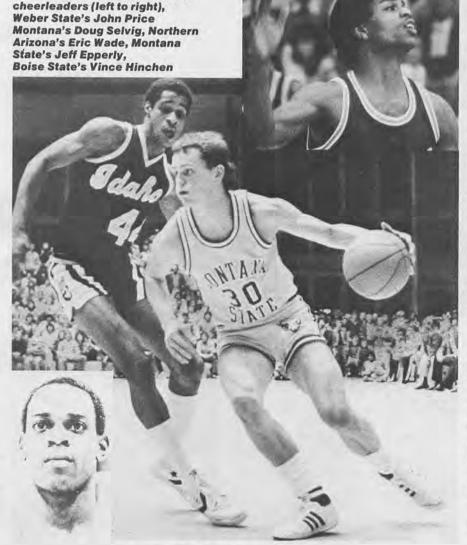

Hinchen is an All-America candidate depending on how much help he gets.

NORTHERN ARIZONA

The Lumberjacks still are looking for a snakebite antidote in the Big Sky. The Flagstaff fives have been a perennial doormat in a state that boasts two entries in the Pac 10. Which might speak well of the caliber of ball in the Sky.

At any rate, NAU's dilemma continues. Two-year coach Gene Visscher has decided to become athletic director at Charlotte (Michigan) High School. Taking over will be Jay Arnote, a star guard in the early 1970s for Arizona State. Ask Visscher about the snake bite. He had a two-year record of 16-36, but lost 17 games between margins of 1-5 points. Last year the Lumberjacks came within 2 points of NIT champ Fresno State and beat Colorado State for a first-ever win in an NCAA tournament. The 35-year-old Arnote was an assistant at NAU from 1976-78. He has a 49-13 record at Central Arizona JC in two years, and a 40-18 two-year record at Grand Canyon College.

He will pin hopes at NAU on Eric Wade, 6-3 senior (14.2 ppg) and Rick Rodriguez, 6-6 senior, (11 ppg), both starters.

STREET AND SMITH'S COLLEGE & PRO BASKETBALL

missouri valley by Bill Connors

As usual, the Missouri Valley Conference has a membership change: New Mexico State defected to the Pacific Coast Athletic Association. But for a change a defending champion should repeat. None has in 10 years.

Off probation and eligible for postseason competition for the first time in three years, Wichita State may not out-class the Valley as the Shockers did a year ago when they finished five games ahead of runnerup Illinois State. But they are unmistakably favored.

They lost player-of-the-year Antoine Carr to the NBA but return this year's probable player-of-the-year in 6-7 Xavier McDaniel, third in Valley scoring and first in NCAA rebounding, and shooter in Aubrey Sherrod.

If Gene Smithson repeats his fine coaching job of last year—the Shockers played infinitely better than the previous year when they had more talent and were heavily favored but tied for second—his team should, too.

Tulsa is the most qualified challenger and might threaten Wichita if 6-10 Bruce Vanley is recovered from the physical and personal problems that plagued him and wrecked the Hurricane's rebounding last year.

Illinois State might repeat its runnerup finish of last year, if for no other reasons than Bob Donewald's coaching and defense. Indiana State had perhaps the best recruiting year in the Valley and shoud rise to the first division contending level of Bradley, Drake and Southern Illinois. Loaded with transfers, Southern Illinois should be one of the Valley's most improved teams.

Creighton, unable to avoid the cellar last year despite freshman Benoit Benjamin, should escape this year at the expense of West Texas.

WICHITA STATE

The Shockers (24-3) do not expect to replace Antoine Carr, one of the Valley's best players in recent years.

But they expect to survive nicely, because they proved they could win without him last year. They were 6-1 when Carr was disabled and 6-6 Karl Papke (8.2 ppg, 4.3 rpg) was in the lineup. If Papke, a junior with versatile skills, reels in as much slack as Coach Gene Smithson anticipates, Wichita should breeze to another championship. An inexperienced bench is the only cause for reservation.

Predicted order of finish:

- 1. Wichita State; 2. Tulsa;
- 3. Illinois State; 4. Indiana State;
- 5. Drake: 6. Bradley:
- 7. Southern Illinois; 8. Creighton;
- 9. West Texas State

Papke will join a lineup that returns 6-7 junior Xavier McDaniel, 6-4 junior Aubrey Sherrod and 6-10 senior Zarko Durisic, McDaniel might be more dominating than Carr. He led the nation in rebounding (14.4), was third in Valley scoring (18.8), first in field goal percentage (.593) and fourth in blocked shots (28). He did all this as an unheralded soph.

Sherrod (15.3) is an explosive scorer. If he becomes more consistent and his defensive and ball-handling skills continue to improve. Sherrod will rank among the nation's best guards. Durisic (8.5 ppg, 6.4 rpg) averaged 17 points when Carr was injured but fouls a lot. The other starter is expected to be 6-2 soph Bernard Jackson (4.9 ppg) who had 88 assists as a backup point guard last year.

The Shockers depth is inexperienced except for 6-3 sophomore Gary Cundiff (2.3 ppg). But they have three highly-recruited freshman forwards, 6-9 Henry Carr (Antoine's brother who did not play his senior year in high school because of a knee injury); 6-8 Marcelles Graves, redshirted last year, and 6-7 Gus Santos. Two other freshmen are 6-10 Tom Kosich and 5-11 Mike Arline.

TULSA

The Hurricane (19-12) should be improved over the team that tied for third place and was eliminated in the first round of the NIT by Texas Christian. The improvement might be substantial and TU could contend for the championship if 6-10 senior Bruce Vanley regains the form he displayed in out-playing North Carolina's Sam Perkins during his and the team's blazing start last December.

Vanley, however, crashed in January. Not surprisingly so did Tulsa. He was injured, had a clash with Coach Nolan Richardson and lost Bill Connnors has been sports editor of the Tulsa Daily World since 1964, Oklahoma's sportswriter of the year eight times, and on the Missouri Valley and Big Eight scene for over 30 years. 30 pounds and his confidence during a baffling illness. Richardson took the position Vanley (9.2 ppg. 4.8 rpg) would not be a factor and recruited two freshman centers. But Vanley appeared to have regained his fitness and zest in summer pickup games.

If Vanley starts, Tulsa will surround him with the Valley's most experienced lineup, led by 6-5 junior Steve Harris (18,5 ppg), a velvet shooter who was first team All-Valley and third in conference steals with 68. Harris and 6-7 sen or Ricky Ross (18.5ppg), who led a rebounding-weak team (5.6), comprise the Valley's best outside shooting duo. Another fine but frail shooter is 6-10 junior Herb Johnson (9.2 ppg, 4.8 rpg). Also returning is 6-2 senior point guard Mike Smith (6.3 ppg).

Richardson, who uses his bench extensively, expects 6-6 junior Vince Williams (2.9 ppg) and his best class of recruits to provide improved relief. Most decorated of the freshmen is 6-5 Carlton McKinney (27.6 ppg), considered by some to be the best prospect in Texas. Also counted on are two centers, 6-11 Brian Rahilly and 6-10 Anthony Fobbs, and 6-3 Byron Boudreaux.

ILLINOIS STATE

The Redbirds graduated their only star, Rick Lamb, on a 24-7 team that finished second, won the postseason Valley tournament and was the conference's only representative in the NCAA tournament. But the pedestrian, experienced cast that returns possesses the savvy discipline, and hardnosed defensive qualities that Coach Bob Donewald champions. They are not likely to fall far.

Their new leader is 6-7 senior Hank Cornley, a three-year starter (12.0 ppg, 6.1 rpg). Cornley and 6-8 senior Mark Swart (3.9 ppg, 3.9 rpg) symbolize the tenacious manner in which Donewald's teams compete and defend. The starting guards will be 6-1 junior Michael McKinney (8.4 ppg) and 6-4 junior Brad Duncan (6.2 ppg) or 6-4 junior Rickie Johnson (4.9 ppg).

The center will be 6-8 junior Lou Stefanovic (3.4 ppg) or 7-0 freshman Bill Braksick Depth will come from 6-5 freshman Eric Cornley (Hank's brother), 6-6 freshman Derrick Sanders, 6-7 freshman Jim McGrath (redshirted after being injured last year) and 5-11 sophomore William Anderson.

INDIANA STATE

After his team led the Valley in scoring and three-point baskets, Coach Dave Schellhase landed the nation's leading high school scorer in an impressive class of recruits.

With three starters returning, the Sycamores should improve. But defense and rebounding, not more scoring, are what the Sycamores need to become respectable. They averaged aged 84 points but gave up 88 and were ninth in conference rebounding last year when they tied for seventh place and had a 9-19 record.

The top returnees are 6-5 sophomore John Sherman Williams (18.6 ppg, 6.5 rpg), Valley newcomer of the year; 6-4 junior Rick Fields (12.1 ppg), second in the conference in threepoint accuracy, and 6-8 senior Mark Golden (15.6 ppg, 5.8 rpg).

The newcomers include 5-10 Chuck Taylor, who led the nation in scoring with a 38.5 average last year at Chicago Roosevelt High School. Two other freshmen 6-2 Bryan Kegerreis, All-Ohio with a 21.1 scoring average, and 6-9 Steve Wiegel-are highly regarded but may not figure as prominently as 6-10 junior college transfer Stanley Wright, a schoolboy All-America two years ago at Elizabeth, N.J.

DRAKE

The Bulldogs' talent has not been nearly as good as their coaching since Gary Garner arrived two years ago. It probably will not be as good this year, either, But Garner thinks he has recruited a team with improved shooting, speed and size-and capable of playing a faster tempo. He thinks, however, the price of this offensive improvement may be an erosion of the Valley's second-best defense.

Drake's offensive uplifting is tied to 6-7 sophomore Marvin Mathis (11.8 ppg, 5.7 rpg), who impressed in the second half of last year. Joining Mathis in the starting lineup will be 6-3 senior Stephfon Butler (6 ppg) and either 6-9 sophomore Tom Faber (5.5 ppg, 2.5 rpg) or 6-8 senior Nelson Johnson (10.3 ppg, 3.7 rpg) at center. Despite Johnson's statistics, Faber played better in the second half of the season.

(6.6 ppg), 6-2 sophomore Demetrius Henderson (2.5 ppg) and four newcomers. Most fascinating of the latter is 6-7 junior college transfer Daryl Lloyd (20.3 pg), brother of former Drake star Lewis Lloyd. The other three recruits who will contend are 6-2 junior college transfer Michael Weathers (17.8 ppg), 6-9 frosh Mike Core and 6-7 frosh Damon Jones.

BRADLEY

Colorful Dick Versace has a history of production his best teams when the Braves are slighted in forecasts. It will require Versace's best job to make contenders of the Braves.

They will probably be hard pressed to improve on their fifth-place finish and 16-13 re-

They will probably alternate. The other starting positions are wide open competition among 6-6 senior Mike Kreklow cord. Versace's recruiting efforts reinforce a lean squad produced only two signings.

Three starters return: 6-7 junior Voise Winters (15.4 ppg, 6.3 rpg); 6-7 junior Anthony Webster (8.6 ppg, 4.7 rpg), and 6-4 senior Roosevelt Davison (9.1 pg, 4.8 rpg). The only freshman is 6-7 Bruce Mordini and the only junior college transfer is 6-1 Nolan Gibson. Sophomore Jim Les, transfer from Cleveland State, is the ony other newcomer.

Without a true center and stripped of its backcourt, Bradley appears weaker than at any time since Versace's debut in 1978-79.

The only guards remaining from last year's team are 6-4 sophomre Greg Willie and 5-11 senior Melvin Harden.

SOUTHERN ILLINOIS

Coach Allen Van Winkle may have the Valley's most improved team. For sure, he has the most overhauled team, with 10 transfers; five who estasblished eligibility last year; one who becomes eligible at midterm, and four fresh imports from junior college.

Two transfers who appear likely to start are 6-6 Cleveland Bibbens, who played for Van Winkle in junior college bfore going to Michigan State, and 6-11 Kenny Perry (if he recovers from foot surgery), from Evansville. Both are juniors.

Two returning starters expected to retain jobs are 6-3 senior Benny Smith (9.1 ppg) and 6-6 senior Pie Walker (7.2 ppg). The Salukis have only one other returnee from last year (9-19, tied for seventh) who figures in Van Winkle's plans: 6-9 senior Harry Hunter.

Lineup chemistry may be a problem but the transfers bring badly needed size and improved shooting. Aside from Bibbens and Perry, the most likely to start is 6-2 junior Roy Birch, a junior college transfer who was redshirted last year. Other transfers are 6-9 junior James Douglas (Kansas), 5-11 junior Ernie Bubbard (Vincennes) and 6-4 freshman Doug Novsek, hearlded Illinois schoolboy shooter who attended West Virginia briefly. Novsek will become eligible the second semester. By then the Salukis may look as though they are prejudiced against anyone who is not a junior. Besides the above mentioned juniors, four junior college transfers are also juniors-6-6 Chris George, 6-3 Berrard Campbell, 5-11 Ernie Hubbard and 6-2 Nate Bufford.

CREIGHTON

Coach Willis Reed is assured the Blue Jays will not finish 10th again; New Mexico State's exit left the Valley with nine teams. But Reed's team could vacate the cellar under any conditions if the supporting cast of 7-0 sophomore Benoit Benjamin (15.9 ppg, 9.6 rpg) provides modest improvement.

The Blue Jays were only nine points from sixth place last year (They lost three times by two points and once in overtime), as Benjamin led the conference in blocked shots (92) and was second in rebounding. His only support was provided by 6-2 junior Vernon Moore (12.2 ppg) and 6-7 senior Gregory Brandon (13.3 ppg, 6.8 rpg). Poor shooting, turnovers and inexperience plagued Creighton.

Reed will count on 6-3 sophomore Reggie Morris (6.5 ppg, 1.2 rpg) and three freshmen to close these gaps. Best of the freshmen is 6-3 Gary Swain, who averaged 24 points in leading Dallas Jesuit to the Catholic schoolboy championship in Texas. Swain's high school teammate, 6-10 Dwight Johnson, 5-10

bigten by Larry Donald

If nothing else, the Big Ten has certainly earned a reputation as the best supplier of undergraduate basketball talent in America and this summer was no different. Once again the NBA's green bullet found its mark, taking out Purdue's Russell Cross and Illinois' Derek Harper before they completed their college eligibility.

As the NBA profits, the Big Ten weeps.

The impact of these two defections is considerable and keeps going a tradition of premature departures which began with Magic Johnson and has moved painfully through the league with notable stops at Indiana (Isiah Thomas) and Ohio State (Clark Kellogg).

Nonetheless, basketball here in the midlands continues to be played at a very high level and, at most stops along the Big Ten trail, is something of a big deal.

There'll be some changes on top this winter as teams like Michigan State and Minnesota claw back up while Indiana reloads and Iowa readjusts. Ohio State looks strong despite the loss of 6-11 center Granville Waiters while Illinois must patch itself together to cover the loss of Harper.

In Ann Arbor, people are starting to wonder if "all that talent" wasn't created by some imaginative writer while Wisconsin hopes to be better than 8-20. Purdue has some obvious problems and midnight has probably struck for Northwestern.

What all this suggests is there will be no lack of storylines this winter. At every stop there's a recognizable topic for discussion.

Michigan State's Scott Skiles
IU cheerleader, boost Big Ten.

As to how the Big Ten fares when compared to the nation's other outstanding basketball leagues, well, that remains, as ever, a debatable proposition.

Last spring the Big Ten received five berths in the NCAA tournament which was a record. And for the most part there was great justification for each selection.

Will 1984 produce as many worthy teams?

But, clearly, it would have been easier if the NBA's money cannon had been pointed in some other direction.

MICHIGAN STATE

In his coaching career at Michigan State, Jud Heathcote has known the best of times and the worst of times with no season falling in between.

This season the good times should be rolling back to East Lansing.

Says Jud:

"Certainly this is Michigan State's best team on paper since the championship team (1979). This team is much deeper. There's not a single position where we don't have what we consider to be an excellent starter but also an excellent back-up player as well. What we are missing is that one great player (like Magic Johnson) and it also remains to be seen if this team is as dedicated to defense as the championship team."

Interestingly enough until last year the only two teams to generate a winning season under Heathcote were the Magic-led teams of 1978 and 1979.

If there's a "most important" player among the veterans it is 7-0 senior center Kevin Willis. In each of the last two seasons he's been voted the team's Most Improved Player with good reason. He was the Big Ten's top rebounder (10.2 rpg) and averaged 13.3 ppg.

"He's the best center in the Big Ten," says Heathcote, "and by the end of this year could be in the top five nationally."

Elsewhere it looks like a textbook blend. At the point guard is gritty Scott Skiles, who battled his way from oblivion to the media's Most Valuable Player award as well as Freshman All-American recognition by Basketball Times. He averaged 12.5 ppg and led the team in assists with 146. Only one other Spartan ever had more....you know who.

At the shooting guard is Sam Vincent, a 6-2 junior who was voted MVP by his teammates. He averaged 16.6 and was only out of double figures in one game.

Along the frontline, the best is Ken Johnson, a 6-8 transfer from Southern Cal who will become eligible at the conclusion of the national anthem on December 12.

Larry Donald is the editor-publisher of Basketball Times, and a regional director of the United States Basketball Writers Association.

7. Michigan; 8. Wisconsin; 9. Purdue; 10. Northwestern.

At the other forward, sophomore Patrick Ford will get the call. The 6-5 Ford began to show why he was considered Detroit's top prepster two years ago by averaging nine points a game in the season's final six games. Behind him will be 6-8 Larry Polec and 6-8 Ben Tower, both of whom have been starters in the past. Richard Mudd, a 6-9 senior, will back up Willis.

In the backcourt newcomer Darryl Johnson, who led Flint Central to three consecutive Michigan high school championships, will press for playing time.

IOWA

In his many years at Washington State, George Raveling tried to build a basketball tradition against the formidable obstacle of isolation. Moving to lowa didn't exactly bring him in from the wilderness geographically but it did give him that successful history.

The Hawkeyes have topped the twenty-win mark in each of the last five years and in six of the past seven. They've been a regular on the NCAA's post season invitation list and when Lute Olson left for Arizona, he bequeathed his successor some outstanding talent.

The beat, friends, will go on.

Major figures for Raveling's first year are 6-9
Michael Payne and 6-10 Greg Stokes.

Stokes emerged as a dominant offensive force last season with a 17.7 ppg average while Payne had a 10.6 ppg average and led the team in rebounding. It is at the defensive end where these two need some work and that's always been a Raveling trademark. If they make the necessary progress this is a team which must be considered not just a Big Ten contender but an NCAA championship possibility as well.

Behind the towers are experienced players such as 7-0 Brad Louhas and 6-7 Craig And-

In the backcourt there is the talented, if erratic, veteran Steve Carfino. He averaged 10.7 ppg as the point guard but may be switched to an off guard slot as Andre Banks, a sophomore, moves in Freshman Johnny Fort also figures somewhere in the picture. Others like sophomore Brad Boyle, and freshmen Dave Snedeker, Bob Ursery plus juco Kenny Fullard make it a crowded situation.

MINNESOTA

Not many programs could withstand a loss the size of 7-3 Randy Breuer and still figure to be better the following season. Say hello to the optimistic Minnesota Gophers.

And why not?

Coach Jim Dutcher returns four of five starters from an 18-11 club which made it to the National Invitation Tournament. Additionally, there are four very talented freshmen arriving which means the Gophers, indeed, have a lot of trails leading to the well.

Tommy Davis, a long range bomber, is the top scorer back (12.8 ppg). And 6-2 guard Marc Wilson (10.5 ppg) probably missed being a freshman All-American only because of injuries.

The other two starters are 6-10 Jim Petersen (6.3 ppg), who could be a very good player if he ever overcomes his habit of fouling, and 6-7 Roland Brooks (8.9 ppg). In the middle, sophomore John Shasky, 6-11, will get the call and what this means is Minnesota will step up the tempo a bit.

"We'll have a new look this year," Dutcher says, "and we'll be a different kind of team than we have been for the past few seasons when we counted on getting things done in the middle."

The newcomers are promising. Kevin

Smith, a 6-7 forward, could contribute quickly. Lost in the Antoine Joubert media blitz last winter while finishing his senior year at Lansing Everett, Smith, nonetheless, was regarded by some as Michigan's finest schoolboy player at season's end. Paul VanDenEinde, a 7-0 center from Minnesota, was high on prep scouting sheets. Mike Carpenter at 7-2 is another in a long line of giant centers.

OHIO STATE

The Buckeyes of Eldon Miller have been the Big Ten's surprise team for two years running. So when this team climbs into the first division and then returns to NCAA play some will say that makes three.

Not really.

OSU leads off with 6-7 Tony Campbell (18.9 ppg, 8.3 rpg). Two years ago Miller called Campbell the finest athlete he's ever coached. People were surprised, but coming into the '83-84 season, Campbell is, arguably, the Big Ten's top performer.

The other forward is 6-8 junior Joe Concheck (6.8 ppg, 3.1 rpg). He showed marked improvement along the way. Guard is especially strong with 6-0 Troy Taylor, the No. 2 scorer (12.7 ppg) and Ronnie Stokes, a 5-11 junior (9.1 ppg coming off bench). He also led the team in steals and assists. Toss in shooting specialist Dave Jones and talented newcomer Curtis Wilson.

No doubt the key is replacing 6-11 center Granville Waiters who turned in a marvelous season for the Buckeyes. Miller has two candidates: Keith Wesson, a 6-9 banger who played in 28 games, and 6-9 Alan Krotokrax.

INDIANA

The Hoosiers begin life after the Witchels this year and though coach Bobby Knight still has a lot of talent, there's no doubt Randy Wittman and Ted Kitchel will be missed.

Wittman (18.9 ppg), Kitchel (17.3 ppg) and Jim Thomas (10.2 ppg) represented a large part of the reason Indiana rolled to a 24-6 record and another first place finish in the Big Ten. It was, as you recall, the late season loss of Kitchel to injury which effectively halted IU's march toward another national crown.

Much of the season's success will hang on the performance of 7-2 center Uwe Blab (9.4 ppg, 4.9 rpg). The lanky junior showed notable progress during the second half with a 12.7 ppg average in the last 13 games.

Also returning are junior Winston Morgan and guard Stew Robinson.

Steve Alford, 6-5, was the top schoolboy in Indiana averaging 23 ppg at New Castle High. And Marty Simmons was the top prepster in Illinois leading Lawrenceville to a state crown with 23 ppg and 10.1 rpg effort. Daryl Thomas, a swing player and 6-8 Todd Meier, both freshmen, also will get a chance. Courtney Witte, a 6-8 center, is the first juco in the Knight era.

ILLINOIS

Very quietly Illinois broke through the sound barrier, winning over 20 games (21-11), finishing second in the Big Ten and earning an invitation to the NCAA tournament. It may not be so easy this time around.

When guard Derek Harper chose to sweat for the NBA's money, the Fighting Illini suffered a substantial setback. Harper led the tearn in scoring (15.4 ppg).

Three very important figures remain, led by the gifted Efrem Winters. The 6-9 forward had an outstanding freshman year with 12.4 ppg and 6.9 rpg.

Next is the willowy sophomore guard Bruce Douglas, who will take on increased responsibility with Harper gone. Last year, he averaged 9.4 ppg and led the Big Ten in assists. Add Anthony Welch (11.4 ppg, 6.3 rpg).

In the middle, coach Lou Henson faces some problems. Bryan Leonard started there most often and turned in a workmanlike effort. This year there's no one set to step in. Scott Meents and George Montgomery will probably share time.

Depth behind Douglas and Doug Altenberger at guard is something of a concern.

MICHIGAN

There can be no question about Michigan's being better equipped to face this Big Ten season but there is some doubt about how much room is available at the top.

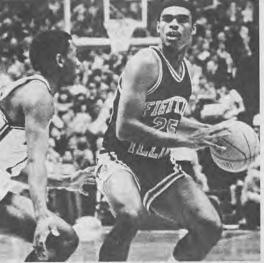

Last year the Wolverines had nine wins in 10 starts against a cushy schedule before the reality of Big Ten play came as a considerable jolt. Overall, coach Bill Frieder's club posted a 15-13 mark but aside from a win over Indiana, there was little to cheer about from January to season's end

Last year's highly regarded freshman class finished to mixed reviews. Richard Rellford, billed as the best of several super rookies, averaged 8 ppg but was terribly inconsistent. Less regarded Butch Wade proved an effective workman when given a chance. Robert Henderson and Paul Jokisch, like Rellford, were erratic.

The major forces were junior guard Eric Turner (tops at 19.2 ppg). His runningmate at guard, junior Leslie Rockeymore, averaged 13.4 ppg until being lost 17 games into the season. And 6-11 Tim McCormick (12.6 ppg, 6.4 rpg), coming back from double knee surgery, gained as the year went along.

Joining this impressive collection is Detroit prep sensation Antoine "The Judge" Joubert. The 6-5 Joubert was a fixture on every post-season schoolboy All-American team, but like the crew he's joining, finished the season with some indifferent performances in the all-star games.

WISCONSIN

After a discouraging 8-20 season, Wisconsin returns 11 lettermen and things figure to get better for the Badgers and second year coach Steve Yoder.

The major loss was 6-11 Brad Sellers who transferred to Ohio State and while the impact is certain to be felt immediately just what his defection means long range is open to speculation. Perhaps the no-nonsense Yoder is finally establishing discipline in this long fumbling program.

In any event, the Badgers will revolve around the offensive talents of 6-6 junior Cory Blackwell (18.3 ppg) and 6-1 sophomore guard Rick Olson (11ppg).

Two other probable starters are 6-7 Scott Roth (5.8 ppg) and Jim Smith (4.9 ppg). Both are players who can go inside or outside, giving Yoder considerable versatility.

The problem, obviously, is in the middle.

Sellers was a good scorer and rebounder. He also represented the only size along the front line and that was a flaw frequently exposed in the burly world of Big Ten basketball.

Much of the improvement, then, may be told by untested freshman Scott Plondke, a 6-10½ prospect from Patch Grove, WI. He is the only player on the roster taller than 6-8 and if Yoder feels like a man sent off to war armed with only a water pistol, who could blame him?

PURDUE

In each of the past five seasons Purdue has played in a post-season tournament and in the last 13 years the Boilermakers have not finished out of the top five in the Big Ten.

Both marks are in serious jeopardy.

With the announcement that 6-9 Russell Cross would jump to the NBA and forgo his senior year, basketball here suffered a horrible stroke. Adding to the woe was the transfer of 6-8 Dan Palombizio, who averaged eight points as a spot starter.

Coach Gene Keady does return four starters and the top reserve but there's reason to question if all the wheels will turn so smoothly without Cross. Steve Reid, a 5-11 junior, is the Illini's Bruce Douglas, Michigan's Eric Turner, Northwestern's Art Aaron, and Wisconsin's Cory Blackwell will be young men to keep an eye on this winter. top scorer coming back at 12 ppg and he did all that as a sixth man.

Jim Bullock, a 6-6 junior, averaged 7.3 and he'll do better. Greg Eifert will go at the other forward slot and he had 4.1 ppg and 2.4 rpg stats. The guard situation with quick Ricky Hall (6.2 ppg), Reid and Curt Clawson, a starter thanks largely to the three-point rule, is much better.

Jim Rowinski, a 6-8 senior, will get the call to replace Cross. It's a tall order for this untested youngster.

Last year Purdue did it with unity and Cross. Only unity remains and it may not be enough to avoid a disaster.

NORTHWESTERN

Last year will certainly be remembered as a glory season for coach Rich Falk and the Wildcats. First came the long-sought winning season (17-11) and as a capper Northwestern not only got a ticket to the National Invitation Tournament but hung a 71-57 defeat on Notre Dame. Heady, heady stuff in this tradition-bereft program.

This season will bring a stronger touch of reality, however, Despite moving back into renovated McGaw Hall, there are some very big pieces missing.

Gone are forward Jim Stack (14.9 ppg) and guards Gaddis Rathel (9.1 ppg) and Michael Jenkins (8.6). And if the farewell wasn't a teary one, it should have been because the building blocks Falk has used here are well represented by this threesome.

On hand are two key veterans: Art Aaron, a senior guard who was the team's number two scorer last year at 14.5 and Andre Goode, a baseline swing player who scored at a 9.8 ppg clip.

Falk recruited three good freshmen who'll be asked to deliver immediately. Included are touted Chris Berg from Arlington Heights, IL, Elliot Fullen and Shawn Watts.

There was no other choice to coach our Olympic basketball team to a gold medal in Los Angeles this summer

Bobby Knight

His setback at San Juan did not sideline Indiana's irascible mentor

The scar on America's sporting psyche that never has healed came at an event remembered by the rest of the world for an incomparably more enormous tragedy.

Not that Americans forget, or downplay, or in any way equate the terrorism at Munich that killed 11 Israeli athletes with the confusing officiating that was a part of the only defeat the U.S. ever has taken in Olympic basketball.

All the world, certainly including the U.S., remembers the Israeli slaughter. Only in America does the coinciding 1972 U.S. Olympic loss to the Soviet Union remain an embittering, goading, motivating event.

It's a rather astounding bit of longevity, this American outrage, considering that the Olympics had up to then become an object of cavalier treatment by American basketball players and minimal interest to the U.S. press and fans.

It wasn't that way in 1956, when the most celebrated collegian of the day, Bill Russell, delayed entry into the National Basketball Assn. for a few months so he could go to Melbourne for the December Olympics—during Australia's summer. The Soviets were in just their second Olympics then, but the saber-rattling of the Cold War had even by then carried over into medal-rattling at the Olympics, and basketball was an event Russell and the Americans weren't about to let get away to the ponderous Soviets.

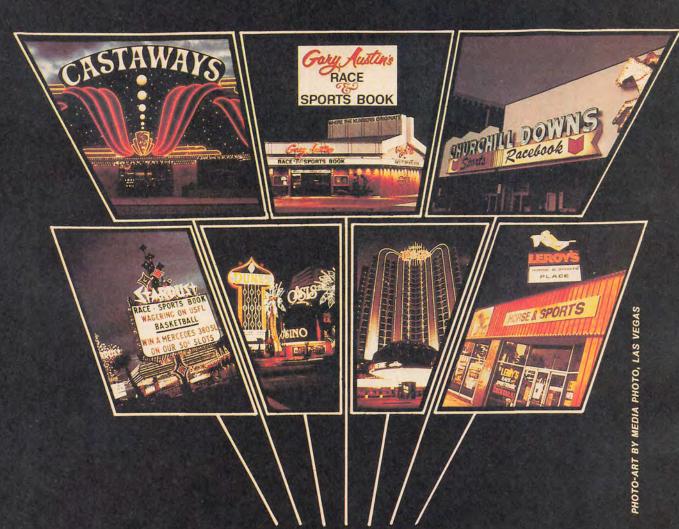

In 1960, America went to the Olympics with the equivalent of a sporting elephant gun trained on mice. Oscar Robertson and Jerry West are adequate representation of the might of that team, but it also had Jerry Lucas, Walter Bellamy, Terry Dischinger, Bob Boozer, Darrall Imhoff, Adrian Smith and a coach named Pete Newell, who to this day has a deanship among the game's best basketball minds.

Newell's team made the Soviets look inept, 81-57, and won its seven other Olympic games by an average margin of 45 points. Frozen into the American intellect was a smug conviction that no one ever was going to catch up in the one international sport that the U.S. developed.

In 1964, a statesman in the making gave America's team some glamour. Bill Bradley was no Russell, Robertson or West, but he is the best combination of intellect, basketball ability and electability ever to grace the floor of a basketball arena or the U.S. Senate.

By 1968, though, Americans were taking Olympic gold for granted in basketball, and what happened in the Mexico City Games that year didn't change that. Another awkwardly timed Olympics (in October) caused the stars of the day to spurn the game—Lew Alcindor and Elvin Hayes the best examples. An unknown youngster not far out of high school, Spencer Haywood, became the team leader and he, JoJo White, Charley Scott and a few other players contributed to the national smugness by rolling unbeaten to another gold medal.

That set up 1972, and Munich, and an Olympic team that included only one player—Ed Ratleff of Long Beach State—from the 12 named to the consensus first-or second-team All-America teams that year.

Hardly remembered is that the U.S. played an uninspired game in the small Munich arena that was packed for the gold-medal game. Hardly remembered is that there would have been no controversy at all to the finish if one of the surprise selections to the team, Doug Collins of Illinois State, hadn't used one of the giant Soviets to hide behind, enabling Collins to intercept a careless lob pass and head to the other end. With three seconds to go, Collins was undercut savagely before he could lay in the basket that would have put the U.S. up by a point. His memories today are unclear about his mental state as he shot the two biggest free throws of his life—his suspicion being that he was so groggy from the fall he had taken that he was incapable of getting nervous.

He hit the free throws, time ran out after an apparent Soviet fizzle, Americans celebrated all over the globe—but officials ordered a replay, then a second one because timers, officials and players were completely out of sync. On the third try, America was caught with its defense down. Alexander Belov went up between two U.S. defenders to catch a floorlength pass, then turned to lay in an uncontested basket that gave the Soviets a 51-50 victory.

The U.S. argued for hours and never did accept the silver medal for second place.

The game made basketball almost an Olympic crusade for the U.S. in 1976. A virtually all-American crowd crammed into the Montreal Forum for the finals and erupted into a vocal rendition of the national anthem during the gold-medal ceremonies, but the one-on-one redeclaration of basketball supremacy vis-a-vis the Soviets wasn't achieved. Yugoslavia—as it had done in 1968 at Mexico City—knocked off the Soviets in the Olympic semifinals, so it was Yugoslavia, not the target, Russia, that was America's final-game victim.

In 1980, the U.S. Government made the Moscow Olympics a part of an American boycott. It thus remains that the only Olympic meeting of the U.S. and Soviet teams since 1964—now almost 20 years ago—was the game in Munich in 1972. It remains that Americans still don't trust Olympic officials. It remains that Americans now know the Soviets and some other teams, mostly from Europe, are not basketball stiffs but genuine threats.

And America wants to win in basketball at Los Angeles.

That's why the San Juan furor that even Bob Knight thought had removed him from any hope of a future Olympic role did not dissuade U.S. Olympic basketball officials when the time came to select the coach who would take the pressure and the responsibility of preparing America's basketball team for America's game in the first American Olympics in 52 years at Los Angeles next summer.

San Juan 1979 remains an experience that is to Knight and some Hispanics similar to the description Khrushchev gave of U.S. presence in Berlin: a bone caught in the throat.

The incident: U.S. Pan American Games coach Knight was conducting a practice; a San Juan policeman opened it to the Brazil women's team. Differences of opinions escalated radically from there and Knight wound up (1) in jail, (2) in court and (3) in everlasting conflict with Puerto Rico's ideas of justice.

Knight, his coaching staff and his 12-man team never backed down from insistence that he was, in Yankee terms, railroaded. The U.S. Olympic Committee's chairman, William E. Simon, used the term in explaining why Knight was solid as the U.S. coach. "We have looked into that incident carefully," Simon said, "and we are convinced that Bobby was railroaded."

Duke coach Mike Krzyzewski, who played for Knight at Army and later was on his staff at Indiana, was in on the discussion with the Puerto Rico policeman before Knight. Four years later, as it kept coming up, Krzyzewski said he was left with "a weird feeling, a feeling that this incident may have been used—may have even been staged—to arouse anti-American sentiment. Hey, that 'incident' never happened. We all said it never happened, me and 12 American players, and nobody listened—including the American press. It was like they were calling the U.S. players liars."

Periodically, for four years, the matter has surfaced. It came up when the selectors were deciding on their 1984 Olympic coaching choice. The argument that carried with the selectors was a simple one: The best coach available is the one we want. By vote, it was Knight.

Word came to Knight in Bloomington late on a Saturday afternoon in May 1982. He admitted it was a shock. Four years before, he knew he had a chance to be selected, but the committee opted for Dave Gavitt and asked him to coach the Pan American team. He accepted and—after a selection process and preparation period that probably will be followed closely next summer—put together a team that, amid the most traumatic distractions an American team in international play ever had to counteract, played as well as any American team in international competition ever has performed—since 1960.

That aspect of the San Juan matter, splendid team performance under unimaginable pressure, was one more demonstration of Knight, The Coach Extraordinaire.

He joked about San Juan for a while, sometimes ribaldly. That backfired into re-emergence of the incident in January 1983, for which he went on national television with Howard Cosell, no less, and stressed that, indeed, he does remain bitter but toward specific people—a policeman, a judge or two, a governor—not a nation. He brought out a letter he had sent to Puerto Rico Governor Carlos Romero Barcelo saying, "At no time did I ever intend to make remarks to reflect on a country or a people. My remarks were directed to the people involved in a particular court case and the way that case was handled." The letter was sent Sept. 7, 1979.

Still, into late-summer 1983 clamor still came from occasional sources for a new Knight apology and Knight had decided total silence—even in humor—was his best response.

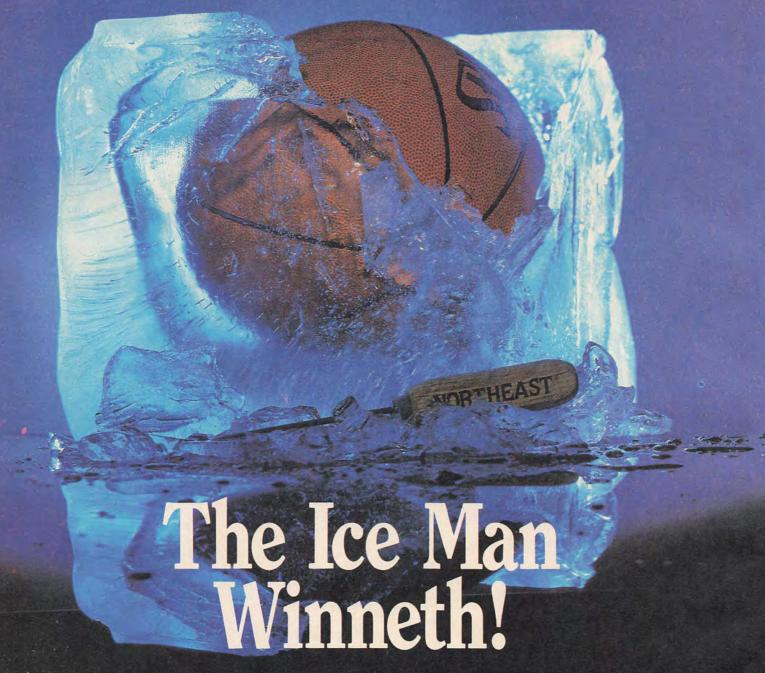

If Americans enter the Olympic year unsure what to expect from their basketball coach or their team, it's understandable.

Knight also has a reputation for unbudging principles. They carry from indisputable areas, such as his leadership in insisting that his college basketball players must be both basketball players and collegians, into debatable ones that involve playing style.

Knight teams (a) never take bad shots or (b) are stifled and uncreative.

Knight teams (a) are the best in the world on defense or (b) by playing only man-to-man are too inflexible for today's game.

Knight's teams (a) fast-break when it's opportune or (b) are out of tune with today's tempo.

Knight's teams win (a) because of a, a and a or (b) because, despite b, b and b, at Indiana he always can attract great talent.

He also was 102-50 in six years at Army, when enrollment at West Point meant not just a post-graduation military obligation (i.e., no NBA opportunity) but also Vietnam. There's hardly room for question about whether he can coach, and his two Indiana national championship teams-in 1976 and 1981—are Exhibit A for all the a's.

There is a question of what players can play for Bob

Commonly, the question comes up from the player's perspective-usually not voiced by a player but about one: flashy, free-firing Charlie Fillintheblank "never could have played for a coach as critical and vocal and strident and demanding as Knight."

Sometimes, it is said from the other direction. "That guy never would have played for Knight (i.e., never would have been offered the chance).

Either way suggests questions about the manpower available for the U.S. Olympic effort in 1984. Will the best try out? Will the best be selected?

Wotinell is "a Knight player?"

"One who is 7-foot-8 and runs like hell, and shoots righthanded and left-handed, who dribbles behind his back with both hands and is a bitch on defense," a whimsical, laughing Knight—the one rarely spotted in public—said when the question came up at a press conference during the National Sports Festival.

"That's what I'd like to have," Knight went on.

"Now, if there aren't any of those available, what we've got to get is a kid who understands how he fits in with what we want to do, a kid who's going to do what he can best do, who understands that he's not a complete player because there aren't many of those, who's going to play to his strengths and stay away from his weaknesses.

Flamboyant Ray Tolbert, the greatest dunker Indiana has seen, delighted Knight by his development in those areas he cited at Colorado Springs. Free-wheeling, creative Isiah Thomas blossomed under such emphases. Mike Woodson went into the NBA with a tag that all he could do was shoot, but he was one of Knight's favorite Hoosiers (and is an outstanding pro). Scott May, Kent Benson, Quinn Buckner, Randy Wittman and Ted Kitchel were more programmed. They also excelled as Hoosiers, as did Bobby Wilkerson, who made the greatest transformation of any Indiana player from high school style to collegiate.

And all of them, in whatever combination they formed at Assembly Hall, won.

The team that emerged from the 1979 Pan American Trials may have previewed the kind that will come out of next spring's Olympic Trials.

It was not one made up of players whose abilities were apparent only to Knight. Of the 12 who played at San Juan, 10 were first-round NBA draft choices. The two who weren't were players put on the squad to a great extent because they recognized limitations but filled team roles exceptionally well: Georgetown guard John Duren, who was a secondround draftee but made it into the NBA, and stout Pittsburgh forward Sam Clancy, who had health problems his senior vear.

Knight's starters usually came from among forwards Woodson, Mike O'Koren of North Carolina and Michael Brooks of LaSalle, center Kevin McHale of Minnesota and guards Kyle Macy of Kentucky and Ronnie Lester of Iowa. Thomas, fresh from high school, was added to the team as an alternate but came on to play well in the climactic games. Ralph Sampson, also just out of high school, was on the squad but used little. The man they called "The Stick" then hardly resembled the lithe, strong athlete who was a threetime college all-American.

Some outstanding players didn't emerge from the trials. Kelly Tripucka, recruited by Knight, had an 0-for-11 game that was indicative of how far off-form he was in trials week. Darrell Griffith reacted to being left off the team by going home to Louisville determined and turning in, as a senior, the great play that had been predicted for him from the days in 1976 when he was the only high schooler at the U.S. Olympic Trials.

Mark Aguirre and Andrew Toney didn't make the team. Right or wrong, they apparently were viewed as one-dimension players-scorers-and those aren't found in abundance on Knight teams.

Knight's ground rules haven't changed, even to the extent of explaining selections. "When we've got it (the Olympic team) picked," he said this summer, "I'll be glad to say why we picked a particular player but not why we didn't pick another player-I think in fairness to the kids.

"In a trials situation, you start with the understanding that another coach may have picked an entirely different team. I don't think there is a more valid comparison for the adage, 'Beauty is in the eye of the beholder,' than for coaches watching basketball. You see it in recruiting. You hear people say, 'Why in hell did they recruit that guy?' That's why it's not fair to a player to say why we didn't pick him. Three other coaches might have picked him and this one didn't."

No one will be invited to the trials with a spot promised. That's a promise, from Knight. "That would be like me telling a kid when I'm recruting him he's going to be a starter," he said. "I'm recruiting him because I think he's good enough to play at Indiana, and if that's not enough for him, then I'll recruit someone else. We're inviting kids to come to the trials because we think they're good enough to be considered for the Olympic team. If that's not good enough for them, then we'll invite somebody else.

"We need some flexibility, some players who can play more than one position. The way we play involves a lot of combinations and people being able to play a lot of different

"I'd like to have players who are creative, but some players are overly creative and don't understand the flow of the game. Those guys throw the ball away a hell of a lot.

"I don't want guys who lack creativity, but I want them to think that their creativity is a reflection of what I would like to

"I won't be thinking about a 'point guard' or a 'power forward' or a 'small forward'—that stuff all passed me by. I'm back about 15 years in coaching.

"I don't know what a 'small forward' is. What I'd like is two 6-10 forwards who can play like hell. I don't want a small guy. Let those guys play second base somewhere. Or golf. I watched the U.S. Open and not one of those guys was 6-10."

At Colorado Springs, the subject of personal goals came up: Was coaching the Olympic team one of Knight's?

"Well, not really," he parried.

"I've seen where this is something that I've always wanted to do, and that's not exactly my feeling.

"I just think that if you get an opportunity to...

"I see where guys occasionally knock patriotism, and that kind of annoys me, maybe as much as anything annoys me. I hate to see that.

'It just comes down to a basic thought for me. I've never fired a shot for this country. Anybody who ever has aided in the firing of a shot to defend this country has done a hell of a lot more than I can ever do coaching the Olympic team.

'But that's something that is available to me that I can do. And it's something that I would like very much to do, simply as an American citizen."

metro by Bob Phillips

For years, some observers of the college scene have been claiming that conference commissioners are about as important as first base coaches, bank vice-presidents or first alternates in beauty contests. In other words, the world would go on spinning without them.

Now comes the Metro Conference to give that claim a concrete foundation. The Metro not only managed to function for seven months without a commissioner, it prospered. During that period, the Metro landed a lucrative television contract, settled a nasty dispute, added a prestigious member to its family and beautified its bank account. If that ain't going in the right direction, what is?

Check it yourself. Larry Albus resigned as commissioner on November 1, 1982. Steve Hatchell was named to replace him on May 29, 1983. Between those two dates:

- · South Carolina, a charter member of the Atlantic Coast Conference but an independent for the past 12 seasons, joined the Metro in March, becoming league's eighth member.
- Louisville became embroiled in a financial disagreement that became so heated the school threatened to bolt the league. However, the argument was settled, reportedly with smiles all around.
- The conference swung a $2 million TV package-almost double what had been made in one season.
- · Also, gate receipts increased and attendance marks fell. The record against Division I teams (112-70) was second only to the Big Ten. Three teams were ranked in the Top Twenty and two teams made it to the NCAA's Sweet Sixteen, one landing in the Final Four.

'The Metro Conference has arrived," says Joe Mitch, the assistant commissioner who has been with the league since its inception in 1975. "The progress we have made in eight years is remarkable. The attention we are getting from the TV networks proves it."

So what will Steve Hatchell do? If he's smart, he'll just sit back and watch. If he does, this is what he'll see:

MEMPHIS STATE

The Tigers' only big question was answered in May when the NBA got a "no" from Keith Lee. The 6-10, 190-pound junior, one of the premier players in the nation, easily makes MSU the best in the Metro-at least on paper. Lee (18.7 ppg, 10.8 rpg and 96 blocked shots) plays his best when the TV lights are on him, which means he's either a clutch player or needs added incentive-or both.

MSU's other four starters return, as well as its best man off the bench, 6-7 Baskerville Holmes. Even if Lee had turned pro, the Tigers-23-8 last year-would be tough because high-jumping 6-5 forward Bobby Parks and quick-on-quick guard Andre Turner return. Parks (15.7 ppg, 6.9 rpg), the Tigers' most consistent performer, was second in assists (82) and the top defender. As a freshman last season, Turner (9.9 ppg) was second in the conference in steals and third in assists.

Coach Dana Kirk appears to have remedied the one problem that plagued the Tigers, a weak bench. Kirk signed three outstanding

Predicted order of finish:

- 7. Southern Mississippi;
- 8. Cincinnati

prospects, including 6-11 William Bedford of Memphis and 6-7 Larry Bush, a power forward from Chicago. Bedford may be good enough to wrest the center spot from two-year starter Derrick Phillips (8.6 ppg, 6.5 rpg)

Kirk, who relishes the role of underdog, may be the only coach breathing who doesn't rate MSU the best in the Metro. "How can you pick us first?" he asked. It was easy, coach. Easy.

LOUISVILLE

Sure, the Cardinals won't be as good as the 32-4 machine that roared through the Metro without a loss. Sure, the graduation of Rodney and Scooter McCray hurts. But don't think the Cardinals won't be 20-game winners again. They will be ... despite the toughest non-conference schedule in the nation: Kentucky, Iowa, Houston, UCLA, NC State).

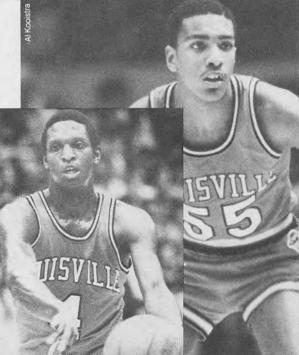

They will because Denny Crum is one of the best coaches currently sitting on a bench and because there is plenty of talent. Charles Jones (10.9 ppg, 6.4 rpg) is a solid center, despite being a tad short (6-8) for that position. Lancaster Gordon (13.7 ppg) and Milt Wagner (14.4 ppg) return to give Crum the best—and biggest—guard combo in Metro.
Just how good the Cards are depends on the forwards. Crum has sophomore Billy Thompson and Manuel Forrest there. The 6-8 Thompson, considered by some the nation's top high school player two years ago, contributed 7.3 ppg and 3.9 rpg coming off the bench last season. He also had 40 blocked shots but shared the team lead in personal fouls (96) with Jones. The 6-7 Forrest, who missed all but the first seven games because of a knee injury, showed plenty of ability while playing in 20 games as a freshman.

Newcomers Barry Sumpter, 6-11 from Lovejoy, III., Mark McSwain, 6-7 from Atlanta, and Willie Olliges, 6-9 from Louisville, should help, but Crum could have depth problems if Forrest and Jones don't cut down on the fouls. Whatever, expect to see Crum's club coming with a late rush. His teams always do.

VIRGINIA TECH

Coach Charles Moir's freshman-flavored team came on quicker than expected last year, finishing 23-11 and tied for second in the conference. Everyone knew Moir had an exceptional recruiting year, but few figured the talent would jell so quickly.

The best of the new faces was Bobby Beecher, a smooth-shooting 6-9 center who recorded 12.7 ppg, 6.1 rpg, 56 blocked shots and was named Metro freshman of the year. He and Tech's four other starters return. That means with Beecher, forward Perry Young (16.1 ppg) and guard Dell Curry (14.5 ppg) there will be plenty of offense. The question is, will there be more rebounding? Moir had better hope so because, despite a soft schedule, his team was consistently out-rebounded last year. This time the schedule is stronger.

Another question is 6-7 forward Keith Colbert (10 ppg, 5.4 rpg), who had academic problems and may miss at least part of the season. However, there is help on the bench, ward Kenny Holmes (9.8 ppg, 3.2 rpg) and 7-0 center Mike Brittain, who came on strong toward the end of last season. There is depth on the bench and talent at guard.

The one question: Can anyone replace playmaker Gerald Peacock, who set the single-season assist record with 182 last year? If Foster finds someone to run the show and if Brittain continues to improve, SC may have a season as good as last year's 22-9 campaign. Maybe even better.

FLORIDA STATE

The most erratic team in the league the past few years, the up-and-down Seminoles are hard to figure. They'll beat Memphis State one night, then lose to Pittsburgh the next. Maybe it's the sunshine.

This year the tendency would be to pick them near the bottom. They lost their best player and are banking on someone who has yet to wear an FSU uniform. But things just might work out. Out-going is guard Mitchell Wiggins, the Metro's leading scorer (22.7 ppg) and fourth-best rebounder (8.2 rpg). Incoming is 6-11 Alton Lee Gipson from Utica (Miss.) Junior College. The Seminoles, who didn't have an inside game, are counting Gipson to give them one. Considered one of the nation's top 10 juco prospects, Gipson (22 ppg, 10.1 rpg) may do it.

Four starters return, including 6-6 forward Vince Martello (13.9 ppg, 5.4 rpg) and guard Tony William, the Metro's assist leader (5.5 per game). Coach Joe Williams seems to have put together the league's softest schedule (Central Florida, Monmouth College, Baptist College, Florida International, etc.) in an effort to improve on last year's 14-14 record.

If Gipson comes through, there will be more ups and downs. If the sunshine gets him, FSU fans will have more fun at the beach.

thanks, in part, to another fine recruiting effort. This time last year, most figured Tech was a year away. Now that year has arrived: Tech should challenge Louisville for second.

SOUTH CAROLINA

A step behind Louisville and Virginia Tech come the Gamecocks, who lose that step only because of their inexperience in the Metro. SC's poor play away from home last year concerns coach Bill Foster because he knows the road through the Metro has some strange Still, SC must be considered the conference darkhorse. The Gamecocks have one of the best frontlines in the league with 6-8 forward Jimmy Foster (17.3 ppg, 8.9 rpg), 6-8 forward Brad Jergenson (9.5 ppg, 5.2 rpg), 6-5 for-

TULANE

During his two seasons at Tulane, coach Ned Fowler has worked some pretty good magic, transforming the Green Wave from losers to winners. However, it will be a real trick if he comes anywhere near matching last year's show of 19-12 and second-place Metro finish.

Gone is all-conference forward Paul Thompson (17.5 ppg, 7.4 rpg), along with forwards Elton Webster (8.7 ppg, 6.3 rpg) and Curtis Wallace (6.5 ppg, 4..0 rpg). That doesn't leave much of a frontline. In fact, all it leaves is 6-9 center John Williams (12.4 ppg, 5.4 rpg). He'll get some help from 6-7 Clyde Eads (6.3 ppg, 1.6 rpg).

SOUTHERN MISSISSIPPI

With one outstanding player but little else, Coach M.K. Turk's second time around the Metro block may be even tougher than the first.

The Golden Eagles managed to win only three of 12 league games in their initial Metro season last year largely because of a mediocre frontline. Now, two starters—center Carl Mitchell (12.6 ppg, 7.1 rpg) and forward Kenny Dailey (8.2 ppg, 5.9 rpg)—have gone and there doesn't seem much in the way of replacements.

It's a shame, because guard Curtis Green (16.7 ppg, 3 rpg) deserves better playmates. Green, a 6-1 senior, was fifth in the Metro in scoring and thrid in steals (58). Too bad this bunch ain't from Texas, padnah, 'cause it's certainly a lone star team.

CINCINNATI

Here's hoping the Bearcats' new coach, Tony Yates, is braced for the worst because that's exactly what he's going to get. Yates, a point guard for Cincinnati during its glory days in 1961 and 1962, replaces Ed Badger, and Badger left him little besides unhappy fans and plenty of holes to fill.

The only quality player due back was forward Myron Hughes (8 ppg, 6.9 rpg), but he will miss the season because of a knee injury. The Bearcats managed to win one Metro game. Improving on that may be too much to ask of Yates, whose maiden voyage through Metro waters will make The Poseidon Adventure look like a fun ride at Six Flags.

The Association of Mid-Continent Universities (AMCU) crowned Western Illinois as its first basketball champion. Western edged by Southwest Missouri State in the last week to win the conference outright with a 9-3 record.

Proposed new conference member Southern Illinois-Edwardsville has dropped its program for at least a year, so the "Mid Continent" will stay with its eight charter members. Last season, AMCU schools played anywhere from five to 13 conference games. This year, a full home-and-away schedule for all teams has been arranged. In addition, the first AMCU post-season tournament is set for the

Predicted order of finish:

- 1. Eastern Illinois;
- 2. Western Illinois;
- 3. Illinois-Chicago;
- 4. Valparaiso;
- 5. Northern Iowa;
- 6. Cleveland State;
- 7. Southwest Missouri State;
- 8. Wisconsin-Green Bay

second weekend in March at Southwest Missouri State's Hammons Center.

By the way, you won't find any shot clocks or three-point field goals here. The Mid-Continent prefers good, old-fashioned basketball. Although there is really no one dominant team, look for the three Illinois schools—Eastern, Western, and Illinois Chicago—to occupy the first division. (Providing the turmoil within the Illinois-Chicago program subsides.) Valparaiso, Northern Iowa could challenge.

EASTERN ILLINOIS

Coaches talk about peaks and valleys during the course of a year. Eastern Illinois' Rick Samuels saw Death Valley and Mount Everest in one season. His Panthers were 0-12 before winning six straight to take the early lead. Eastern then lost two, won five in a row before finishing the roller coaster ride at 13-18.

In Mid-Continent play, EIU tied for second place with Southwest Missouri State at 8-4. Still, the 2-14 overall road mark kept Eastern from its tenth straight winning record.

With seven of their top nine players returning, the Panthers will not be overlooked. Finding a replacement for first team All Mid-Continent guard Kevin Jones (17.4 ppg.) won't be easy, though. But transfer Jon Collins is a good start. Collins, a 6-4 swingman, was a starter as a freshman on Northern Illinois' 1982 NCAA tournament team. He's eligible after sitting out a year. Also returning is former starting guard Vincent Smelter, who was academically ineligible. The best of the freshmen are 6-6 Derrick Spight from Indianapolis (18 ppg, 9 rpg), and Dan McCaughey from Quincy, Ill. (16 ppg, 11 rpg).

Samuels hopes to blend them with his returning starters—6-1 junior Doug Crook (12.1 ppg), 6-5 senior forward Tim Dykstra (9.7 ppg, 3.9 rpg), and 6-11, 300 pound sophomore center Kevin Duckworth (9.6 ppg, 6. rpg). Duckworth is said to be the biggest basketball player in the country. (In any country!)

Dykstra may pass up senior season to play handball in 1984 Olympics, and if he does Eastern Illinois will not be the favorite here anymore.

WESTERN ILLINOIS

The Leathernecks, defending conference champs at 9-3, finished only their second major college schedule at 20-11. What's the secret? Seven-year coach Jack Margenthaler says, "There's no secret. You just recruit great free-throw shooters." Indeed, Western Illinois shot 77.5 per cent from the stripe, down from 78.6 the season before. Over the past two seasons, WIU's starters have maintained an 80.9 (722 of 892) free throw accuracy mark.

Western's leading free throw shooter over the past four seasons—AMCU Player of the Year Joe Dykstra (88.5 per cent career)—is gone. Dykstra's jersey number "42" has been retired, probably hung over one of the free throw lines at Western Hall. Dykstra (21.1 ppg, 5.6 rpg), All-Conference guard Eric Jackson (14.5 ppg, 3.3 asists), and 6-9 center Roger Nickell (5.5 points, 4 rpg) all have graduated.

Returnees are 6-7 senior forward Todd Hutcheson (9.9 ppg, 6 rpg), 6-3 sophomore guard Daryl Reed (4.2 ppg), and 6-9 part-time center Kevin Wilson (3.7 ppg, 3.8 rpg).

Why is there reason for optimism in Macomb? Because Margenthaler will mix in perhaps the best overall group of recruits in the AMCU. Three juco transfers include a pair from the nation's fifth best team, Moberly, (Mo.), 6-6 forward Jerome "Jake" Clayton (16.5 ppg, 9.6 rpg), and point guard Johnny Holman (12 ppg, 7 apg). Also, Cedric "Tree" Wright (16 ppg, 7 rpg) from Dekalb (Ga.) JC.

Look for Western Illinois to be in position to defend their title by the end of the season. But remember, opponents, don't foul them!

ILLINOIS-CHICAGO

Is Tom Meyer going to coach the Flames in '83-84? If so, will his players play for him? If not, who will be the new coach? Is this a scene from "Mary Hartman, Mary Hartman"?

Back in April, The UIC players decided they no longer would play for Meyer. School officials moved him to the front office, thereby relieving him of his coaching duties. Tom balked at the move, and a few days later was reinstated as head basketball coach. It remains to be seen who will take the floor when the Flames open their season November 26th against Brooklyn College. This summer Sports Information Director John Hansen was trying to decide which pictures to include in this season's media quide.

If the players are somehow able to overcome their differences and play, this could be a big year in the UIC Pavilion because this group has a load of talent. No one graduated from the 16-12 squad that finished 7-4, good for fourth best in Mid-Continent play.

First-team All-AMCU performer Ivan Daniels (15.5 ppg, 6.8 rpg) returns. At 6-10 and Mid-Continent high-flyers are Kevin (00) Duckworth, Ivan Daniels, and defender Randy Kraayenbrink.

235, the junior plays forward. Either 7-2 Dave Williams or burly 6-9 Darryl Rice anchor the middle. Clutch performer Tim Anderson (12.6 ppg, 5.8 rpg) is the other forward.

The guards are 6-2 bomber John Ellis (15.6 ppg) and 6-0 junior Craig "Cubby" Lathen (10.4 ppg, 8.7 assists). The lone newcomer, Carver H.S. (Chicago) product Andre Moore (17 ppg) is eligible after sitting out a year.

VALPARAISO

The Crusaders finished at 13-15, the best the school has done in six years at the Division I level. They were picked to finish last in the conference, but managed to move up two notches to finish sixth at 4-9. Still, VU was 9-4 as late as January 8 before the seams came loose. With his top four scorers returning, fourth year coach Tom Smith (34-48) hopes to see his rebuilding program take a big step over the .500 mark.

The only loses were 6-8 center Dave Luethy (9.1 ppg, 5.9 rpg) and reserve Dave Wojciechowski (3.1 ppg). The inability to recruit a big man, though, leaves the Crusaders without a bonafide center Smith hopes to employ a three guard, two forward alignment.

One of the guards will be senior John Meyne. The All-Conference 1st team selection is the leading scorer returning to the AMCU this season (18.9 ppg). Playing forward last season, the 6-2 Meyne was second on the team in rebounding (5.5). Returning for his fourth year as a starter is 5-11 point guard John McIlvain (10.9 ppg, 7 assists). Other returnees are 6-7 forward Larry Roby (10.4 ppg, 4.5 rpg)—ineligible first term—and Mike Thompson (9.8 ppg).

A sure bet to man one of the guard spots is 5-10 Rob Harden. The former high school All-American sat out last season after transferring from the University of Florida, where he started as a freshman. Two other additions, 6-6 Tony Asberry from Eastern Oklahoma St. JC (16 ppg, 9 rpg), and 6-7 frosh Rick Pickren from the Kansas City area (31.1 ppg, 10.2 rpg).

NORTHERN IOWA

The Panthers have improved win total ever so slightly in each of its three Division I seasons.

After going 8-19 and 12-15, they were 13-18 last year, including a fifth place 6-5 in conference play. Northern lowa was 11-2 in the UNI Dome, but only 1-14 on the road, and 1-2 at neutral sites.

Eleventh-year coach Jim Berry loses 6-11 Ray Storck (10.8 ppg, 4.4 rpg), 5-9 point guard Brent Carmichael (9.6 ppg, 4.9 rpg) and reserve guard Kevin Bradford (3.8 ppg).

Last season's leading scorer, 6-3 guard Randy Kraayenbrink (12.4 ppg, 2.4 rpg) is back. Freshman Kraayenbrink lived up to his lowa "Mr. Basketball" title, and he will be joined by 6-7 senior forward Mike Pijanowski (8.3 ppg, 3.5 rpg) and 6-8 forward-center Herbert King (6.3 ppg, 4.1 rpg).

Berry is bringing another lowa "Mr. Basket-ball" to Cedar Falls this season. Six-four Todd Lumsden (27 ppg) brings his talents to the Panthers from Linn-Mar High School. Other new faces include 6-2 Joe Morganfield (A great name for a baseball stadium) from Westmont (lowa) High (25 ppg), and 6-7 Scott Stafford (13 ppg) from N.E. Oklahoma JC.

To be a contender in this season's conference race, Northern must prove it can win away from the Dome.

CLEVELAND STATE

Things got bad enough during the Vikings' 8-20 season that coach Ray Dieringer dressed his student manager, Brian "Moses" Maloney, and started him in the season finale against UW-Green Bay. Ironically, Cleveland State won the game, its only AMCU win in five tries.

After back-to-back years with NBA firstround draft picks (Franklin Edwards—76ers, 1981, and Darren Tillis—Celtics, 1982), and with only 10 home games, a rebuilding year was anticipated. But "Moses" Maloney?

"Moses" is gone, and so is 14-year coach Ray Dieringer. His replacement is Kevin Mackey, former associate coach at Boston College. Mackey inherits 6-8 senior center Dave Youdath (16.6 ppg, 8.3 rpg), 6-2 sophomore guard Vince Richards (6.4 ppg), and Lionel "Sky" King, a 6-5 senior forward (4.2 ppg, 2.7 rpg).

Losses include last year's only senior, guard Lee Red (7.9 ppg, 4.1 assists). Transferring out are 6-7 junior Dave Colbert (15.6 ppg, 8.1 rpg) and 5-11 junior Jim Les (8 ppg, 6.5 assists).

Mackey has brought in eight new bodies, the most prominent being 5-8 Shawn Hood. He's an honorable mention All-American from Boston's Don Bosco High, and was MVP of the Junior National AAU Invitational Tournament. Other freshmen are 5-10 Ed Bryant (20 ppg) from Boston, Mass., and 6-8 Elgin Womack (19 ppg) from Bayside, NY. From the juco ranks, 6-1 Kermit Sharp (31.2 ppg, 10 rpg) from Becker (Mass.) JC.

SOUTHWEST MISSOURI STATE

The 1982-83 Bears seemed to have the conference championship well in hand as they went on the road to finish the season. They needed only to win either of their two remaining AMCU games to win it outright. SMS lost both, 82-67 at Eastern Illinois, and 66-60 at Northern Iowa. After leading the league all season, Bob Cleeland's club fell into a second-place tie in the final standings.

Cleeland is gone, and so are three of the top four scorers from a 13-15 season. New coach Charlie Spoonhour will have to replace the whole front line. Gone are leading scorer Bobby Howard (15.1 ppg, 5.1 rpg) and fellow forward Joe Ward (13.9 ppg, 4.2 rpg). Also, shot-blocking 6-8 center Ricky Johnson (10.4 ppg, 8.1 rpg, 57 blocks).

One guard will be senior Anthony Boggs (11.8 ppg, 61 steals). Others with experience include 6-7 Eric Gray (5.1 ppg, 3.4 rpg) and 6-6 Chris Scott (4.4 ppg, 2.6 rpg).

Spoonhour knew he needed immediate help, so he added three junior college recruits: Derek Thomas of Pittsburg State (15.1 ppg, 8.7 rpg), Randy Stange of Hutchinson CC (11.8 ppg) and Greg Dockery of West Nebraska JC (13 ppg, 7 rpg).

The Bears aren't counted among the AMCU contenders this season, but with 15 home games and the conference post-season tournament at spacious Hammons Student Center, don't count on their hibernation, either.

WISCONSIN-GREEN BAY

Second year coach Dick Lien is trying to build a solid Division I program the way his predecessor, Dave Buss, did in Division II. Buss had NCAA Division II runner-up teams in 1977-78 and 1978-79. After going 14-13 in their initial Division I season, Lien replaced Buss, and the Phoenix staggered through a 9-19 year, 2-11 in conference play. UWGB was 1-9 on the road, and 1-3 on neutral courts.

Lien must first find an adequate replacement for post-man Nate Barnes. The 6-8 Barnes (11.8 ppg, 10.6 rpg, blocked 33 shots), before his eligibility expired Feb. 1. Green Bay had no real inside game after that. Also gone is 6-4 guard Casey Ramm (7.9 ppg).

The Phoenix will be led by guard Tom Brown. The 6-1 junior (12.6 ppg, 4.9 rpg, 2.5 apg) can just about do it all. He may have to. Six foot sophomore guard Lewis Ballard (5 ppg, 2.6 apg) and 6-7 senior forward-center Rob Olson lend support.

There is some Grade A youth on it's way, though, led by 6-5 Dave Peterson from Minneapolis (21 ppg, 13 rpg), 6-2 Richard Sims from Barberton, Ohio (19.8 ppg, 7 rpg), and 6-6 West Indies native Leslie Rowley (10.1 ppg, 6 rpg) from Brevard (Fla.) JC.

Morehead Coach Wayne Martin is a golfer of note, too, (his 66 once was an Eagle singleround school record as he lettered four years), so you might relate his club going into this OVC season perhaps as a Tom Watson going into the final round with a 4-stroke lead. Coming off their finest season in 54 years of basketball, Martin's Eagles have four starters and seven seniors back from a squad that came on strong and won the league tourney, then lost to Syracuse in the NCAA East.

"Morehead might be a more pronounced favorite than Murray was last year," says one league coach, who adds: "Beyond that, there's not a nickle's difference in the rest of the conference.

If anything, the Eagles might guard against complacency, and Martin thinks they will: "Knowing how competitive the league is, I feel that if the players get to feeling that way, then playing Tennessee, Kansas and Louisville in December will take care of it real quick."

It's easier to pick the projected champion than it is the bottom club. Balance is superb beyond the Eagles, and Middle Tennessee, only two years from its Mid-East glory day, is picked for the cellar because that's where the Raiders ended up last year.

MOREHEAD

Coming off an OVC (tournament) championship, the first NCAA appearance in 22 years, equalling the most victories in the school's history (19), and having four starters and seven first-line players back, project this tiny Eastern Kentucky state school (6,500 enrollment) into its most optimistic position since the institution was founded in 1922

Leading the way for the seven senior returnees are Guy Minnifield (15.8 ppg, leader in assists with 134 and 69 steals) and 6-7 Earl Harrison (13.6 ppg, second in OVC rebounding at 9 rpg). Harrison also ranked among OVC leaders with 56.3 percent FGA and slammed home a school-record 31 dunks. Minnifield was in the top 10 in 6 of OVC's stats lists and one of team's top defensive perform-

Center 6-7 Jeff Tucker (9.7 ppg, 6.7 rpg) and pointman Jeff Fultz (87 assists) are the other starters back and they'll be joined by 6-11 Jeff Tipton (9.8 ppg, 3.9 rpg, OVC leader at .815 free throw percent and 56.4 field goal percent), 6-6 Eddie Childress (8.9 ppg, 3.3 rpg) and 5-9 Arthur "Pee-Wee" Sullivan (8.6 ppg, 30 steals)

New help will come from 6-4 Mike Everett (15.1 ppg, 3.5 rpg, 6.2 apg) from Mercer County (N.J.) JC, plus 6-4 Willie Feldhaus of Itawamba JC (10.8 ppg, 5.1 rpg), 6-7 Pate Clements (16.9 ppg, 10 rpg) of Tallahassee

Edgar Allen is media relations director at Churchill Downs after a 35-year career as a fine sports writercolumnist for the Nashville Banner.

Leon High School and 6-3 Tony Vance of Muncie (Ind.) Central (17.8 ppg, 7.3 rpg).

TENNESSEE TECH

A disciple of Ray Mears and Don DeVoe, Tom. Deaton came to the Golden Eagles with solid credentials and produced quickly. In his second year (1981-82) he reeled off a 6-game win streak-first at Tech in 19 years-and last season was within a point perhaps of school's first NCAA berth in 20 years. Tech lost 54-53 to Morehead in OVC tourney semis, then watched Eagles blast Akron 81-65 in finals and go on to NCAA eliminations.

Four of five starters are back: 6-6 soph Stephen Kite (Basketball Weekly All-America Frosh) with 12.9 ppg, 6.6 rpg; 6-4 junior Lon-

Predicted order of finish:

1. Morehead;

- 2. Tennessee Tech; 3. Akron;
- 4. Murray; 5. Austin Peay;
- 6. Eastern Kentucky:
- 7. Youngstown;
- 8. Middle Tennessee.

nie Boone (11.5 ppg, 4.2 rpg), 6-2 junior Jimmy Elliott (11.1 ppg) and 6-3 senior Danny Schultz (6.7 ppg)

Gone is 6-8 Steve Taylor, who did just about everything at the pivot on both ends. "Our key is being able to find someone to take Taylor's place," says Deaton. "We're a good young team. We had the No. 1 freshman in the league two years running and are beginning to get some experience. We'll be competitive if we can find someone for Taylor.

There, it will be between JC (Roane CC) 6-81/2 Ricky Cantrell (9.8 ppg, 10.6 rpg) and senior holdover 6-8 Jeff Smithson. If those two can get the job done between them, look for the 16-12 Eagles to improve and push Morehead for the championship.

Zips appear ready to challenge for OVC title, what with 11 lettermen back, including 6-5 Joe Jakubick, the nation's No. 5 scorer. Jakubick (28.5 ppg) sizzled consistently with 50.5 field goal percent and 40 percent from the 3point distance. And although there'll be no 3pointer in the OVC this year, his admirers say he'll get more in his drives for the basket.

Certainly, Jakubick is a player . . . at his best under pressure. Example: he had 33, 47 and 22 versus seasonal champ Murray, leading to a pair of victories, one in the tourney semifinals. OVC Co-Player of the Year, Jakubick established 12 school records, tied another and is cinch to become Akron's all-time scorer. maybe before league schedule begins

Three other starters join him: 6-5 junior guard Wayne Pierce (10..9 ppg, 4 rpg); 6-6 junior Rick Acord (11.2 ppg, 5.3 rpg); and 6-6 junior Jamie Suthers (5.9 ppg, 4.9 rpg). Add to those 6-4 John Strong, 6-3 Fred Johnson, 6-5 Curt Shaffer, 6-1 Mike Fenwick and 6-8 Darius Moss, all of whom had starting time last season. That should give Bob Rupert as deep a bench as there is in the conference.

Lone loss by graduation, 6-7 Tim Spikes, will be replaced by 6-8, 235 Bryan Roth (4.6 ppg, 4 rpg for Toledo in 1980-81). "He's probably the first legitimate post player we have recruited in four years," says Rupert With a new 7,000-seat gym, Zip supporters look to the season with open arms.

MURRAY

The premier figures in the Racers' first seasonal OVC title parade in 19 years, 6-6 Glen Green (Co-Player of Year in OVC) and 6-7 Ricky Hood (All-OVC, league's top rebounder), have completed their eligibility, so the spotlight shifts to the backcourt.

The Racers have plenty there, beginning with 5-10 Lamont Sleets (16.9 ppg, OVC assist leader, OVC steals runner-up). Coming off a late 1982 stress fracture, Sleets might not have been as consistent a shooter as before, but he was good enough to make second team All-OVC and move into No. 4 slot in Murray's all-time scoring with 1,518. He needs 502 more to become No. 1.

Sleets is the leader of a deep, veteran backcourt that figures to have as much experience as any in the country. He and 6-3 senior Brian Stewart (8.1 ppg, OVC runner-up in steals), who runs the show at the point, are three-year starters and they'll be joined by returning lettermen 6-1 James Preston, whose enthusiasm and leadership are strong suits, and 6-3 soph Derek Lindauer.

Inside, seniors 6-7 David Youngblood and 6-4 Craig Jones are back; joining 6-11 Mike Lahm, a transfer from Loyola Marymount and 6-9 Ben Matlock, eligible after sitting out '83.

The main inside help probably will come from 6-9 Mlke Yarbrough and 6-7 Curtis Davis, both from Dayton (O.) Colonel White High, and a pair from highly-ranked Jamestown (N.Y.) JC, 6-6 Gary Jefferson and 6-4 Craig Talley. Sharpshooting Willie Holland from Covington, Tenn., could be solid backup to the deep guard quartet. Racers return Ron Green, OVC Coach of Year, and that gives them an edge.

AUSTIN PEAY

Govs could well be darkhorse of race, despite coming off 11-16 record. The 4-10 OVC mark included seven losses by 5 points or less.

Howard Jackson should bridge the transition smoothly, taking over the head coaching

OVC stars (top to bottom) are Guy Minnifield, Stephen Kite, Joe Jakubick and (at right) Lamont Sleets, and they are tough. reins from Ron Bargatze, who resigned to go into private business in the Nashville area.

Jackson served as Bargatze's assistant since 1979 and as his associate head coach since 1981. Terms of his 1-year contract have the same stipulations for renewal that were in Bargatze's pact: that the team have an overall winning record or better, and that the team finish .500 or better in the Ohio Valley Conference.

"This is a dream come true for me," said Jackson, who signed exactly 10 years to the week after a near-tragic accident when he fell 83 feet Aug. 6, 1973, while working on the skylight at a nearby steam plant under construction.

"I've wanted to be the head coach at Austin Peay as I feel every coach looks forward to returning to his alma mater. We'll be trying to build on the success that I was a part of as a player."

Jackson averaged 18.9 ppg, 11.6 rpg for the Governors and former head coach Lake Kelly (now a new U. of Kentucky assistant replacing Joe Dean Jr.) in 1971-72, then as a junior led the Govs to its first OVC title (11.1 ppg, 11.6 rpg) when he was All-OVC for the second year and also made All-Mid-East Regional after 1973 losses to Kentucky and Marquette.

After rehabilitation, Jackson graduated from AP, served as a junior high head coach in Jonesboro, Ga., was a graduate assistant under Kelly, and was head coach at Volunteer State Community College.

Main man for the Govs is 6-6 senior All-America candidate Lenny Manning, No. 5 in OVC scoring (16.5 ppg), third in free throw percentage (83.3), sixth in field goal percentage (54.0) and boasting 6 rpg. Two other seniors, 6-5 Greg Andrews (13.3 ppg, 4.9 rpg) and 6-3 guard Joe Parker (8.4 ppg, 4.7 rpg) also figure to be double-digit scorers. John Collins, at 6-6, could contribute, too.

Govs have never been stronger at guard as they are now, with 5-11 Lonnie West (4.7 ppg). OVC All-Frosh and among assist leaders on the point; Pat Day, 1982 All-OVC Freshman (9.6 ppg), back after a July 1982 auto accident; and JCs 6-0 James Rorex (24 ppg) and 6-0 Kent Able (9.1 ppg) giving backcourt competition for the first time.

Frosh Duane Johnson (6-3 swingman, 22.1 ppg, 10.2 rpg) from Canonsburg, Pa., and Knoxville prep MVP 6-8½ Jimmy McGill (20 ppg, 13 rpg) also will help in Governors' move toward first division.

EASTERN KENTUCKY

Max Good had his skeptics when he took over Colonel reins in 1981 and began a recruiting campaign that placed priority on character and attitude as well as talent. He didn't change many minds in his initial year, guiding his neophyte charges to a 5-21 season and a tie for last place in OVC. But last year's slate picked up to 10-17 and a break-even 7-7 league record for a fourth-place tie. Supporters are hoping the progression will continue.

Six lettermen return, including starters Kenny Wilson and John DeCamillis. The 6-4 Wilson, also OVC high jump champlon (7-2), is leading returning scorer (10.8) and rebounder (4.9). DeCamillis was league all-freshman after topping OVC in assists (121). Rounding out top returnees are 6-7 swingman Mike Budzinski, 6-4 guard Allen Feldhaus, 6-8 junior Scott Daniels and 6-2 Frank Baines, red-shirted last year after averaging 10.8 ppg as starter in '81-82.

New blood comes from five frosh and two jucos, led by 6-2 guard Antonio Parris (21 ppg, 10 rpg) from Chattanooga, 6-2 guard Woody Edwards (24.8 ppg, 7.5 rpg) from Atlanta and 6-5½ John Primm (13.5 ppg, 12.7 rpg) from Cumberland (Tenn.) JC. Good hasn't padded his schedule with patsies, The Colonels should profit from likes of Cincinnati, Xavier, Vanderbilt, Auburn, Memphis State and Dayton before tough OVC road begins.

YOUNGSTOWN

Changing an 8-18 season to 15-12 a year ago ranked the Penguins 15th nationally in NCAA win-loss improvement. Mike Rice, in his second year after leaving Duquesne, is his everaggressive, enthusiastic self and sees more to come. So does the school, pouring nearly $1 million to expand Beegley Gym's seating from 5,800 to 7,800.

"I think if we'd known each other better," says Rice of last year's team, "we'd have won 19 games." YSU started upward when 7-1 Ricky Tunstall found his bearings in the middle. The Duquesne transfer via South Idaho JC had 11.1 ppg, 6.7 rpg and blocked 138 shots. Only Houston's Abdul Akeem Olajuwon had more rejections than Tunstall, who had a season-high 12 blocks in 73-66 win over Middle Tennessee. "He laid the foundation for this season with that late surge," declared Rice.

Also returning are 6-7 junior Troy Williams (12 ppg, 6.3 rpg), who was OVC All-Freshman two years ago; and 5-10 soph Bruce Timko (6.2 ppg), a heralded Warren, Ohioan who led with 90 assists, 13 against Tennessee Tech.

Freshman support could come from James Fulcher (15.2 ppg, 11.6 rpg) of Masanutten Prep and Dwight Carter (16.7 ppg, 8.3 rpg) of Akron Central-Hower.

Needing just five wins, the Penguins should cross school's 700-victory threshold by mid-December, but getting out of OVC's second division may be too much this time.

MIDDLE TENNESSEE

Last season was a rude comedown (7-20 overall, 3-11 and last place in OVC) after the glorious 22-8, 12-4 OVC record in 1982 and memorable 50-44 eye-catching upset of Kentucky in Mid-East.

Colorful Stan "Ramrod" Simpson, master of the one-liners, vows team will be better, but won't guess how much. "Every other team in the league is going to be better, too," he says. With NCAA tourney holdovers Dwayne Dorsey and Ed "Pancakes" Perry gone, best returnees loom as 6-6 senior Doug Lipscomb (12.8 ppg, 8.4 rpg) and sophs 6-3 LaRae Davis (11.1 ppg) and 6-10 Raleigh Choice (8.6 ppg, 3.9 rpg), who came into his own late.

Raiders think they recruited effectively again, signing seven, gaining another in 6-8, 225 transfer Billy Miller from Western Carolina.

Best of newcomers may be 6-3 guard Anthony Anderson (23.5 ppg, 8 rpg), Mississippi JC Player of Year, 6-4 swingman Lonnie Thompson (20 ppg, 6.3 rpg), Georgia JC Player of Year from Gainesville, which produced Lipscomb and departed Dorsey, 6-7 Russell Smith (15.7 ppg, 11.7 rpg) from Calhoun JC, 6-1 guard Leon Issac from Howard (Tex.) JC.

Returning maturity and added talent should help perimeter shooting and inside strength but it may take more to leave the cellar.

by W. H. Stickney Jr.

The championship game of the 1982-83 SWAC post-season Basketball Classic had just been completed and Texas Southern head coach Robert Moreland had come up on the short end of an 81-69 decision to the Alcorn State Braves. The loss was traumatic, but it pained Moreland more to think of the future.

Alcorn's Davey Whitney had pulled off his fourth tournament crown in the last five years and his third automatic berth in the NCAA Tournament during that span using a lineup that featured five sophomore starters.

"We just have to hope that over the next two years we can get enough talent to come back then and challenge them for the title," said Moreland, whose five starters all completed their eligibility that fateful night. "But there are going to be a lot of teams in the conference that are going to be taking a backseat to the Braves for awhile."

ALCORN

This could be easily the most solid lineup, top to bottom, in the conference. The Braves don't own a towering center. But there's a lot of sinew and scoring punch along a frontline that features 6-6 Aaron Brandon, the most valuable player of the SWAC tournament, and 6-6 David Claybon at the forwards and 6-8 Tommy Collier in the middle.

Brandon was the Braves' leading scorer last year with a 15.9 ppg average and he helped in throttling Georgetown's Patrick Ewing as Alcorn came within six points of upsetting Hoyas in the NCAA Tournament.

There are few better out front than Eddie "The Magician" Archie, the 5-10 whippet of a guard who passed out 229 assists while averaging 11.7 ppg and 3.4 steals a contest a year ago. Of the five starters, only Claybon (8 ppg) failed to average in double figures in scoring.

The newcomers are forwards Anthony Jackson (22.4 ppg, 15.3 rpg) out of Jackson, Miss., Callaway High and Bonner Upshaw Jr., (21 ppg, 14 rpg) of Mt. Clemens, Miss., High. Upshaw at 6-9 and Jackson at 6-4 add to an already sound reserve corps which boasts of 6-9 David Palmer, a sophomore, and seniors Timothy Pollard (6-8) and Daniel Haralson (6-8).

Dave "Pee Wee" Whitney Jr., overcame a case of freshman jitters to give the Braves a firm hand in reserve.

ALABAMA STATE

Their first season out of the ranks of the independents proved to be a fruitful one for the Hornets. And with 6-6 senior forward Lewis Jackson leading the cast of four returning starters and nine lettermen. Oliver has cause

W.H. Stickney Jr. has covered Southwestern Athletic Conference basketball for the past ten years, as a member of the Houston Chronicle sports staff. for thinking his club can at least duplicate its 1982-83 performance (22-6 NIT berth).

Jackson was a first-team All-SWAC selection as he averaged 23.9 ppg, and 6.6 rpg. He was the 12th-best scorer in the NCAA and shot 59.8 percent from the field.

Predicted order of finish:

- 1. Alcorn State:
- 2. Alabama State;
- 3. Southern;
- 4. Texas Southern:
- 5. Grambling; 6. Jackson State;
- 7. Mississippi Valley;
- 8. Prairie View A&M

Jackson's running mate at forward, 6-6 senior Melvin Armstrong, returns with a 15 ppg and 6.5 rpg average. Supersub Joe Williams, a 6-6 junior, allows Oliver the luxury of resting any one of his starters along the frontline without too much of a dropoff. Williams averaged 11.2 ppg and 7.6 rpg in '82.

Junior playmaker Mike Freeney (6-0), who averaged a team-high 7.3 assists and 8.6 ppg, returns along with 6-10 junior center Eddie Tanner (3.9 ppg, 2.9 rpg)

The Hornets landed 6-10, 215-pound Reubin Holmes of Carver High in Memphis during a solid recruiting haul. Also signed was 6-3 guard Michael Erby of New Albany, Miss. He was the second-leading scorer in Mississippi averaging 29.7 ppg to go along with his 13 rpg.

SOUTHERN

There were only four seniors on the squad and only two of them starters. Last year's leading scorer, guard Brian Broadway (13.2 ppg), and 6-7 sophomore forward James Lee are the cornerstones of a returning cast which includes 10 lettermen off the 16-14 unit which finished a surprising third in SWAC tournament.

Second-year head coach Andy Stoglin is expecting big things from Lee, who wound up as a second-team all-tournament selection.

The run-and-gun Jags are loaded with guards. Problem is that of the returning five, only Broadway averaged more than 5 ppg.

Among the freshmen are 6-11 center Kevin Newman of Port Arthur, Tx., 6-8 forward Jason Manuel, Opelousas, La., and 6-7 forward Patrick Batiste of Baton Rouge, La. They could give the needed reserve punch to help starting forwards Lee and 6-5 junior Glen Bridges improve on rebounding.

Center remains something of a question mark following the graduation of 6-8 Barry Jenkins. Junior Donevin Hoskins is the man given the early nod to take over the post.

TEXAS SOUTHERN

It's back to square one for Robert Moreland, who has been at TSU only nine years and has already become the only Tiger head coach to post three 20-win seasons. Two-time national scoring champion Harry "Machine Gun" Kelly was a fourth-round selection of the NBA Atlanta Hawks. Five other Tigers have completed their eligibility, including the other four starters.

Ed Hilliard, a 5-9 senior from Jackson, Miss., should step in and fill the sneakers of Latrell Mitchell, the point guard who set school and conference single-season and career marks for assists before graduating. But the rest of the jobs are wide-open.

Tops among the eight newcomers are 6-7, 220-pound forward Leon Sneed and 6-5, 185-pound forward Larry Hampton of Lamar, Miss. Sneed, a junior-college transfer, averaged 24 ppg and 15 rpg last year for Concordia JC of Selma, Ala. Hampton averaged 21 ppg and 18 rpg as a senior at Lamar's Ashland High School. Kelly's brother, Patrick, a 6-3 sophomore, returns to try and continue family tradition.

GRAMBLING

Fred Hobdy, the dean of the SWAC coaches who enters his 28th campaign, has a huge problem at guard. His nephew, William Hobdy, the point guard, graduated with honors. And there has been some concern about the return of sophomore-to-be Kim Cooksey, a swingman who was the team's second-leading scorer with a 17.3 ppg average. There is talent galore elsewhere. Senior 6-9 center Napoleon Johnson gives the G-Men a solid force in the middle with his 19 ppg and team-leading 9.4 rpg averages: He is joined across the front by a pair of sophomores, 6-9 power forward Anthony Walton (8 ppg, 7.7 rpg) and 6-6 forward Robert Swafford (7.4 ppg, 3.7 rpg).

In his search to fill the vacancies at guard, Hobdy signed up five, including Mike Neely of Chicago, an all-city, all-state selection.

JACKSON STATE

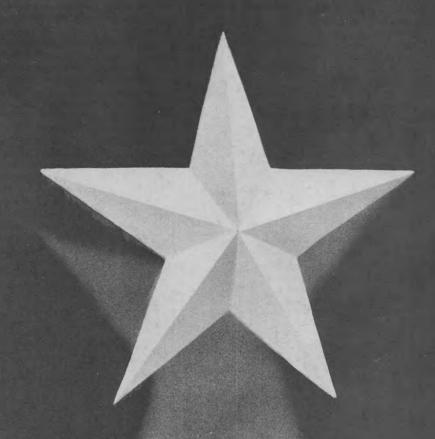

A sleeping giant continues to slumber. But there is one among these Mississippians who isn't prone to mediocrity. Henry Williams, a 6-1 senior guard, is the class of this outfit. He finished sixth in the league in scoring (17.2 ppg), second in free-throw percentage (.857) and 11th in assists (74 total).

MISSISSIPPI VALLEY

After only one year on the job as head coach, Jerry Lewis has called it quits and returned to his former job as head coach at tiny Tougaloo (Miss.) College. Without him and last year's leading scorer, Henry Ellis (21.4 ppg, who has graduated), it'll be a long season here.

PRAIRIE VIEW

Head Coach Jim Duplantier enters his second season facing the same problem as last—lack of the school's administrative backing needed to provide the funds necessary to gain quality performers. Only one starter, 6-6 senior Ricky Bonds, is back off last year's 4-22 squad.

Predicted order of finish:

- 1. Philadelphia 76ers;

- 5. Washington Bullets;

By the time the Philadelphia 76ers put rings on their fingers, they were just becoming accustomed to life with bells on their toes.

"Four, four," and "Sweep, sweep, sweep" became the slogans they never really had

What they have now is an opportunity to make history, to become the first NBA team to win back-to-back championships since Boston in 1968 and 1969.

The celebration, the potential for more and the chance to do it are exceeded only by their imaginations, which burgeoned spectacularly. The Sixers won 65 regular-seasons games, the fourth-best total in league history, then savaged their way through the playoffs, becoming the first team to go through the post-season with only one loss.

They swept the defending champion Los Angeles Lakers in the Championship Series, then came home to a parade that drew an estimated 1.7 million people through the streets of the city, including more than 50,000 who packed Veterans Stadium for special ceremonies. They met with President Reagan in the Rose Garden of the White House, then visited among themselves, laying the groundwork to do it all again as soon as possible.

No team has ever been better equipped to face that challenge.

First, Billy Cunningham has a new threeyear contract that makes him the highest-paid coach in the league. Next, they have Moses Malone, the regular-season and Championship Series MVP. When Cunningham first asked Moses how he was looking ahead to last season's playoffs, the 6-10 center unabashedly replied "Four, four, four."

"People didn't really understand that," Moses said later. "I wasn't saying we were gonna sweep every series, I was saying that was the quickest way to get it done."

The real miracle of Moses and the Sixers isn't that the team finally has a title after abortive trips to the finals in '77, '80 and '82, it's that no one really understood the effect Malone would have on his new team, on the Atlantic Division, or on the league.

Can Boston, which finished nine games out of first place and saw coach Bill Fitch resign, cope with that? Can New Jersey, searching for stability with new coach Stan Albeck? Does even resourceful New York; with demanding Hubie Brown, have a chance? And what about ever-improving Washington, a team that could continue to grow and still not find room in the playoffs?

Phil Jasner enjoyed a championship season, at last, covering the 76ers for the Philadelphia Daily News.

It's no fun, they are learning, to stand in the shadow of Moses.

76ers

When, with a couple of games remaining in the Championship Series, somebody asked Moses Malone if he knew his ring size, the remarkable center was prepared with a remarkable answer.

"Don't know," he said. "My finger's not done growin' yet."

He didn't say much during the season. Was this the same guy who, in 1981, said he "and four guys from Petersburg (Va.)" could beat the Celtics?

But he didn't have to say much. He just had to perform. He averaged 24.5 ppg and 15.3 rpg in 78 regular-season games, finishing 92 points short of becoming the third player in history (Wilt Chamberlain and Kareem Abdul-Jabbar were the others) to generate 2,000 points and 1,000 rebounds in five consecutive seasons.

He won his third MVP and fourth rebounding title in five years, and also swept the Championship Series MVP. And while pandemonium raged around them in the locker-room after they won their first championship since 1967, he embraced Cunningham and said "You're stayin' and we're repeatin'."

Billy finally got the credit he deserved for developing the team's killer sideline break, its stifling, strangling defense and its exceptional ability to interchange parts and remain just as proficient.

The Sixers plugged in 26-year-old rookie Marc lavaroni (5.1 ppg, 4.1 rpg) as a role-playing starter, allowing Bobby Jones to continue as the league's finest sixth man (9 ppg, 4.6 rpg). They frequently shifted Malone to power forward, using Clemon Johnson (6.8 ppg, 6.4 rpg in the middle), and strategically substituted Clint Richardson and Frank Edwards for starting guards Maurice Cheeks and Andrew Toney, giving them the best backcourt rotation in the league.

All of this, Cunningham insisted, allowed Julius Erving (21.4 ppg, 6.8 rpg) to master his craft, becoming a more complete performer.

"I became very aware, as the playoffs went on," Billy said, "that Moses has allowed Doc to become the complete player he had always strived to be. I watch film now, and I see Julius do things defensively, and passing the ball, that are simply amazing. The days when he had to score 30 for us to win are over, but that doesn't make him any less a performer. It has made him better."

Erving knows. There is far, far more to Doctor J than any set of statistics could reveal.

"Moses," Doc said, "only plays one way. And that way is consistent with our team. This is a workingman's team, no longer a collection of superstars going one-on-one. We were blessed with the addition of Moses, and he was similarly blessed by coming to a team that has been able to use-and exemplifyhis principles of work.

Malone, Erving, Toney (19.7 ppg) and Cheeks (12.5 ppg) all made the All-Star team. and the primary contributors in the rotation should return intact. Leo Rautins, the firstround draft choice from Syracuse, offers depth as a forward and big guard, and as an excellent passer.

There is a skeleton in the Celtics' closet, and it is their own. It is the shell of what they became

They went from consecutive seasons of winning 61, 62 and 63 games to winning a mere 56 and finishing nine games behind Philadelphia. There are still 14 championship flags flying in the Boston Garden, but just one of those titles came in the last seven years.

As much as they were hammered by the Sixers' relentless drive, they also managed to contribute to their own confusion.

Was it Bill Fitch, the coach who has since moved on to Houston? "If I was as bad as some of the people wrote me up to be," Fitch said, "I wouldn't have lasted five years. And some of the players who were supposed to have disliked me the most were among the first to call when I got the Rockets' job."

Yes, Cedric Maxwell (11.9 ppg) and a below-average season. Yes, Scott Wedman was barely more than a cameo performer (5.2 ppg in 40 games) after being obtained from Cleveland. Yes, Tiny Archibald (10.5 ppg) was in and out of the lineup. Yes, Fitch ferreted through Gerry Henderson, Quinn Buckner, Danny Ainge and M.L. Carr, searching for a guard combination.

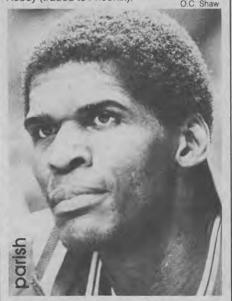

But those weren't the problems that truly strangled them.

"Philadelphia developed a defense against us a couple of years ago that other teams in the league are using effectively," said K.C. Jones. "All they do is load up the middle.

"No matter who we put down low on offense-(Robert) Parish, (Kevin) McHale, Maxwell-they just collapse the defense on them and force us to shoot from outside. Our outside shooters didn't get the job done, and we didn't do the things we have to do to break that logiam under the basket.'

So they will restructure some of their patterns to free Parish to work more effectively inside. The Chief (19.3 ppg, 10.6 rpg) was one of the few centers able to generate any consistency against Malone last season. And wondrous Larry Bird (23.6 ppg, 11 rpg, 5.8 assists) will be there to rain all sorts of devastation on everyone. He is one of a small group of players in the sport who should always have his name printed in italics.

The Celtics will be significantly better because they have retained forward-center McHale (14.1 ppg). Dennis Johnson (14.2 ppg with Phoenix) is the latest candidate brought in to deal with the Sixers' Andrew Toney, but-so far-only first-round draft choice Greg Kite of Brigham Young is available as a replacement for backup center Rick Robey (traded to Phoenix)

The special love-hate relationship of the Sixers and Celtics will keep the electricity in the division. Psychology will play a major role in this race, but unless the Celts rediscover the chemistry and consistency that made them great, they could end up on the couch.

The story goes that when Larry Brown went to accept the job at Kansas, he had to change planes in Chicago. As long as he was already there, he decided to take the job at DePaul.

The point is, if you're going to take over as the next coach of the Nets, it couldn't hurt to have a sense of humor.

Hello, Stan Albeck.

"I loved it in San Antonio," Albeck said, "but the owner and the coach had a difference in philosophies, and when that happens, the owner doesn't move, the coach does

"What I'm selling here is upward mobility. It could be the key to our season. We have young players, excellent management, a new situation. We're basically going to try and do what Philly did, which is find the additional pieces to the puzzle. Maybe there's another Moses Malone out there.

The Nets are young and impressionable, and even though they've beaten the Sixers six times over the last two seasons, they still haven't gotten past the first playoff round.

Not that they don't have the wherewithal to change that. In forward Buck Williams (17 9 ppg, 12.7 rpg), they have one of the brightest new-and least known nationally-talents in the game. You could look it up, Buck was the NBA's No. 2 rebounder last season (1,027 total), the only player other than Malone to take more than 1,000.

They have forward Albert King (17 ppg), and guard Michael Ray Richardson, who led the league in steals (2.84 per game). But Richardson also has had to fight a drug dependency problem, and spent three weeks rehabilitating at Fair Oaks Hospital in Summit, N.J.

Center Darryl Dawkins, meanwhile, must learn to hold a painful segment of his game back. Double D contributed 12 points a game and finished third in the league with a 59.9 floor percentage, but also recorded a mammoth 379 fouls, an all-time record.

The Nets have developing Mike Gminski (7.5 ppg, 4.8 rpg) as a backup center, and should get more help from swing man Mike O'Koren, who missed 36 games with injuries. But what in the world do they intend to do for a guard combination?

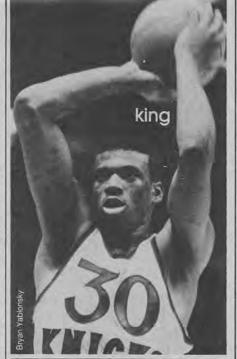

Otis Birdsong (15.1 ppg)? Darwin Cook (13.2 ppg)? Kelvin Ransey? Richardson? Rookies Horace Owens or Dirk Minniefield?

In lieu of that, Albeck is giving the Nets the same formula which worked so splendidly for the Spurs in San Antonio.

"I want, basically, the same thing every night," Albeck said. "That means 44 points from the forwards, 44 points from the guards, 25 from the centers. It works. You score 113, you involve a lot of people, it gives you a sense of accomplishment that, in turn, breeds confidence. With the Spurs, we did it with a veteran group. Here, with Buck, Albert and the other young guys, we should be hungrier."

Al Kooistra

They got blitzed by the Sixers in the second round of the playoffs, then got tangled in a strafing war with the Celtics. The Celts, perturbed by the innuendo surrounding the Knicks pursuit of Kevin McHale, tendered offer sheets to Marvin Webster, Rory Sparrow and Sly Williams.

When all the fine print cleared, Webster and Sparrow were still in New York, and Williams had been dealt to Atlanta for swingman Rudy Macklin (6 ppg with the Hawks). Plus, the Knicks chose not to exercise their option with guard Paul Westphal (10 ppg, 59 starts), even though he was named the league's Comeback Player of the Year.

All of this clouds the real issue, which is that, under Hubie Brown, they improved 11 games, finishing a very respectable 44-38.

Their gemstone is forward Bernard King (21.9 ppg), their best guard is Sparrow (10 ppg in 32 games with New York, 11.6 ppg overall after arriving from Atlanta), their other keys include Truck Robinson (9.5 ppg, 8 rpg) and center Bill Cartwright (15.7 ppg, 7.1 rpg). They also expended a draft choice to New Jersey for veteran center Len Elmore (3.4 ppg, 39.8 shooting percentage), presumably for his experience. The first-round draft choice, Arkansas guard Darrell Walker, should help. But how much?

"It's so difficult to win in the East now," said Brown. "Oh, sure, you can make the playoffs and even get to the second round, but then you're coming up against Philly, Boston or a healthy Milwaukee. That's a mouthful."

What they need now is a way to extract daily power from the enigmatic Cartwright, and consistency from everybody else. One possibility is Campy Russell, who contributed 13.9 ppg two seasons ago, and missed all of last year with a knee injury. Or perhaps strongshooting guard Trent Tucker, the player the Knicks chose in '83 even though Ohio State's Clark Kellogg was still available, is ready to help.

Bullets

If the NCAA runnerup Houston Cougars are Phi Slamma Jamma, the Bullets are merely Slamma, Slamma, Slamma.

They win with defense, the precise patterns of Coach Gene Shue and periodic body counts. If a finesse team can leave an opponent bewitched, bothered and bewildered, these guys can leave you battered, bruised and badgered.

Nobody has more experience than Shue, who has appeared in a record 1,991 regular-season games as a player and coach. Two years ago, the Bullets won 43 games, and last season they won 42, but instead of going 0-6 vs. Boston, they took three from the Celtics. Instead of going 0-6 vs. the Sixers, they won two. If New Jersey or New York stumbles, they have the muscle and firepower—if not the depth or guard play—to climb higher.

Amazingly, they could also improve and finish last in the division.

The Bullets' style is to go for the jugular. Opponents become weary and wary of matching elbows, knees and body-checks with 6-10 Rick Mahorn (11 ppg, 9.5 rpg), 6-10 Jeff Ruland (19.4 ppg, 11 rpg) and 6-7 Greg Ballard (18 ppg, 6.5 rpg). Ruland, emerging as a star, finished 10th in the league among floor-shooters (55.2) and eighth among rebounders. And the addition of Ricky Sobers (15.7 ppg in 41 games) gave them the same mercenary intimidator in the backcourt.

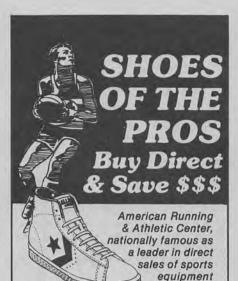

"Two years ago, I think you could say we were a surprise," said Bullets' GM Bob Ferry, "Now we've proven that our nucleus is for real.

"What people have to understand, though, is that our situation really doesn't change. I didn't go into last season believing we'd beat Philly in the division. We're in a rebuilding scheme and have been. It takes time."

They have a fine young guard in Frank Johnson (12.5 ppg), who finished fifth in the league in assists (8.1) despite missing 14 games with injuries. That's better than Gus Williams, Isiah Thomas or Norman Nixon.

They've added veteran forward-center Tom McMillen (8.3 ppg in 61 games with Atlanta) and Mississippi State guard Jeff Malone via the draft, and sent backup forward-center Dave Batton to San Antonio. They still face a decision on veteran (and frequently injured) guard Kevin Grevey.

The Bullets will make things happen, but even in the expanded 16-team playoff structure, may struggle to qualify.

Predicted order of finish:

- 1. Milwaukee Bucks:
- 2. Atlanta Hawks;
- 3. Detroit Pistons:
- 4. Indiana Pacers:
- 5. Cleveland Cavallers;
- 6. Chicago Bulls

It goes without saying that a division with the track record of the NBA Central's-only two of its six members earned NBA playoff berths last season while four of the Atlantic's got in and the fifth missed by only one victory—isn't going to stand pat. Ain't it the truth.

Indeed, it's the year of change in the Central Division.

The second-place finisher, Atlanta, got a new coach in ex-Knicks assistant Mike Fratello after Kevin Loughery bolted to Chicago. The Hawks figure on several new faces up front, including another ex-New Yorker, forward Sly Williams, who played out his option and was traded to the Hawks.

Detroit wasn't satisfied with a second consecutive third-place finish and coach Scotty Robertson was shown the door. Chuck Daly was rescued from the Philadelphia broadcast table and is the new man in charge, with the assignment of seeing to it Detroit isn't so generous on the scoreboard in the future.

Loughery isn't the only thing new to Chicago, where the fans grew tired toward season's end of the Bulls' losing ways. They made three trades on draft day, the end result being a trio of first-round choices on the roster-Sidney Green, Mitchell Wiggins and Ennis Whatley. Loughery is again forced to build with youth.

There's new ownership at Cleveland, where the run of Ted Stepien's follies has ended with nothing left for him to tear apart on the Cavaliers. The Gund brothers have shown a willingness to open the vault to rebuild the club, sending some cash Seattle's way for one-time all-star Lonnie Shelton, then offering Calvin Natt three million bucks to leave Portland, but he ended up staying there.

Indiana, too, has new money in the bank after the Simon brothers took the Pacers off Sam Nassi's hands. They managed to keep coach Jack McKinney on board after he looked into several of the openings around the league last spring and, then, they gave him a better team to work with. The Pacers ended up with four of the first 40 players taken in the college draft including the Number 2 pick, Missouri center Steve Stipanovich. He teams with Clark Kellogg and Herb Williams to give Indiana one of the best young front lines.

In fact, the only team which didn't get involved in trades or sales or flashy drafting maneuvers or coaching changes is Milwaukee. The Bucks have won the Central crown each of the last three seasons and they still have high-caliber personnel. All they need, in fact, is a way to keep the players healthy.

bucks

They've been coming so close for so long that they ought to be doing Avis testimonials. But they've never panicked in Milwaukee. They've never backed the truck up to the door for wholesale changes, or even threatened to.

The Bucks jut keep trying harder, as they will again in '84.

And, in their immediate challenge-the Central Division race-that's plenty. But the Bucks are after bigger game, the Eastern Crown, that has eluded them for too long.

They're sticking largely with a pat hand. While the other clubs around them dealt in rapid-fire succession, the Bucks just went about their business on draft day, hoping 7-3 Randy Breuer (Minnesota) can bulk up enough to help in the middle, Ted Kitchel (Indiana) can recover from back surgery to give them another frontcourt gun and Mike Davis (Alabama) can provide backcourt depth. They later signed Celtic castoff Tiny Archibald for a trial at guard.

Otherwise, they're just hoping for health for some of their older players. They need more than half-seasons from guard Brian Winters, center Bob Lanier and forward Dave Cowens, who un-retired well enough to justify his acquisition from Boston for Quinn Buckner, but only bounds after two years of inactivity and, according to coach Don Nelson, could have been the answer for the Bucks in their Eastern Nelson stated, "we might not have fallen short, for he plays (Moses) Malone as well as Lanier does. His presence also would have given us a nice balance with his outside shooting threat.'

Milwaukee released Cowens from the second year of his contract in late August.

The rest of the frontcourt picture remains the same, featuring all-star Marques Johnson (21.4 ppg), improving Alton Lister (8.4), swingman Junior Bridgeman (14.4) and spear carriers Harvey Catchings and Paul Mokeski.

When a true playmaker never surfaced following the Buckner deal-even Phil Ford failed at the spot, the former all-pro fading in stature rapidly-Milwaukee simply ended up playing its two best guards together. Secondyear man Paul Pressey (6.7) still needs experience, but the potential of a ball-hawking, inside-scoring duo is awesome when he's teamed with Sidney Moncrief (22.5), who's finally starting to get the recognition he deserves. Bridgeman, Winters and Charlie Criss come off the bench.

All told, it's a good mix if the legs hold out.

hawks

If it's easiest to observe an NBA team from the outside, rather than from within, then new Hawks coach Mike Fratello should have an easy time assessing where his team has to go.

He saw Atlanta plenty last winter as an assistant with the Knicks-and noted quickly what has to be done.

"Last year, the Hawks beat the people they had to beat," noted Fratello, a one-time Atlanta assistant under Hubie Brown. "They were 28-5 against the bottom teams, but only 15-34 against the better teams. We have to continue heating the bottom teams and start holding our own against the others.

"The Hawks made it to the playoffs in five of the past six years on their defense. We need to improve our offense. The Hawks are not known as a good shooting team, but we can work on that. Still, I don't feel we have the type of team which can run all night, trying to win those 125-point games."

Certainly. Atlanta has added to the arsenal. At the expense of reserve guard Rudy Macklin, Fratello got forward Sly Williams, sometimes a problem off the floor but good enough on it to have averaged 11.9, third-best on the Knicks. They also swapped aging Tom McMillen to Washington for recent draft pick Randy Wittman, Indiana's high-scoring swingman, while adding Doc Rivers (Marquette guard) and Harry Kelley (Texas Southern forward) with their own picks. All can score.

Still, the key to the Hawks lies with the holdovers. They have to shoot better—only two of them, center Tree Rollins and backup guard Mike Glenn, hit for better than 50 percent from the field—and they have to get more shots. They were outrebounded by four a game in '83, and that figure adds up to too many missed opportunities over the long haul.

In Rollins and 6-8 Dan Roundfield, the Hawks have one of the league's best one-two board combinations, but help must come from the remaining frontcourt players—flashy second-year man Dominique Wilkins, center George Johnson, who was injured most of the year; and Rickey Brown, picked up from Golden State at mid-season. Of the bunch, Roundfield is the anchor.

"Dominique Wilkins is a great player, no doubt about it. But Dan Roundfield is the backbone of this team," Glenn asserted.

The backcourt—which never got over the February sale of Rory Sparrow—still has possibilities with Eddie Johnson (if his health is good), ex-Pacer Johnny Davis, Glenn and Wes Matthews,

Three years ago, when he turned down his first opportunity to be the Detroit Pistons' head coach—the job went to Scotty Robertson, who brought about respectability, if not the playoffs, and was fired—Chuck Daly knew he would have had his work cut out for him.

He still does, true, but he feels the circumstances have improved.

"This is a much better club than that one was," he said, noting the '83 Pistons come off a 37-win season, while they were 16-66 the first time he was offered a job in Detroit.

Offensively, the Pistons still have all the pieces, building around the golden third-year men, guard Isiah Thomas and forward Kelly Tripucka. Thomas is the man who makes the Pistons go, and Tripucka—the league's Number 3 scorer last winter with a 26.5 average—is often the finisher.

Additionally, they have dependable center Bill Laimbeer (13.6); guard Vinnie Johnson, coming off his best season as a pro (15.8); and John Long, coming off his worst (10.5), but capable of much more.

So what's not to like? For one thing, according to general manager Jack McCloskey, defense. The lack of it was the overt reason he fired Robertson, and Daly knows improvement is needed there.

"I have a solid background defensively. I think that's the way you win in this league,"

Daly noted: "I absolutely think if there's anything that can be taught, it's defense from a team concept."

Veteran Terry Tyler is Detroit's best defender but, at 6-7, doesn't belong at power forward, where he was forced to play last season when Kent Benson managed only 21 games due to injury and top draft pick Cliff Levingston bombed. Detroit is at its best with Tyler coming off the bench once again, but that would mean either improvement (both in his ankle as well as with man-to-man defense) by Benson, Levingston finally coming around or Number 1 draft pick Antoine Carr—like Levingston, out of Wichita—coming through.

The latter option looms as Detroit's best in the long run, given Carr's physical skills as a scorer, rebounder and shot blocker. "If you've got shot blockers," Daly observed, "you can atone for some sins defensively."

In addition, if Detroit is to return to the playoffs for the first time since 1977, there must be better play off the bench, beginning with Long and extending to Levingston, ex-Seattle forward Ray Tolbert, Laimbeer's back-ups Jim Johnstone, and Peter Gudmundsson, second-year guards Walker D. Russell and Ricky Pierce. They did little to help the cause over a long winter in 1983.

They weren't successful last season—even to the point that they lost the coin flip with Houston for the rights to college Player of the Year Ralph Sampson—but, if anything in 1983, the Indiana Pacers were predictable.

Opposing scouts, for example, knew they needed an extra pencil on nights they were charting the Pacers.

"They don't have the talent, so thay must make up for it in execution," Knicks assistant coach Richie Adubato noted one night last winter. "They are one of the two toughest teams to scout because they run so many set plays. Indiana runs more set plays than anyone in the league."

They may well be tough to scout in 1984 for the same reason but, even more important to Pacers coach Jack McKinney, his team will be tougher to play this time around. Unlike last year, when free agents Don Buse, Johnny Davis and Louis Orr were allowed to leave because Indiana didn't have the money to keep them, the club is now adding to the roster instead of subtracting.

The biggest addition, of course, is Missouri All-American Steve Stipanovich. Projected by some clubs before the draft as a center and by others as a power forward, the 6-11 Stipanovich was labeled by all as a good prospect. To begin with, he will be tested in the pivot.

That being the case, third-year man Herb Williams will move away from center and back to the position he started in as a rookie, at power forward. He played well there two seasons back, averaging 11.5 points and 7.4 rebounds a game. Last season, though sometimes at a strength disadvantage against the NBA's most powerful players, the 6-10 Williams boosted his numbers to 16.9 and 7.5.

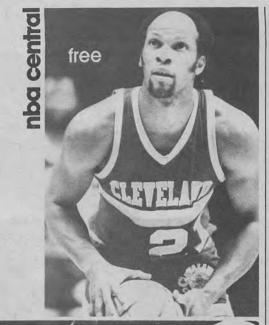

After leading the club last season in scoring (20.1) and rebounding (10.6), Clark Kellogg—a former college teammate of Williams' at Ohio State—has a lock on the other job, as he will for as long as he plays in Indiana. Kellogg played better than most of the rookies drafted ahead of him last season.

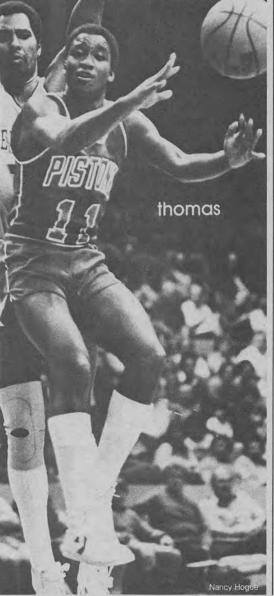

For depth, Oklahoma State's underrated Leroy Combs (6-8) will help immensely, teaming with holdover George Johnson to give the Pacers a pair of quality reserves.

Thankfully, McKinney will have more to work with at guard than last year, when financial problems stripped him of his starters, Davis and Buse. Billy Knight (17.1) should still be of help after proving last season the stories of his being washed up were premature. Newcomers Sid Lowe (N.C. State) and Greg Jones (West Virginia) will claim the playing time Butch Carter and Jerry Sichting won by default in 1983. The rookies are reasons this team will be better.

Pardon Tom Nissalke for looking back. Grant him the dream that otherwise haunts him, the one that returns the likes of Mike Mitchell and Bill Laimbeer to Cleveland uniforms and all those long-gone Number 1 draft choices back in the bank. Just let the Cleveland coach think about what could have been, before former owner Ted Stepion and ox coach Bill Musselman tore a decent team apart.

"Three years ago, with the right people in the organization, they could have built a championship team. I don't mean just the division championship they could have been playing for the league championship," Nissalke mused. "They had the right core."

Now, they have the job of building all over again. The Cavaliers take heart in their '83 stretch drive, the one that moved them past Indiana late in the season and out of the Central cellar. They point to improvement on defense last season, and the points-against figure bettered by almost seven a game.

Other numbers, however, tell a chilling story. The roster never had enough NBA-caliber players last season—a fact magnified when empty coffers forced the trades of James Edwards and Scott Wedman—and there was never enough scoring for the team to be treated as a threat. There remains work to be done.

"We will be improved," Nissalke predicted, "but I do subscribe to the crawl, walk and then run theory. We will have to take everything in an orderly fashion."

The basis for improvement centers around the newcomers. In obtaining forward Lonnie Shelton largely for cash—showing brothers Gordon and George Gund didn't stop spending money after buying the franchise—the Cavs picked up a needed board-banger, though his usefulness in Seattle had ended. In rookie forwards Roy Hinson (6-9, Rutgers) and John Garris (6-8, Boston College), they got even more help up front, while Villanova's Stewart Granger provides backcourt depth.

The three frontcourters, in particular, were added with offense in mind—because, after guard World B. Free (23.9 ppg) and 6-9 finesse forward Cliff Robinson (18.0), the Cavs really didn't have any. A league-low 97.1 scoring average offers silent illustration.

"We didn't have too many players who could consistently put the ball in the basket," Nissalke admitted. "Without a strong inside attack, you don't get a lot of easy shots, and that has hurt us."

Geoff Huston—the lone other double-figure scorer at 12.2—remains as the club's quarterback, while there should still be spots for Bobby Wilkerson and Phil Hubbard. Jeff Cook and Steve Hayes are the veteran centers, which spell trouble.

bulls

If change were the sole ingredient needed to turn a pro basketball team's fortunes, there's little doubt Chicago would be there by now.

They've changed coaches on an almost annual basis, with Paul Westhead the latest to leave after just one season, and a sickly 28-54 finish, on the job. They've tinkered with the roster just as fast, creating a booming business for program sales—that is, of course, if Chicago fans start coming to games.

But they haven't been able to change the downward slide that saw the club miss the playoffs for the second straight season. And, despite further player moves on draft day—which followed, of course, Kevin Loughery's move from Atlanta as the new head coach—there remains one major obstacle for the Bulls before they think about heading back.

It still stems from the Big Change of '82, when all-star center Artis Gilmore was shipped out to San Antonio for a package structured around center Dave Corzine. He was a back-up center with the Spurs and, after one season in Chicago, has done nothing to prove he's an NBA regular. Despite decent numbers (14 points and 8.7 rebounds on the average), he was abused to the point that slender forward David Greenwood occasionally started ahead of him. Chicago still needs a dependable center to move up.

The Bulls unloaded ex-San Antonio forward Mark Olberding following just one season, but still have plenty of question marks in the forecourt. Greenwood: Can he play better as a fulltime forward and without contract talks hanging over his head? Orlando Woolridge: Can he go the distance without injury? Rod Higgins: Can he shoot better than .448 from the field, as a "shooting" forward should?

To that bunch, the Bulls add 6-9 Nevada-Las Vegas All-American Sidney Green, who has the tools to play either forward position, and San Jose State rookie Chris McNealy. There are numbers, but Loughery has some sorting out ahead of him.

Much the same holds true at guard, despite the return of all the old faces. Reggie Theus was the club's leading scorer (23.8 average) and has a grip on one position, while the other remains up for grabs. First call will go to an '83 all-rookie selection, Quintin Dailey (15.1), but his head and body have to be in better working order before he can be counted on. Holdover Ronnie Lester (8.1) and two draft day acquisitions, Florida State shooter Mitchell Wiggins and Alabama playmaker Ennis Whatley, are also in the chase.

In all, too many ifs for the Bulls.

Blinebury HOUSTON CHRONICLE

Predicted order of finish: 1. San Antonio Spurs: 2. Kansas City Kings; 3. Denver Nuggets; 4. Dallas Mavericks; 5. Houston Rockets; 6. Utah Jazz

The king is growing gray around the temples and the heir apparent to the throne may be waiting for the crown to slip just 200 miles outside the castle walls and down the freeway. Two coaches left, two others thought about leaving and one entire franchise may yet get up and go, while still another has already adopted a secondary residence.

The Midwest Division has never been considered the NBA's version of life in the fast lane—unless, of course, you're in Denver, where Doug Moe always has the pedal to the metal-but the times are a changin'. After all, who'd have ever thought that three teams from Texas would have a chance to be among the strongest in any league that doesn't play

But muscle is what the Texas trio and Midwest Division in general, and Houston in particular, picked up when the Rockets added 7-4 Virginia All-American Ralph Sampson to their roster with the No. 1 pick in the 1983 college draft. Houston has undergone a major transformation since finishing last season as the worst team in pro basketball, also adding Louisville's Rodney McCray in the draft and replacing head coach Del Harris with former Boston boss Bill Fitch, and the franchise would now seem to have the brightest future of any in the division.

The other coaching change occurred in San Antonio, where after two consecutive years of winning the division title and getting wiped out in the Western Conference finals by Los Angeles, frizzy-haired Stan Albeck took the money and ran to New Jersey, leaving the reins of the perennially-strong Spurs in the hands of ex-assistant Morris McHone.

Dallas' Dick Motta briefly considered a change of scenery before signing a new contract and Utah's Frank Layden considered a fulltime move into the front office as the general manager only. But the Jazz still made a big move, shifting 11 of this season's home games from Salt Lake City to Las Vegas.

Coach Cotton Fitzsimmons and the Kings will remain in Kansas City, but nobody's sure for how long. Suffering at the gate despite a young and improved team last season, the KC franchise was purchased by a group of investors from Sacramento, Calif., who may have their eyes on eventually relocating franchise.

Fran Blinebury is in his sixth season on the NBA beat, and his second as president of the Professional Basketball Writers Association.

In Denver, it's business as usual, which means that Moe will have the Nuggets trying to break the sound barrier with their fastbreak, while trying again to survive without a true big man in the middle.

Still, the Nuggets have challenged San Antonio for the title in each of the last two years and now with the renewed strength of the Rockets, the entire division should tighten up and the Spurs' reign could come to an end.

spurs

One morning you get up, look in the mirror and notice a few sprinkles of gray. Another day there are tiny wrinkles sprouting from the corners of your eyes. That is the reflection the Spurs can see these days and that is certainly one of the prime reasons that Coach Stan Albeck fled to the East Coast and the New Jersev Nets. That is not to overlook the Los Angele Lakers, who have slapped down San Antonio just short of the championship series for two straight years.

Albeck's successor, former assistant Morris McHone, has certainly not been left with a cupboard that is bare. But the hinges are getting creaky from the ravages of time.

The Spurs gambled during the summer of 1982 by trading for 7-2 Artis Gilmore and though the quiet center responded with his best regular season in years, he was still not able to get San Antonio over the hump in the Western Conference playoffs. Now, the Spurs are left with a 34-year-old in the pivot, who just may not be up to it again.

Of course, the Spurs will continue to ride the skinny shoulders of George Gervin in the regular season, but the Iceman is also getting up there in age (31) and is running out of time to get his championship ring. Gervin's fortunes in the playoffs have paralleled those of Julius Erving before the Philadelphia 76ers got Moses Malone. Gervin is double-and triple-teamed during the playoffs and when he isn't getting his points, the rest of the San Antonio offense becomes stagnant.

The biggest question concerning the Spurs during the offseason was whether they would be able to re-sign forward Mike Mitchell, the only member of the offense's Big Three to thrive in the playoffs. But the Spurs signed their other big scorer in late July.

Instead of using the draft to get a potential replacement for Mitchell, the Spurs plucked Notre Dame guard John Paxson, who will probably get plenty of minutes in a backcourt whose talent level drops off sharply after Gervin and point guard Johnny Moore. But Paxson balked at the Spurs' early contract offer and was promptly peddled all around the league.

Since joining the NBA in the 1976-77 season, the Spurs have won division titles in the Central and Midwest five out of seven years and, as long as the trio of Gervin, Gilmore and Mitchell stays intact, have the talent to do it again. But they are unlikely to play for the big enchilada in the Alamo City until the front office stops trying to get by with a bench consisting of CBA refugees (Edgar Jones, Mike Sanders, Robert Smith) and veteran castoffs (Mike Dunleavy, Billy Paultz) that looks like it was bought at K-Mart.

Several years ago, the roof blew off Kemper Arena. From the way the citizenry supported the Kings last season, you'd have thought they never put it back on and people expected to get snowed upon at games.

Well, the Kings are back in Kansas City this season, but nobody seems to know for just how long. Or cares. This is a town that would rather watch an indoor soccer game, evidenced by the fact that the Kings ranked 19th in the 23-team league in attendance, despite an outstanding coaching job by Cotton Fitzsimmons and a handful of solid performances by a good, young team.

The Kings are coming off a 45-37 year in which they just missed the playoffs by virtue of a tie breaker and should be that good again, if two things happen—they re-sign free agents Larry Drew and Mike Woodson.

Fitzsimmons rescued Drew from the scrap heap in Detroit and in two seasons has turned him into one of the best two-way guards in the league. He ranked fourth in the league in assists last season, while also leading the team in scoring with 20 points a game.

Woodson, after spending 13 months with New York and New Jersey, also came into his own in KC, averaging 18 points a game, mostly in a reserve role.

The determination whether to lay out the big money to keep that pair will have to be made by Joe Benvenuti, and Gregg and Frank Luckenbill, who head up a group of investors from Sacramento. The new owners have pledged to keep the team in KC for two years, just long enough to await the completion of a new arena that's being built in the California city.

No matter where they play in the future, the Kings have the nucleus of a scrappy and exciting team in unheralded forward Eddie Johnson and the center tandem of Steve Johnson and LaSalle Thompson, who have just three years of NBA experience between them. Near the end of last season, Fitzsimmons began to experiment with Johnson at the power forward spot alongside of Thompson and that lineup applied fulltime would certainly make the Kings strong rebounders.

KC drafted undergraduate player Ennis Whatley of Alabama on the first round, then promptly traded him away to Chicago for veteran forward Mark Olberding, who'll provide even more bulk and some offense up front. They also swapped second-round picks with the Bulls and probably came away with the better of the deal in getting University of Houston power forward Larry Micheaux in place of San Jose State's Chris McNealy.

Guard Ray Williams never really fit into the Kings' picture last year and was not really needed once Drew blossomed. He was on the trading block most of the summer.

Yet so much of the Kings' success depends on whether they keep Drew and Woodson. With them, they are a guaranteed playoff team. Without them, they'll struggle. But in KC, who cares anyway?

Watching the Nuggets is like watching the Indianapolis 500. Coach Doug Moe tells the gentlemen to start their engines and everyone proceeds to press the accelerator to the floor until, eventually, they crash.

Things shouldn't be much different this time around since Denver will enter the season with basically the same slick, quick racing machine that makes the Nuggets tough on the legs and lungs in the regular season, but is no match for the hulky demolition derby vehicles that smash and bang your fenders in during the playoffs.

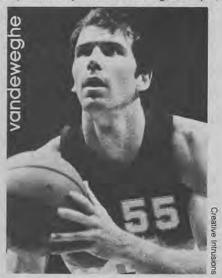

After leading the NBA in scoring and finally getting deserved recognition by making the All-Star team, silky-smooth forward Alex English's reward was to be placed on the trading block. The feeling was that English would be excellent trade bait and that his scoring role on the frontline could be taken over completely by Kiki Vandeweghe, who finished just behind him in the point race. The only other time that teammates finished 1-2 in scoring race was the 1954-55 season when Neil Johnson and Paul Arizin did it in Philadelphia.

The Nuggets are hoping that second-year guard Rob Williams (taken on the first round in 1982) will finally get his jumpshot to come around, but just in case, they went ahead and drafted 6-5 Howard Carter, who led Louisiana State in scoring for three seasons.

Still, the Nuggets' problem is still in the middle, not because the old workhorse Dan Issel hasn't performed well offensively over the years, but because at 6-9 he just can't get the job done defensively and on the boards in the playoffs. Denver acquired Dan Schayes from Utah midway through last season and he played well as the Nuggets closed fast, made the playoffs, then beat Phoenix in the miniseries, before losing to San Antonio. But he is still not the dominating type, which made it all the more curious that in 10 rounds of the draft, the Nuggets selected just one player over 6-9 (that was 6-10 Cliff Tribus from Davidson as the 176th player taken).

The backcourt can still use a boost, too, and the Nuggets were looking to move point guard Billy McKinney. At the other guard spot, they've still got T.R. Dunn giving them solid defense and outrebounding Darryl Dawkins by almost 200 last season. But backup Bill Hanzlik averaged just six points a game.

Moe and his team have heard all of the jokes and sarcastic remarks about not knowing how to spell defense, let alone play it. But nobody laughs when they have to go into the thin air of mile-high Denver and try to keep up with the Nuggets. They are likely to be the highest-scoring club in the NBA again for the third straight year and could challenge San Antonio for the division title. But until the Nuggets bulk up, they'll crash in the playoffs again.

mavericks

To quote the classic rock group, The Who, the kids are allright. But now entering the fourth year of the franchise's existence, is that good enough for the Mayericks?

Coach Dick Motta at least gave some thought to that question last season, before finally signing a new three-year contract, when he asked himself if he could continue to deal with the growing pains, and losses, of the NBA's newest club.

Indeed, the Mavericks have improved steadily over the course of their first three seasons. But not enough to make themselves a contender—though under the new 16-team playoff system they would have qualified last year—and far too much to enable them to get the big man they so desperately need.

It is a frustrating merry-go-round that Dallas is riding and one that is going to force the club to make a major trade for a center if it is ever going to mature past puberty and turn into a full-grown powerhouse. The indication that the Mavs may be ready to make that deal may have been reflected in their selections on the first-round of the 1983 draft, when they took 6-7 forward Dale Ellis of Tennessee and 6-4 guard Derek Harper of Illinois.

While there are not many who would dispute the talent of the two rookies, Ellis and Harper are two players that Dallas simply does not need. Not with forwards Mark Aguirre and Jay Vincent and Guards Rolando Blackman and Elston Turner having already established themselves as quality NBA performers.

Ellis and Harper now give the Mavs even more depth at positions that are already strong and the flexibility to structure a package deal for a veteran center.

The Dallas dream of securing a center through the draft with one of the first-round draft choices in 1984, 1985 and 1986 the Mays obtained in deals with Cleveland, seems to have also gone up in smoke now that the Cavs have improved themselves in the draft and seem to be back on the right track with stable ownership.

Barring a trade, the Mavs will be forced to go into another season with reluctant Pat Cummings and Kurt Nimphius in the middle, both of whom would be better off at forward. Dallas will also be looking for forward Bill Garnett (taken No. 4 in 1982) to improve greatly.

Point guard Kelvin Ransey, acquired from Portland in 1982 for Wayne Cooper, never played up to expectations and was traded in August to New Jersey for two draft choices and veteran Foots Walker that leaves the playmaking duties again to Brad Davis, who became a free agent, but signed a new four-year contract.

Because of the new set-up, the Mavericks will probably contend for the playoffs, but without a center, the kids will never be anything more than just allright.

In the last year, only the various launchings of the space shuttle have seen anything provided with a bigger boost than the Rockets received from the 1983 college draft. In the space of just 10 minutes—the time it took for Houston to make the first-round selections of Ralph Sampson and Rodney McCray with the No. 1 and No. 3 choices—the Rockets went from laughingstock to blue chip stock.

While even with the expansion of the playoffs from 12 to 16 teams, the Rockets are still probably a year away from being a real postseason threat. There are not many franchises in all of professional sports that have a longterm potential as great as theirs.

Of course, Sampson, the three-time college player of the year, gives the Rockets the biggest gate attraction of the 1980s and also a solid foundation to use as a springboard in the standings from last season's miserable 14-68 record, the second-worst in the 37-year history of the league. Though his college statistics never reflected the kind of domination that you would expect from somebody so often compared to the likes of Wilt Chamberlain and Kareem Abdul-Jabbar (and who can forget that his Virginia teams never won an NCAA title?), Sampson has an incredible variety of skills that will surely make him very effective in the NBA's more wide-open style of play.

The addition of the 6-71/2 McCray from Louisville, an excellent passer, strong rebounder and solid defender, will give the Rockets strength and flexibility on the frontline if McCray comes back strong from off-season back surgery and allow many of last season's holdovers to be more effective as role players. Veteran Caldwell Jones will back up Sampson in the middle and at 7-1, will also spend a good deal of time at the power forward spot.

James Bailey, who was acquired last November and finally showed signs of blossoming into the first-round draft he was in 1979, should also benefit from playing alongside of an offensive force like Sampson and a player with the passing skills of McCray. That leaves the venerable Elvin Hayes (38 this season), Wally Walker and Major Jones to split the remaining time on the frontline.

The biggest concern of new head coach Bill Fitch, who resigned in Boston after a four-year record of 242-86 to replace Del Harris, will definitely be the backcourt. Free agent Allen Leavell has yet to show the kind of consistency and discipline to be considered a first-rate point guard and, beyond 35-year-old hummingbird Calvin Murphy, the Rockets do not have a consistent outside shooting threat. Second-year man Terry Teagle could be the answer if he continues to gain confidence, but a longshot possibility could be fifth-round draft choice Chuck Barnett of Oklahoma, a 6-4 deadly shooter who was considered by some to be the best big guard in the nation before suffering a knee injury as a senior.

Still, the Rockets figure to be much improved and, though not yet contenders, ready to serve notice that the future belongs to them.

First they took a team nicknamed the Jazz and moved it to a place where Donny and Marie Osmond are considered just one step short of punk rock. Now they've taken the team from Mormon Country and shifted over one-fourth of its home schedule to Las Vegas. The whole thing is about as incongruous as Secretary of the Interior James Watt deciding to go on tour with the Rolling Stones.

But then, who has ever taken this franchise that has never in its history made the playoffs seriously? At least now, if things go too bad for Coach Frank Layden while the team is in Las Vegas, he can pop over to a club where Rodney Dangerfield is performing and commiserate about getting no respect.

It doesn't take a mathematical wizard or a home computer to tell you that the split schedule is going to hurt the Jazz. Utah finished last season 21-20 at home and 9-32 on the road and now management has just added 11 more road games to the schedule.

Oh well, at least Adrian Dantley has recovered from the surgery on his right wrist that forced him to miss almost the entire 1982-83 season. He played in numerous exhibition games during the off-season and looked like his old self, scoring from everywhere.

The Jazz went for 6-11 Thurl Bailey from NCAA champion North Carolina State with the No. 7 pick of the draft, hoping to add a blend of scoring and rebounding at the power forward spot. The acquisition of Bailey will probably allow them to move out Jeff Wilkens.

As a rookie, 7-4 Mark Eaton finished just behind vets Tree Rollins and Bill Walton in the category of blocked shots. But the former auto mechanic still has a long way to go before anyone takes his offense seriously, and Utah doesn't get much help in that area from backup Rich Kelley, who is having his second go-round with the Jazz.

It is in the backcourt where the Jazz doesn't have to make many apologies. Darrell Griffith scored better than 22 points a game and also ranked third among three-point shooters, while Rickey Green has finally made all of his work in the CBA pay off by turning into a solid contributor. Cheetah-quick, he was ranked second in the league in steals and third in assists last year.

While Dantley and Griffith enable the Jazz to pack a wallop on offense. Utah is just a woeful defensive team (19th last season) that won't get much better unless Bailey shows great aggressiveness and is outstanding.

All in all, the Jazz looks like one of only seven teams that won't make the playoffs under the new system. So, what else is new?

BASEBALL YEARBOOK

On Sale March 16

Predicted order of finish:

1. Phoenix Suns:

2. Los Angeles Lakers;

3. Portland Trail Blazers;

4. Golden State Warriors;

5. Seattle SuperSonics:

6. San Diego Clippers.

Year in and year out, picking the winner in the Pacific Division is as easy as shooting a very big fish in a very small barrel. The assumption always is that, whereas the Lakers are head and shoulders (head, shoulders, and navel, in fact) above the other teams, only unforeseeable misfortune can keep them from finishing first. And a more warranted assumption you'll seldom see.

The only year in the last four they didn't finish first was 1981—the year Magic Johnson missed six weeks with an injury. And even then, they had so much talent they might have won anyway except that Magic's return caused as many adjustment problems as his

But this year, they are plagued by foreseeable misfortune. And they won't be able to adjust to it. At least that's what it says here.

The Laker elevator isn't going to stop running, you understand. It just won't run all the way to the top of the Division.

Problems? The biggest one is Kareem Abdul-Jabbar. Even at 36, The Big Fella was still the second best pivot person on the planet last year, but if the Lakers don't lose him to new money, they will lose him to old age. "I don't think I ever saw Kareem play so well, so consistently as he did against us in the playoffs," said Portland general manager Stu Inman. "But I would be very surprised if we saw as good a Jabbar next year. He's not going to disappear and become just another guy, but I think shooting for the last new contract he was going to get gave him extra incentive. And I don't know that he'll ever play back to that form again.

If what we saw last year was indeed Jabbar's final salary drive, it was a very impressive one. He led the Lakers in scoring with a 21.6 average and missed only three games. In the playoffs, he averaged 26 points and, in the West at least, was his old dominating, intimidating, awesome self.

Which is why most Pacific people agree with Coach Pat Riley's assessment that, "With the team we have now whole and healthy, we'll be finalists for the next two years."

Joe Gilmartin is the sports editor of the Phoenix Gazette, and may be accused of being out in the sun too long by picking Phoenix for first place.

And, even if their Kareem is skimmed off by Indianapolis or Chicago, or whoever, or is merely "soured" by the serenity of his final guaranteed contract, the Lakers won't exactly be skim milk.

After all, while Kareem has played out his option, it will be 23 years before Magic Johnson outplays his. By the end of the Championship Series, Magic was too weary to pull a field mouse, let alone a rabbit, out of the hat. But, against any team but Philly, Magic doesn't get fatigue, he gives it.

With the arguable exception of The Bird Man of Boston, there's still nobody better.

But the Lakers, even when whole and healthy, are more dashing than deep, and more rapid than rugged. And, when last seen, three of their key men, James Worthy, Bob McAdoo, and Norm Nixon, were plagued with disabling physical problems-which is why the Lakers lost to the Sixers 4-0 instead of 4-2.

Also, even if owner Dr. Jerry Buss chooses to paper over his widely-publicized differences with Kareem with money, some of the bruises are bound to show through.

And if he lets him go?

"If Kareem walks," said Riley, "this team is going to change dramatically. It'll kind of be like being lost in the dark and not being able to find your way home. Who are you going to throw the ball to with the shot clock running out? Whoever it is, you'll have to throw it a little lower. And you won't get a 70-percent shot out of it, either.

One thing seems clear. If their Pacific rivals don't get the Lakers this year, they may have a long wait before the next decent chance. By next year, the Buss bankroll, one way or another, will likely lure a Pat Ewing or Olajuwon to Lotus land-plus whoever else it takes to keep people in those $75 pews.

In fact, the free agency era poses the question of whether even successful small and medium-sized markets (like Phoenix and Portland) can realistically hope to compete with the likes of Los Angeles and Philadelphia (to say nothing of New York and Chicago if they ever get their act together).

Once upon a time, it was widely believed the delicate chemistry of professional basketball would make it immune from such monopolistic evils as title-buying. But, while "chemistry" has given way to "chemical imbalance"an ugly cloud that hangs over all sports-the NBA's old math still prevails.

"The problem with our league," explained former center and coach John Kerr two decades ago, "is that there are 500 guards, 200 forwards, and only three centers.

Give or take a center or two, that's still true. And, while a non-megopolis may occasionally get one of the centers, keeping him will become increasingly difficult. The best things in life may be free, but the best centers are not.

So, can a club with a modest wallet still find true happiness in today's NBA?

The answer, at least in the Pacific and the West is, "Only when the Lakers suffer infirmities and/or get caught between eras,

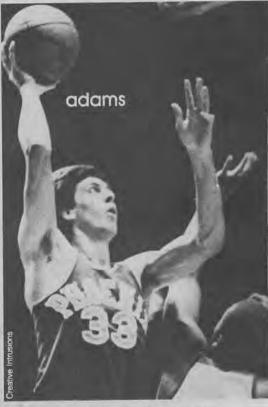

So, with the stage thus set, let us cast this year's Pacific play:

suns

They said he would never last. And, of course, sooner or later, they'll be right. But, for the nonce, John Matthew MacLeod has not only lasted but is the new leader in the clubhouse so to speak

When Al Attles stepped down (up actually-to general manager) at Golden State, MacLeod became, at the tender age of 45, the dean of National Basketball Association coaches. Jack Ramsay and Dick Motta have been at it longer, but as he heads into his 11th season with the Suns, MacLeod is now the senior NBA coach in point of continuous service with one club.

Also one of the most successful, with a 448-372 record (.546), four 50-victory seasons in the last five years and seven trips to the playoffs in the last eight.

But oh those trips! The first was like a visit to Disneyland (remember Game Five of the Phoenix-Boston finals?), but the last six have been as much fun as visits to a discount dentist.

So, prodded by perpetual playoff pratfalls, MacLeod went back to the drawing board two years ago to redesign his sports coupe into a more durable playoff model. Smile and Style were out. Strong and Scowl were in.

Unfortunately, Maurice Lucas, who was to supply most of the strong and all of the scowl, was damaged in mid-playoff last spring. And so this summer, the Suns went out and acquired a "spare" Lucas in a controversial trade that sent Dennis Johnson to Boston for

Also, MacLeod made peace with D.J.'s predecessor, Paul Westphal-and now it's back to the drawing board again, where one of the upshots may be a change in starting centers for the first time since Alvan Adams won Rookie of The Year honors there in 1975.

MacLeod cautions the switch is still in the "tinkering" stage, but admits it is serious style tinkering. And what it amounts to is a platoon system, or, if you will, a system patterned after the "lines" used in hockey.

There would be the Edwards Line—with 7-foot, 240-pound James Edwards centering for Lucas and Larry Nance, and the Adams Line, with Alvan centering for Robey and a party to be named later (Alvin Scott or Rory White).

Carrying out the platoon theme, Kyle Macy and Walter Davis would play with the Edwards Line, and Westphal (remember, all this is in pencil) and Johnny High with the Adams line.

"I think this might give us better matchups by allowing James, who is much bigger than Alvan, to play against the bigger people," explains MacLeod. "As it is, Alvan has been giving up 3 or 4 inches and 30 or 40 pounds in the pivot."

That's the defensive pivot, of course. At the offensive end, Alvan's slight-of-build translates into sleight-of-hand, and is an asset, not a liability. And, if MacLeod's latest wrinkle works, Alvan will only play center on offense. On defense, Robey would play center and Adams big forward.

The plan banks heavily on Edwards being able to blossom into a starting pivot person, and Robey's being able to re-bloom as a desert flower after withering in the Eastern tundra.

Although he played well for the Suns, D.J.'s departure does at least two things—it takes a large load off MacLeod's mind, and it gives the team a balanced backcourt (i.e.—one point guard and one off guard) instead of two off guards.

MacLeod, like every other coach before him, had his problems with Johnson. And MacLeod, like every other coach before him, had trouble articulating those problems. The closest he came was when he told a Seattle official, "You can't believe what I put up with." To which came the reply, "Yes I can. We had him here."

Johnson's departure leaves a gap in the Phoenix defense, but Westphal's return fills one on offense. Nobody reads music better than MacLeod, but when Westphal was shipped to Seattle in a philsophical spat two years ago, there was nobody left who could play by ear. And the nature of basketball is that sometimes you just gotta play it by ear.

To sum up, the Suns will have more balance in backcourt, more push and shove in front court, and more gamesmanship at the expense of some defense—and are really the only team in the Division with power enough to pass even a Laker machine with only two good tires.

Look for Phoenix to win the Pacific by one eyelash. Unless, of course, the Lakers somehow get the air back in all their tires. In which case it will be Los Angeles by two bus lengths.

If nothing else, the erstwhile Champions of The West are still an accountant's dream, which is to say their assets exactly equal their capital and liabilities. But for a coach, of course, this is more like a nightmare.

The pre-season bankable assets include Magic Johnson, Jamaal Wilkes, and Michael Cooper. And the liabilities—as in Pat Riley is liable not to have them, or at least not have them at full strength—would have to include Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, Bob McAdoo, James Worthy, and Norm Nixon, not to mention Kurt Rambis.

"Everything's really up in the air because of Kareem," says a Laker spokesman. "If he stays, you won't see too many changes around here. But if he goes, other people will have to go too in order to get a center."

Actually, Kareem is merely the biggest Laker uncertainty. Consider the case of last year's No. 1 draft choice, James Worthy.

"After the All-Star break," said Riley, "I don't think there was a better offensive forward in the league than Worthy. There's no doubt he and Magic are the future of this franchise."

True enough. Worthy, an awesome combination of speed, power, and fearlessness, was going so good by April of his rookie season that people were revising their original opinions of him sharply upward (and bear in mind the consensus of those original opinions was he was one of two best players in college basketball his senior season at North Carolina).

Unfortunately, on April 10 in a game against Phoenix at The Forum, the 6-9 former Tar Heel broke his leg. And it wasn't just your ordinary every day break, either. It was the type of break Laker doctors said is usually associated not with athletic injuries but car wrecks.

Surgery was successful, and two plastic screws were placed in the knee. Also, Worthy started instant rehabilitation on a relatively new Continuous Passive Motion machine which works the leg back and forth. For all of that, even by the most optimistic figuring, Worthy is not expected back until October.

And even then, there will still be the matter of determining how much permanent damage (if any) has been done to his agility (not-to mention his fearlessness).

Then there's McAdoo. A key factor in the '81 championship drive as the only real offensive threat the Lakers had coming off the bench, McAdoo dislocated the fourth toe in his right foot in early February. He saw some playoff action, but was far from 100 per cent. The screw came out of his toe in July, but, again, you have to wonder about the after effects.

The biggest question mark of all hovers over Norm Nixon. Considered by many one of the most effective "quarterbacks" in the game, Nixon's performance deteriorated sharply in late season (partly because of knee problems and a shoulder injury).

And his market value (a telltale sign) declines even more precipitously in the off season. Although they denied it repeatedly, the fact is the Lakers packaged Nixon several ways in an attempt to solve the Kareem problem—and came up empty.

And Rambis, the power forward who plays a little like Superman and looks a lot like Clark Kent, has been bothered by a little-publicized foot problem that seems to be responding to treatment very slowly.

Of course, if Mitch Kupchak could make a successful comeback, things would brighten considerably. but the 6-10, 235-pound former North Carolina star is battling long odds. He insists he'll be in training camp, but torn ligaments and broken bones have kept him on the shelf since December of '81. And before that, he had a back problem.

Obviously, if all the "ifs" fall into place, nobody in the Pacific (or the West) would be able to lay a glove on the Lakers. But that's just too iffy a proposition to take to the bank.

But the downside of that is that, if none of the "ifs" fall into place, it could be a long hard winter in Southern California.

Reality, of course, will probably fall somewhere in between the two extremes, but, in any case, don't look for rookies to change the equation much.

The Lakers kind of like Orlando Phillips but the former Pepperdine star was the 69th player picked in the draft, and is a 6-7 power forward. Also, they rate 6-5 guard Terry Lewis "a great athlete in the Michael Cooper mold", but Lewis lasted until the 92nd pick.

blazers

The work ethic is alive and well in Portland. Also the sellout. Day by day in every way, the Blazers got a little better last year. And look for the improvement to continue this year. They finished fourth last year, and figure to climb at least another notch this time around.

This is a club which is pretty solid in every posiiton except center, and drafted a definite dash of pizazz in celebrated University of Houston aerialist Clyde Drexler.

"And don't underestimate the experience factor," says General Manager Stu Inman. "People often hide behind 'We're young', but we were young last year—the youngest team in the league. And when you mix in a pretty solid work ethic, you get improvement."

Not to mention steady sellouts. The Blazers haven't had an unsold seat at a home game since the Nixon Administration. In fact, they drew 6,500 at $5 a head for a rookie camp intrasquad game this summer.

The biggest plus last year was the emergence of Mr. Work Ethic (Coach Jack Ramsay is Dr. Work Ethic) himself, Jimmy Paxson, as Mr. Scorer.

Paxson, odds on choice as Blue Collar Guard of The Year, averaged a career-high 21.7 points a game.

He and Calvin Natt, The World's Biggest Small Forward, give the Blazers a dependable one-two scoring punch. Cleveland signed Calvin to a $400,000-a-year offer sheet in the off season, but the Blazers quickly matched it and made it perfectly clear they were matching for keeping not trading purposes.

In Fat Lever and Darnell Valentine, the Blazers feel they have two solid (there's that word again) point people. "I'm not sure we would trade those two as leads for anybody," says Inman. "What we need to find now is a backup for Paxson, somebody who can give us maybe 15 or 18 minutes at the off guard."

Center remains a problem, mostly because Mychal Thompson remains a puzzle. A gifted natural athlete with considerable charm and intelligence, the 6-10 center-forward (forward-center?) did not have a very bad year, but he did not have a very good year, either.

"The thing about Mychal," said Inman bluntly, "is that he should be an NBA All-Star type, and he's not. He's very nice kid, but I think it's fair to describe him as something of an enigma."

When it was suggested perhaps Thompson suffers from playing "out of position", Stu semi-snorts, "A lot of people are out of position in this league. Dave Cowens was out of position for 10 years."

Actually, the Blazers are only weak at starting center. Wayne Cooper, brought over from Dallas last year, is an excellent back up center who was pressed into starting duty. And the Blazers still think Audie Norris, the only sneaker-wearing moose in North America, is going to develop into a top backup. His development was slowed by calcium deposits on the leg last season.

The Blazers have other solid (again with solid?) performers coming off the bench, no*tably big guard Don Buse and big forward Kenny Carr, and there's still hope for swing man Jeff Lamp.

Which brings us to Drexler, whose spectacular acrobatics made him president of Phi Slamma Jamma fraternity at Houston (Akeem Abdul Olajuwon was board chairman).

"This is a kid with unlimited potential," said Inman. "He'll have some impact as a rookie, will maybe be an All-Star in three or four years, and will be a very good NBA player for 10 years. He'll play behind Natt this year, and he'll bring us some scoring. His shooting from 15 feet has been suspect, but I think after he's been in the league a half year or so, he'll be pretty respectable from that range."

The Blazer defense, decent a year ago, should be slightly more so this year, partly because of the aforementioned experience. As a team becomes semi-familiar with the Ramsay Offense (not even Dr. Jack is fully familiar with it), it makes fewer mistakes, and is in better position to play defense.

By playoff time, good health and good Mychal permitting, this team figures to be a serious factor for the first time since the Walton glopy wars.

ton glory years. warriors

The big change in the Warriors is at coach. Alvin Attles, who succeeded George Lee midway through the 1969-70 season, and led the team to its only NBA championship in its Bay Area history, has moved into the executive suite, and assistant coach John Bach has been promoted to head coach.

And this is more than just a change in name only. In fact, the pendulum could scarcely have swung any further the other way, stylewise. Where Attles in recent years has been critized for being unstructured and too loose, Bach is extremely structured and extremely organized and built a reputation as a strong disciplinarian during a 28-year career as a major college head coach (Fordham and Penn State).

Bach, a Warrior assistant the last five years, takes over a team with a strong starting front line built around center Joe Barry Carroll, and an inexperienced but promising backcourt.

Critics charge that beneath Joe Barry's sleepy exterior lies a sleepy interior, but the 7-0 Purdue product was the No. 7 scorer in the NBA last year with a 24.1 average. Not that he can't be pitched to, you understand. He has his defensive shortcomings, he's certainly not a great passer, and he's less than an imposing rebounder.

But, once he gets the ball "down in the blocks", there probably isn't anybody in the league including Moses Malone, any better at putting it in the hole on the first try than Joe Barry Carroll. Flank him with a healthy Larry Smith, one of the best rebounders in the game, and Purvis Short, a high-scoring small forward, and you've got a pretty decent starting front line, at least at one end of the court.

Veteran Mickey Johnson, obtained (stolen, actually) from New Jersey along with Sleepy Floyd in exchange for Michael Ray Richardson, can fill in nicely at either small or big forward, and Sam Williams has his moments above the rim.

When the season began a year ago, Lester Conner was a holdout and Eric Floyd was a Net. But, by the year's end, they were the starting guards for the Warriors, and weren't doing all that badly for a couple of rookies—especially on defense.

Floyd's shooting is still suspect, and of course, operating with almost no experience in the backcourt can be extremely hazardous to an NBA team's health.

Ron Brewer and Lorenzo Romar provide backup help, and 6-8 second-round pick Pace Manion of the University of Utah figures to get a decent shot on the strength of a good floor game and sound fundamentals. (If he could shoot, he would surely have gone in the first round).

The Warriors also are still looking for adequate backup help at center, with the leading candidates being 7-0, 240-pound Chris Engler, who was there last year, and No. 1 draft pick Russell Cross, a 6-10, 245-pound Purdue product.

In addition to whatever benefits will accrue from a fresh coaching appoach, the Warriors' best hope for improvement is the full-time availability of Smith, who sat out almost half of last season with ulnar neuritis (i.e.—a sore elbow). Indications are Smith, regarded by many as the best board man this side of Moses Malone, is completely recovered.

As for Williams, this figures to be shape up or ship out time. At times, the former Arizona State product looks like a world beater. But, at other times, he looks like a rug beater.

But for Bach, it will probably come down pretty much to Joe Barry, who is still the club's greatest asset. (Okay, okay. All together now—with Joe Barry for an asset, you don't need any liabilities).

Actually, Joe Barry will never completely quiet his critics, and there's a very good reason for that: Most of his critics are in the press, and the press takes exception to the fact Joe Barry will not speak to it.

One definite plus for Bach in his first full season (he filled in for 21 games while Attles was injured in 1979-80) is pressure. There won't be that much of it in the beginning. His promotion was well-received in the Bay Area, and nobody's expecting miracles.

Look for the Warriors to move from 30 to 40plus and from fifth to fourth place-and maybe even a spot in the expanded playoffs.

sonics

Advised that people around the league were labeling the Sonics a "mystery team", Les Habegger took quick exception:

"Really? I don't think there's any mystery about us. We're just not very good right now.

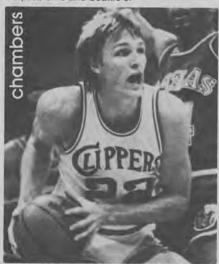

Habegger, who made the unusual jump from assistant coach to general manager of the Sonics in the off-season, brings a wealth of basketball experience and expertise to his new job. But you can't say much for his timing.

The Sonics, perennial power in the Pacific, started skidding in mid-season last year. And, although they managed to hang on long enough to make the playoffs, they never really stopped skidding

Their problem-plagued power forward, Lonnie Shelton, was dealt to Cleveland for a second round pick and cash amidst charges and denials of drug and drug-related miseries, their power guard, David Thompson, has been undergoing drug rehabilitation, and their unsigned free agents, include Thompson and 7-1, 285-pound James Donaldson.

Other than that, things are just peachy.

By the very nature of his position, the biggest cause in the decline and fall of the Sonics was the disappointing play of Shelton. Once considered one of the NBA's premier power forwards, he never really recovered from the finger injury that sidelined him two years ago. And the fact a player of his stature brought so little on the open market tells you a lot about his problems and Seattle's

'Obviously, we're in a state of limbo," said Habegger. "The No. 1 problem is we're not exactly sure how we're going to treat the David Thompson situation. If he's with us-which we're hoping he will be-we'll have a much better team. Otherwise, the back court is obviously our biggest question mark.'

Which is why the Sonics signed free agent Craig Dykma of the Suns as a big guard hopeful, and spent their first-round pick on 6-1 point guard Jon Sundvold of Missouri

"We got raked over the coals for the Sundvold pick" said Habegger, "but we need some ballhandling help for Gus. We lost a lot of games in which we were ahead by 10 or 12 points because we didn't have anybody to put in when Gus had to be rested."

'Gus", of course, is Gus Williams, one of the fastest and most explosive guards in the league. Together, he and center-forward Jack Sikma will be literally asked to hold the fort until reenforcements arrive.

The presumption is that sooner or later, the Sonics will sign Donaldson, and play him at center, with Sikma sliding over to big forward. The small forward situation is only semi-shabby. Danny Vranes has the instincts and playing style of a big forward but the body of a small one, and Greg Kessler has a little mobility and agility going for him.

'I am not among those who is down on Danny," said Habegger. "A lot of people automatically think a small forward has to shoot from outside, and of course Danny doesn't do that very well. But he's a tough kid and a digger."

Between them, Kessler and Vranes gave the Sonics some 16 points a game at small forward last year, a total they can live with.

The Sonics also landed the "other" McCray, 6-9 Scooter McCray of Louisville. "I hope Rodney and Scooter get mixed up when it's time to report," said Les. Naturally, neither Sundvold nor McCray are signed yet.

In backcourt, 35-year-old shootist Fred Brown returns for yet another fling. As he approaches his 13th NBA season, Fred is making a few concessions to senior citizenship, but Coach Lenny Wilkens still hopes to get 15 minutes and 10 or 12 points a game.

And another plus is 6-9 backup center-forward Steve Hawes, an unspectacular but competent professional who can provide help almost anywhere along the front line. Unsigned free agent Phil Smith is available, but the former San Francisco star been playing on borrowed time the last two years.

About the best Wilkens can hope for is that Thompson recaptures some of his Sky Walker form, and Sikma and Williams have fantastic years. If all of the above happens, there's a good chance the Sonics just may beat out San Diego for fifth place in the Pacific.

clippers

The Clippers have made a coaching change, too, with Jimmy Lynam, who is out of the Jack Ramsay stable, replacing Paul Silas.

But what the club is really hoping for is a change in health. At one time last year, Bill Walton, Terry Cummings, Swen Nater, and Jerome Whitehead were all on the injured list. In fact, Nater missed 75 games, Walton 49, Whitehead 36, and Cummings a scary 12.

"Scary" because first reports were the Rookie of The Year's career and life were threatened by a heart disorder.

So naturally, one of the first orders of business for Lynam, who played for Ramsay at St. Joseph's and coached for him at Portland, was a medical assessment.

"Terry Cummings has undergone extensive testing, and is now on medication that has greatly reduced the problem of his irregular heart beat. They think they have it under control, and he has the green light to play."

Lynam also says both Nater (knee surgery two years ago), and Whitehead, (orthoscopic surgery last year) were doing "nicely."

And what of the most injured Clipper of them all?

"Bill had a bone spur removed from his ankle after the season. The foot that caused him a problem over a four-year period held up very well. He said that didn't bother him at all. And usually, bone spurs are no big deal. So we're optimistic about him being healthy at the start of the season.

Does this mean he'll be available full-time, or will he still have to be rested? "I think we'll still have to be somewhat selective," said Lynam, "but not to the point where it was last year when he was just coming back and trying to gradually work up to a full-time schedule.'

So much for old injuries. How about new players?

The most promising one is 6-5 guard Byron Scott, the fourth player and first guard taken in the draft. Lynam shares the general assessment that, given good health, the Clippers have a lot going for them up front, but the backcourt cupboard is bare.

Thus, Scott, a great shooter as well as a great athlete, figures prominently in plans to get the Clippers back on the right course. This circumstance not being lost on Scott's agent, the Clippers were having trouble coming to terms with the former Sun Devil.

The starting lineup Lynam was doodling with in late summer had Walton, Cummings, and Tom Chambers up front, and Lionel Hollins and Al Wood at guards. Cummings, of course, was simply brilliant as a rookie, averaging 23 points and nearly 11 rebounds a game. And second-year pro Tom Chambers had another outstanding season at 17.6. And, while Walton will never play all the way back to the form that once made him the best allaround center in the game, he is still Walton.

So, if Scott comes through, and Hollins, a teammate of Walton's in Portland's championship season, recaptures some of his magic, San Diego just might be the most improved team in the Pacific Division (which is seminatural since they had the most room for improvement).

Also, the Clippers might get a boost from Michael Brooks, whose career has been a study in ups and downs.

Lynam, in case you may be wondering, played for St. Joseph's from 1962 through 1964, shared the MVP award in the Big Five, and is a member of the Hall of Fame at both St. Joseph's and the Big Five, and was a member of the Ramsay team that reached the Final Four before losing to the Havlicek-Lucas Ohio

As a coach, he led St. Joseph's to a 65-28 record, capped by a stunning upset victory over DePaul in the 1981 NCAA Tournament. Oh, and he also taught calculus at St. Joseph's. He also served head coaching tours at Fairfield and American University.

So much for biography. The book on Lynam.

'Very bright, with a tough-mindedness in him you wouldn't see unless you had a chance to work very closely with him," said Blazer general manager Stu Inman.

The Clippers just might win MPS honors (Most Pleasant Surprise) in the Pacific

Ten games involving the world champion Philadelphia 76ers highlight ESPN's schedule of 40 regular-season National Basketball Association games for the 1983-84 season.

ESPN will televise the games primarily on Sundays, with either single prime-time games, evening doubleheaders or day/night doubleheaders. The network will also present at least five games on Friday evening, including Philadelphia's opening night game at home with Washington, October 28.

This will be ESPN's second year of televising NBA basketball. Other features of the schedule include:

- the first meeting between Houston Rocket Ralph Sampson and 76er Moses Malone, November 25.
- eight appearances by championship finalist Los Angeles Lakers.
- an anticipated matchup between Sampson and Kareem Abdul-Jabbar when Houston plays at Los Angeles January 8.
- six appearances by Larry Bird and the Boston Celtics; five by Eastern Conference finalist Milwaukee Bucks, and four by the revitalized Rockets.
- two games between rivals Philadelphia and Boston, December 4 and March 25.
- the first meeting of the year between the New York Knicks and the Celtics after their controversial tug-of-war for free agent players, November 18.
- holiday contests on Christmas and New Year's Day.
- more flexibility towards the end of the schedule, enabling ESPN to present games and teams which have a bearing on the playoffs.

ESPN will also telecast up to 12 playoff games this season. The schedule follows, with all times Eastern (note: cable systems which have NBA teams in their market in action on these nights may be subject to blackouts on a game-by-game basis). "The NBA Tonight" on ESPN, with Greg Gumbel and John Andariese, will begin ESPN's coverage game nights.

The year before Andy Landers arrived at Georgia, the program there was in such bad shape that the players actually threatened to boycott if the head coach sat on the bench.

The Bulldogs were a dog in the Southeastern Conference. They had only won 37 games in five years and seemed destined to remain the third best team in their own state behind tiny colleges Mercer and Valdosta State.

Landers has turned a mess into a masterpiece since arriving in Athens from the junior college ranks in Tennessee. In just five years, he has transformed a once down-and-out program into a legitimate national contender.

"I knew what the situation here was when I took the job," Landers recalled. "But, I also knew the other side of the story. I knew the potential involved.

"The state of Georgia has always been extremely strong in women's high school basketball. It's just that the players were going elsewhere. The Tennessee teams that went to the Final Four always had four or five Georgia players on their roster. South Carolina had an All-America from here. Clemson had an All America."

Landers, a masterful recruiter, has finally put a stop to the emigration of home grown talent. Two years ago, he signed forward Lisa O'Connor and guard Teresa Edwards, High School All-Americas from Cartersville and Cairo, and the march to a title was on.

Landers has not restricted his recruiting to local players. He has built the nucleus for his team by signing prep stars like Janet Harris of Chicago, Katrina McClain of Charleston, S.C., Wanda Holloway of Pittsburgh and Barb Bootz of Marlboro, N.Y.

The program has grown accordingly. Landers' team won the NWIT three years ago. The Dawgs went to the first NCAA Tournament two years ago and advanced to the Final Four last year.

This season. The Dawgs could win it all. Whether they finish first in the SEC is another story. "Remember," Landers likes to point out, "in February last year, we were only 4-4 in the conference."

GEORGIA

The tipoff on Georgia's bright future might have occurred this summer at the National Sports Festival when three of Andy Landers' players—guard Teresa Edwards, forward Lisa O'Connor and 6-3 recruit Katrina McClain—were all selected to the All-Tournament team.

Women's basketball continued to take giant strides in Athens last year when the Bulldogs reached the NCAA Final Four. This season, they not only look like the class of the brutally competitive Southeastern Conference but also the class of the country.

Landers has four double figure scorers back, including 6-3 junior center Janet Harris, a two-time Street & Smith's pre-season All-America. Harris averaged 20.4 ppg and 11.7 rpg for the Dawgs (27-7) and is a tower of strength for a quality frontline that also features the 6-1 O'Connor (13.6 ppg, 5.7 rpg), a member of Joe Martinez' Freshman All-America team; and 6-3 senior Wanda Holloway (13.2 ppg, 7.6 rpg). McClain, who averaged 32 ppg and 17 rpg for Charleston, S.C. St. Andrews, and was generally considered one of the three best prospects in the country, is too good to sit and will push someone out of the lineup by mid-season Just to be on the safe side, Landers also signed 6-7 Barbara Bootz, a high school All-America.

Edwards (13 ppg), a 5-10 sophomore, is the most complete young guard in the country and was the hands down choice as MVP in the National Sports Festival. Landers can choose between senior Lou Sims (3.6 ppg, 115 assists) and long-range shooting specialist Susie Gardner for the other spot.

LOUISIANA TECH

When Janice Lawrence and Kim Mulkey arrived in Reston, La. four years ago, it didn't take them long to make the transition from Junior Olympic stars with the New Orleans Dominos to major influences in the best women's program in the country.

The 6-3 Lawrence and her spunky 5-4 teammate Mulkey helped Tech (31-2) win an AIAW and an NCAA title their first two years and to a second place finish in the nationals last spring. Now, after spending a summer with the U.S. Pan Am team, both are back.

Lawrence (20.7 ppg, 9.1 rpg), arguably the best pure post player in the deep south, will steady a frontline that also includes 6-3 senior Deborah Rodman (13.3 ppg, 10.7 rpg). Mulkey will help solidify a young backcourt, which will be without Jennifer White for the first time in four years. Co-coaches Leon Barmore and Sonja Hogg did manage to seal one of the cracks with physically gifted 5-7 Pam Crawford, who transferred in from S.F. Austin for her senior year. Janet Karvonen, a 5-10 transfer from Old Dominion, offers excellent wing shooting and could fill the other spot in what is yet an uncertain lineup.

Assistant Coach Gary Blair's penchant for recruiting in Texas has produced two good ones in 6-3 high school All-America Stacy Davis of Lewisville and guard Pennee Hall of Mont Belvieu. Tech also signed 6-4 high school All-America Tori Harrison of USA Today national prep champ Towson Catholic.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA

It might have been Miller time last year at the NCAA Final Four but, in order for sensational Cheryl and the rest of her teammates to toast another championship season, the Lady Trojans (31-2) will have to solidify their guard line.

Sophomore lead guard Rhonda Windham (7 ppg, 6 apg), a member of Joe Martinez' Freshman All-America team and the catalyst who provided the spark for Coach Linda Sharp's WCAA power, is out for the season after suffering a dislocated patella in the National Sports Festival competition. Junior Cynthia Cooper, the other starter in the backcourt, is spending the year in junior college, trying to bulk up on academics. That being the case, USC will have to rely more than ever this season on its superb front line.

The 6-2 Miller, of course, is the best player in women's basketball. The fluid sophomore forward, who averaged 20.4 ppg, 9.4 rpg, 3.5 apg, 3.5 steals and 2.4 blocks, punctuated her brilliant frosh season with a 27-point outburst against Tech in the title game. Miller's 6-3 identical twin teammates Pam and Paula McGee are also back.

Paula, who joined Miller on the Kodak AA team, averaged 19.2 ppg and 9.2 rpg. Pam, who played with Cheryl on the Pan Am team, averaged 18.4 ppg and 10 rpg.

This team could easily repeat. But, it will need to have all the weapons in its arsenal.

TENNESSEE

Pat Head Summitt, the coach of the 1984 women's Olympic team, has managed to close the gap that has traditionally existed between the powerful Soviets and this country's team.

This year, she must find a way to close the gap that has suddenly sprung up between Georgia and UT. Actually, the Lady Vols (25-8) are not that far away from either the Dawgs or the national championship, provided everyone stays healthy this season.

That should be the case now that soph guard Sheila Collins (8.5 ppg) has made sufficient enough strides after knee surgery to earn a spot on the World University Games team. Collins will fill one spot in the backcourt. Soph Pammy Marr, a Sports Festival participant, appears to rate a slight edge over freshman Shelly Sexton of Anderson County, Tenn. in the fight for Lea Henry's lead guard role.

UT's strength once again will be its frontline, particularly senior bookend forwards Tanya Haave and Mary Ostrowski. The 6-2 Haave (nicknamed "La Machine") led the Vols in scoring (18.6 ppg. 7.5 rpg). The 6-2 Ostrowski, a seasoned international player who was selected to the World University Games team, averaged 13.5 ppg and 7.7 rpg.

team, averaged 13.5 ppg and 7.7 rpg.
Paula Towns, a 6-1 senior (11.1 ppg, 7.4 rpg), is back at center although 6-3 soph Karen Morton (11.1 ppg, 5.5 rpg) should push for time after coming back from knee surgery.

TEXAS

Jody Conradt finished second in the recruiting wars to land both 6-7 Tresa Spaulding of Meridian, Idaho and 6-5 Monica Lamb of Houston, Tex. Yates.

We mention this because the one thing that may separate the Lady Longhorns (30-3) from their first national championship is the lack of a pure post player.

Ironically, Conradt does have a great talent plugging the middle in 5-11 junior All-America candidate Annette Smith, the Player of the Year in the Southwest Conference and a deserving member of the World University Games team that won a Gold in Edmonton. Smith (22.3 ppg, 7.7 rpg) is one of three starters back on a quality frontline. The others are 5-10 senior Sherryl Hauglum (9.1 ppg) and 6-0 soph Fran Harris (7.4 ppg, 3.4 rpg), a member of the winning South team in the Sports Festival.

The backcourt will have to be retooled somewhat after Conradt dismissed All America candidate Terry Mackey from the team. But 5-6 senior Esoleta Whaley (8 ppg, 3.5 rpg) is back to generate a devastating 40-minute, full court man-to-man press, which forced a phenomenal 29 turnovers per game last year. Soph Kamie Ethridge, a two-year starter in the Sports Festival, will get first crack at Mackey's spot, but no one's position is that secure with the addition of 6-2 high school All-America Andrea Lloyd of Moscow, Idaho, a female Magic Johnson type who can play three positions.

LONG BEACH STATE

Kirsten Cummings may be deaf but the splendid 6-2 junior forward has awakened us all to the fact that she is in no way handicapped as a player.

Cummings (16.3 ppg, 11.5 rpg) should emerge as Coach Joan Bonvicini's newest All-America candidate this year now that Wade Trophy winner Lataunya Pollard is gone from the scene. Cummings will be part of a towering lineup that could include 6-4 senior Nina Leonard (10.5 ppg, 8.6 rpg) and 6-4 junior Janet Davis—a heralded transfer from Old Dominion—if Bonvicini chooses to go with a double post. Becky Hagerdon, a 6-5 soph who missed most of last season with persistent knee problems, could also be a factor.

Junior Faye Paige (13.6 ppg, 4.1 apg), who emerged as one of the best lead guards on the Coast, is back as well as 5-8 junior Ros Boger (5.7 ppg). But, Bonvicini may have a surprise for the rest of the WCAA if she shifts 6-2 freshman Cindy Brown, high school All-America from Portland, Ore. Grant, to the backcourt. Brown was a star in the Sports Festival and has some Cheryl Miller traits to her game, as 28.8 prep scoring average attest.

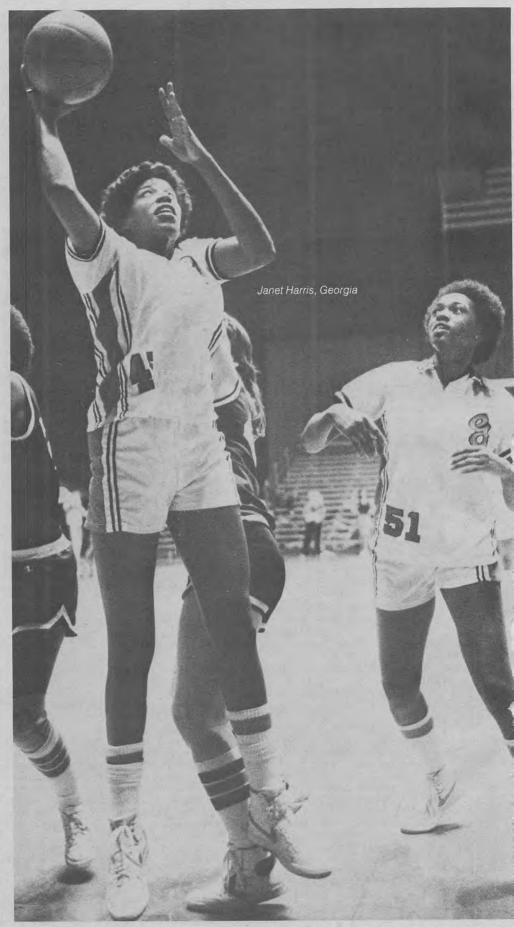

OLD DOMINION

The Lady Monarchs will have to undergo a change in the palace now that Queen Anne Donovan has finally graduated.

The 6-8 Donovan, a two-time Street & Smith's Player of the Year selection, led ODU (29-6) in all categories (17.5 ppg, 14.4 rpg) again last year, finishing her career as the NCAA all-time leader in blocked shots. Marianne Stanley does not have any comparable replacements lined up, but the winningest coach—percentage wise in women's college basketball (184-24, 88.3 percent)—does have enough personnel to remain near top.

Stanley will have to rely heavily on 6-1 junior forward Medina Dixon, a legit All-America candidate, to get over the hump. Dixon (16.1 ppg, 7.1 rpg), a one-time transfer from South Carolina, was the MVP in the Sun Belt as well as the MVP in the NCAA Eastern Regionals last year. She will key a frontline that will include 6-4 soph Dawn Cullen (6.5 ppg, 5.5 rpg, a two-time participant in the Sports Fest) and should be better in January when 6-1 Tracy Claxton, a transfer from Kansas is eligible.

Regina Miller, a 5-10 senior who averaged 9.8 ppg, will start at one guard while senior Pam Elliott will fight it out with 5-7 freshman Marie Christian, a high school All-America from Chicago Marshall, for the other spot.

KANSAS STATE

The Lady Cats (25-7) overcame the inconsistencies of youth last year to win the Big Eight regular season championship and then advance to the NCAA Final 16 before losing to Texas in overtime.

This season, K-State should have even sharper claws. True, Kodak All-America guard Priscilla Gary is gone, but Coach Lynn Hickey has her entire frontline back as well as soph guard Cassandra Jones.

Angie Bonner, a 6-1 junior who averaged 16.3 ppg and 7.3 rpg, is one of the conference's best post players while 5-11 senior Barbara Gilmore (10.7 ppg, 5.1 rpg), 6-3 soph Tina Dixon (7.9 ppg, 5.8 rpg) and 6-1 soph Jennifer Jones (6.3 ppg) provide depth.

Cassandra Jones (8.3 ppg, 2.6 apg) is part of a Florida connection that has also produced 5-10 recruit Carlisa Thomas, a high school All-America from Jacksonville Ribault. If Thomas can make the transition from wing forward to shooting guard, the backcourt should be set. If not, Hickey can always plug in 5-8 soph Sheronda Jenkins (4.2 ppg).

LOUISIANA STATE

This is the one team everyone in the Southeastern Conference seems worried about.

The Lady Tigers (20-7) were a victim of numbers last year when the NCAA selection committee handed out invitations to its post-season tournament. But, that should not be the case this time around.

Coach Sue Gunter, back after a temporary retirement two years ago, has four starters back, including two-time Street & Smith's preseason All-America guard Joyce Walker. Walker, a member of the World University Games team, averaged 27.6 ppg and 3.1 assists, emerging as best guard in deep south.

Junior Madeline Doucet (15.2 ppg, 3 apg) and 6-0 senior Ramona Dozier (10.7 ppg, 9.8 rpg) are solid at the forward spots while 5-5 guard Rhonda Hawthorne (12.2 ppg, 5.5 apg) was selected to Freshman All-America team.

All Gunter has to do is find a replacement for graduated 6-5 center Heidi Olsen. She has three blue chip freshmen to choose from including 6-1 Jean Delahaye of Plaquemint, La. St. John's, 6-3 Alisha Jones of Stone County, Miss. Wiggins and 5-10 Lesa Thorton of West Caldwell, La.

Cheryl Miller, Southern Cal

NORTH CAROLINA STATE

The "Hawk" has started soaring back to expected heights.

Linda "Hawkeye" Page, the legendary Dobins Vocational star who was used primarily as a backup during her freshman year, exploded onto the national scene last season, averaging a school record 23 ppg for the Wolfpack Women (22-8). The 5-10 junior wing forward, who was selected co-MVP in the annual Atlantic Coast Conference Tournament, was also team's leading rebounder (7.5).

Page is one of three starters back on State's frontline, which also features 6-1 senior Claudia Kreicker (5.6 ppg) and 6-1 soph Priscilla Adams, who averaged 10.1 ppg after replacing 6-7 senior Rhonda Falkena (8.1) in the lineup in January.

Robin Mayo (7.8 ppg, 131 assists) seems well equipped to replace graduated Angie Armstrong at lead guard while 5-7 freshman Annemarie Treadway, a high school All-America from Greensboro, N.C. Grimsley (21.3 ppg, 11.7 rpg), should fight junior Teresa Rouse, soph Debbie Mulligan for guard spot.

State had a strong recruiting year, signing Treadway and two other blue chippers from instate—6-1 high school All-America Angela Daye of Northampton (22 ppg) and 6-3 Kim Taylor (32 ppg) from Rocky Mount.

OLE MISS

The Lady Rebels (26-6) threw their weight around for the first time in the Southeastern Conference, finishing second in the post-season tournament and advancing to the NCAA second round.

Coach Van Chancellor's team will have to flex its muscles again if the Lady Rebels want to maintain that lofty profile. Chancellor has three big inside players in 6-3 Eugenia Conner (19.6 ppg, 10.2 rpg), 6-2 junior Marilyn Brooks (9.9 ppg, 4.1 rpg) and 6-3 soph Jennifer Gillom (9.9 ppg, 4.1 rpg).

If he can find a way to replace graduated floor leader Dana Fortenberry, the Rebs could be whistling Dixie again. Ole Miss has recruited no less than five quality guards to fill whatever voids exist in the backcourt.

Biggest name among the group is 5-9 Alisha Scott of Vicksburg, Miss. Warren Central, a high school All-America and Player of the Year in her talent-rich state. Chancellor is also importing 5-8 Lisa Smith (34.4 ppg), the first girl ever to make the men's varsity at Hempstead, (L.I.) High and Myra Williams (33.5 ppg), who led Marvell High to the Arkansas state championship. Soph Vickie Craig (6.9 ppg) is back to solidify backcourt.

AUBURN

Joe Ciampi might not have the thoroughbreds that some of the other SEC programs possess. But, the Lady Tigers' wily coach did find a way to horse collar Georgia, Kentucky, Ole Miss, LSU and Florida State last year.

Becky Jackson should make sure that trend continues for at least one more year. The 6-2 senior center, Ciampi's first true All-America candidate, averaged 16.9 ppg, 9.4 rpg and shot a blistering 66 percent for the Tigers (248) as they reached the second round of the NCAA Midwest Regional.

Jackson should tie down the loose ends of a front line that will be missing four-year starter Lori Monroe. Brenda Hill, a 6-1 soph who averaged 12.1 ppg, is also back.

The backcourt is solid with 5-7 junior Debra Larkin (11.8 ppg, 3.5 apg) and junior Cindy Sagrera (5.2 ppg, 6.5 apg). But, both players should be severely challenged by 5-6 freshman Helene Baroody, a high school All-America from W.T. Woodson in Fairfax, Va. who played for the East team in the National Sports Festival. Ciampi had good success recruiting the Baltimore-Northern Virginia area and may have come up with a possible replacement for Monroe in 6-1 Charlene Thomas, a high schol All-America from Silver Spring, Md. Blair High.

MISSOURI

Dr. Joann Rutherford's Lady Tigers (25-6) were the surprise of the Big Eight, defeating Kansas State in the finals of the conference's post-season tournament to advance as an automatic bid to the NCAA Tournament.

It would not be surprising to see Mighty Mo jump into the Top 10. Rutherford has excellent balance, frontline depth and the spoils of another strong recruiting effort.

Joni Davis, a 6-0 junior (13.9 ppg, 6.5 rpg) who was selected MVP of the Big Eight Tourney, is back at one forward. Rutherford can choose between 6-1 junior Mary Brueggestrass (8.5 ppg, 5.6 rpg, leading shot blocker in school history), 6-1 senior Annette Schwander (7.9 ppg, 6.9 rpg) and 5-11 senior Debbie Walker (who was averaging 12.3 rpg before suffering a season-ending injury in January) for the other two spots.

Dee Dee Polk (8 ppg), a 5-5 senior who broke the school single season record for assists with 139, is the best lead guard in the conference, while explosive 5-11 soph Sarah Campbell (6.7 ppg) appears to have the inside track on the off guard spot.

If that isn't enough, Rutherford has gone out and signed three blue chippers, including 5-11 Tracy Hill of Ridgeway, Colo. (44.2 ppg), 5-8 Maggie LaValley of Stanley, Kansas and 6-1 Renee Kelly of Richmond Academy in Georgia (the sleeper of the year in that state).

RUTGERS

Theresa Grentz' babies are growing up.

The five blue chip freshmen she brought to the banks of the Old Raritan are a year older and also wiser after helping the Lady Knights (19-10) through a rare rebuilding year that included a pair of close losses to more experienced Atlantic 10 champion Penn State.

Sophs Kristen Foley (10.8 ppg, 4.2 rpg), 6-3 Julie Salmon (14 ppg, 8 rpg) and 6-5 Ronnie Smyth (8 ppg) should help senior captain Carol Glutz (12 ppg, 7 rpg) flesh out a solid frontline while senior Lorrie Lawrence (17 ppg, 4.5 rpg), a Wade Trophy finalist last season, gives the Knights best guard in the Northeast.

Provided Foley and sophomore guard Kelley Watts—both 1982 National Sports Festival participants—are completely recovered from knee injuries, Rutgers should jump right back into the NCAA picture again.

MARYLAND

Rebuilding? Debbie Lytle and Jasmina Perazic, two valuable members of a 26-5 team that won its first 16 games and reached the NCAA's Sweet 16, have graduated. Forward Lea Hakala, one of nation's top freshmen, is back in Finland.

Still, there is a sneaking suspicion Coach Chris Weller, one of the best technical minds in the game, will sort her way through the rubble in time to challenge both North Carolina State and Carolina for the Atlantic Coast Conference title.

The Lady Terps can start repatching holes with a pair of four-year starters, 6-1 senior center Belinda Pearman (10.2 ppg, 4.5 rpg) and Kodak All-District guard Marcia Richardson (15.4 ppg).

Chequita Wood, a 5-11 soph (8.4 ppg, 5.5 rpg) who was Weller's sixth player last season, looks solid at one forward spot while Clara Faison, a 5-11 juco scoring machine, could emerge as the heir apparent to Lytle.

Weller has the option of going with a smaller, quicker lineup if she chooses to plug in soph guard Chris Vera or she may decide to experiment with 5-11 Jonette Niles or 6-1 Sydney Beasley, two highly-touted freshman recruits from Westbury, L.I. and Oxon Hill, Md.

OHIO STATE

The Big 10 should be another five-way scramble. When the smoke clears, however, expect to see Coach Tara Van Derveer's Lady Buckeyes cross the finish ahead of Indiana, Minnesota, Northwestern and Illinois.

OSU will have plenty of incentive. The Lady Bucks (23-5) finished in a tie for first with IU (both had a 15-3 record and split with each other in regular season). But, IU was awarded the title on tie-breakers and received the only NCAA bid given to the conference.

Van Derveer can plot her revenge around 6-1 junior center Carla Chapman (13.6 ppg, 7.2 rpg), a second team All-Big 10 selection, and 5-8 junior guard Yvette Angel (15.3 ppg, 112 assists and 62 steals), a first team All-Conference pick.

Kelly Robinson, a 5-11 senior who averaged 8.3 ppg, is back at one forward while 5-11 junior Teresa Busch (8.7 ppg) and 6-3 freshman Teresa Dombrowski, a member of the North squad in the National Sports Festival, will compete for the other frontcourt position. Van Derveer is toying with the idea of shifting versatile 6-2 soph Francine Lewis to the off guard in an attempt to give the Bucks better overall size.

DRAKE

Lori Bauman is one player who has had no difficulty adjusting to big-time college basket-ball after playing under antiquated six-on-six rules during her illustrious prep career in lowa. The 6-3 senior All-America candidate has already scored 2,296 points during her career, including an NCAA Tournament record 50 points against Maryland in the 1982 Western Regional final.

Bauman, who averaged 26.3 ppg and 9.4 rpg, will try to lift the Lady Bulldogs (20-8) back to that level. She is the heart of the best frontline in the Midwest. Coach Carole Baumgarten's team has excellent overall size, especially when 6-2 senior forward Dawn Wumkes (9.4 ppg, 3.3 rpg), 6-1 soph Wanda Ford (16.1 ppg, 13.1 rpg) and 6-1 senior swing Kay Riek are all on the floor.

Ford, a Freshman All-America, led her class in both field goal percentage (.606) and rebounding. Riek, the team's best defensive player, earned an invite to the Pan Am trials. Baumgarten's biggest problem will be finding a qualified lead guard. Best bets appear to be either veteran Mia Stockdale or 5-9 freshman Mary Goedken, who averaged 38.5 ppg at Dubuque, Iowa, High.

CHEYNEY STATE

We couldn't complete our Top 20 without bidding farewell to an old friend, Cheyney State. This may be the last trip the Lady Wolves make into this rarified air.

Coach Vivian Stringer, long the heart of the program, has left this tiny suburban Philadelphia school for a more lucrative and more supportive atmosphere at lowa, taking with her a national influence and a strong technical knowledge of the game. Key players Rosetta Guilford and Debra Walker are also gone.

The Wolves (27-3) still have enough horses to temporarily hold off the stampede of scholarship schools. Senior swing forward Yolanda Laney (17.7 ppg) is one of the most versatile players in the East while 6-4 senior center Sharon Taylor (11 ppg, 7 rpg) is back to bulk up the middle. Seniors Karen Draughn and Sandra Gittins (7 ppg) and junior Paulette Bigelow offer quickness, as usual, at guard.

Cheyney may get some additional instant offense in January when high scoring transfer guard Margaret Diaz from Mt. St. Mary's becomes eligible. Soph forward Debbie Thomas should fill out the rest of the cast.

NEVADA-LAS VEGAS

In a world filled with "doctors" and "magicians," UNLV officials have taken to referring to Rochelle Oliver as a "sorceress" for the way she has helped turn the Lady Rebels back into a national power.

The 5-8 senior guard averaged 17.3 ppg, 5.9 rpg and 5.2 assists for Coach Sheila Strike's 24-4 team that may surpass both UCLA and Arizona State as a Far West factor.

Oliver is one of four key starters Strike has back as UNLV tries to strike back at the NCAA selection committee, which overlooked the Rebs when tournament bids were handed out. The others are 6-2 sophomore center Donya Monroe (10.4 ppg, 8.2 rpg), 6-4 sophomore Tara Garlepp (6.2 ppg) and 5-11 sophomore forward Misty Thomas (12.1 ppg, 6.3 rpg, 5.3 apg). Thomas, a Freshman All-America, played for the Canadian national team.

The Rebels have upscaled their recruiting, signing 5-10 Lynn Sherow of Morningside, the LA City Player of the Year, 6-2 All-CIF selection Angie Christian of Lynnwood, Calif. and 5-7 guard Charlotte Blair of Birmingham, Ala.

SOUTH CAROLINA

Terry Kelly's team was conspicuous by its absence from the Top 20 last year but, with the emergence of 6-3 sophomore center Sharon Gilmore as one of the best post players in the region, the Lady Gamecocks should make a strong run at the Metro Conference title.

Gilmore helped carry South Carolina through a hard luck 16-12 season, averaging 15.2 ppg and 8.3 rebounds. Not surprisingly, she was selected to the definitive Freshman All-America team and went on to make the South team in the National Sports Festival.

Gilmore should have plenty of help up front if 6-1 sophomore Brantley Southers, potentially a great one if healthy, stays in one piece. Renee Najarian, a 6-2 high school All-America from Wakefield, Mass; and 5-11 Monica Williams of Kershaw, S.C. Jackson should help.

In the backcourt, remember this name— Marsi McAlister. The 5-10 junior (14.9 ppg) could just be the best lead guard in the country by the end of the season and should get heavy consideration for a spot on the Olympic team. Soph Mindy Ballou is a factor at guard.

S.F. AUSTIN

Mary Ann Otwell has all five starters back from an 18-7 team that earned one of the few atlarge bids to the NCAA Tournament. The Ladyjacks might not have great overall size but they do have enough roadrunners to beep beep their way to another trip to the nationals.

Otwell has all the ingredients necessary to get her team off and running, including four double figure scorers. Senior Tammy Mayo (17.8 ppg, 5.6 rpg) and junior Kim Rodman (12.2 ppg, 9.6 rpg), whose sister Debbie starts for Louisiana Tech, are the best pair of forwards in the Southwest while 5-6 senior lead guard Rosaline Polk (13.4 ppg, 7.1 assists) is the trigger on one of the best fast breaks in the country.

Sybil Johnson, a 6-2 senior who averaged 12.5 ppg and 6.8 rpg, is back at center, and Otwell can choose betweeen 5-9 junior Bonita Branch (7.9 ppg) and 5-7 senior Paula Redo (7.7 ppg) for the other guard spot.

Recruiting produced a gem when Otwell signed 6-0 Bridget Chaney of Wichita Heights, the outstanding player in Kansas.

FLORIDA STATE

Sue Galkantas was Coach Jan Dykehouse's first blue chip recruit four years ago. Since then, the 6-0 senior forward has helped the Lady Seminoles (24-6) grow from relative obscurity to Top 20 status.

Galkantas (16.9 ppg, 7.6 rpg), a Wade Trophy finalist, is the best returning player in the strong Metro Conference and the cornerstone of a frontline that also includes 5-8 sophomore Brenda Cliette (13.5 ppg, 9.3 rpg), a Freshman All-America selection who has world class track ability as a sprinter.

Yvette Angel, Ohio State

LeeVayn Oliver, a 5-10 senior (11.7 ppg), is back at one guard will have to find a lead guard and a quality canter if FSU hopes to climb higher. Loraine Rimson, a 6-0 forward who was a high school All-America at W.T. Woodson HS in Fairfax, Va., should ease the pain somewhat while frosh Lori Smith of Bradenton, Fla. Southeast and Sheri Kaminski of Satellite Beach battle for guard spot.

EAST

Penn State (26-7) was one of Eastern basketball's shining lights last year, winning the Atlantic 10 and then reaching the NCAA Eastern Regional final before losing to Old Dominion. Coach Rene Portland will have to undergo massive reconstruction, though, with the loss of three key starters. Center Kahadeejah Herbert, a 6-3 junior All-America candidate who averaged 16.6 ppg and 8.2 rpg, should ease the pain somewhat.

Tammy Mayo, Stephen F. Austin

St. John's (23-6) is the defending champion in the Big East and seems most likely to succeed again behind the defense of 6-0 senior Dianne Pugh (9.3 rpg, 2.5 blocks), the floor leadership of Janet Roos (10 ppg, 5.5 apg) and the renewed scoring of healthy Laura Williams-Martinez.

Villanova (14-15) looks like the strongest threat to St. John's superiority after the Lady Cats went out and signed consensus high school All-America forward Shelly Pennefather to play with sharp-shooting guard Nancy Bernhardt (17.3 ppg. 8.3 rpg).

Providence (24-6) could be a factor in the conference, too, if the Lady Friars can solidify their coaching situation in time to effectively blend the talents of senior forward and Wade Trophy finalist Kathy Finn (16.3 ppg) with 5-10 soph Britt King.

Pitt (17-11) could surprise. Jennifer Bruce is a bonafide All-America candidate. She's a 5-11 beauty who won all-Big East honors as a sophomore, pacing the Pantherettes in scoring (20.6 ppg) and rebounding (9.6).

Coach Judy Saurer likes her recruits, including two USA Today All-Americas, 6-1 Julie Callan of Lombard, Ill., and 5-10 Jane Plake of Serra Catholic outside Pittsburgh. The freshmen are tall, as Saurer seeks replacement for six-footer Pam Miklasevich, school's second all-time scorer (1,637 pts, 17 ppg as senior). Lisa Fubio, a 5-10 guard transfer from UConn, could help, as will eight letter winners.

New Hampshire (22-7) could well emerge as the class of New England now that the twin sister combination of Chris (school record holder in steals and assists) and Corinne Gulas (a member of the 1981 World University Games team), both transfers from Penn State, have their feet firmly planted in Coach Cecelia DeMarco's ECAC championship program.

St. Peter's (25-3), with junior guard Blanche Jones, looks like the class of the New York area but guard Sheila Tighe, who averaged 25.2 ppg, should be the toast of Manhattan for the Jaspers (19-11).

Louisiana Tech might be the reigning power in the Bayou region but two other instate teams are making rapid strides towards become competitive with the Lady Techsters. NE Louisiana (23-6) was an NCAA participant and could be even better now that 6-3 sophomore Lisa Ingram (23.2 ppg. 10.4 rpg), a member of the Pan Am team; and South Korea's Eun Jung Lee (18.6 ppg, 7.5 apg), who joined Ingram on the Freshman All-America team, have gotten some college experience. Down the road, the University of New Orleans, (23-8) which won the NWIT last spring, will try to improve again between 5-9 senior forward Sandra Hodge (27.3 ppg. 8.3 rpg), the best unknown player in the country.

Jennifer Alley coached North Carolina (22-8) up the Atlantic Coast Conference ladder last year, making the Lady Tar Heels one of the most respected teams in her region. Senior center Tresa Brown (17.1 ppg) will need frontline help in order to continue its growth. Virginia (15-13) will try to regroup behind junior guard Cathy Grimes and redshirt freshman guard Nancy Mayer, a member of the Sports Festival's all-tournament team.

Alabama (15-13) returns its entire frontline of 6-2 soph Carol Smith (16.2 ppg, 9.2 rpg, Freshman AA), 5-11 Cassandra Crumpton (18.3 ppg, 7.3 rpg) and 5-10 Terri Hillard and should be ready to challenge for one of the top five spots in the rugged SEC. The dark-horse in that conference could well be Vanderbilt. Although the Lady Commodores were only 12-14, coach Phil Lee has four key starters back, including 6-2 juniors Harriet Brumfield (16.5 ppg, 7.9 rpg) and Barb Brackman (12.2 ppg, 8.7 rpg).

Western Kentucky (22-7) pushed Old Dominion in the Sun Belt and should be even stronger after the Lady Hilltoppers add Street & Smith's high school All-America guard Clemette Haskins—daughter of WK's men's coach and former NBAer Clem Haskins—to a lineup that already includes 6-2 junior Lillie Mason. Middle Tennessee State (26-5) will rely on 6-4 senior Holly Hoover (17.6 ppg. 10.2 rpg) to stay on top in the Ohio Valley.

Memphis State (20-12) and Louisville (20-10) should both challenge in the Metro. The Lady Tigers will rely heavily on 6-4 junior Regina Street (16.5 ppg, 7.9 rpg) while the Lady Cards will try to match Metro Tourney victory.

Debra Temple, arguably the best all around player in the South (28 ppg, 15.6 rpg), will try to help Delta State relive some past glories. Coach Debbie Yow, who helped Oral Roberts to a 26-1 season, will try to pump some new blood into the program at Florida.

MIDWEST

Indiana made waves when the Lady Hoosiers (19-11) beat Kentucky at Lexington in a first round NCAA Tournament game. Coach Maryalyce Jeremiah has 5-11 senior Denise Jackson (19.7 ppg, 12.2 rpg) and 6-0 senior Rochelle Bostic (16.3 ppg) back to defend her Big 10 title. Minnesota (20-7), with Big 10 scoring leader Laura Coenen, should enter into the thick of the conference race again. Coenen, a 6-1 junior who averaged 24.2 ppg, should be an All-America by the time she leaves.

Northwestern (17-10) will depend heavily on 6-0 junior Anucha Brown (20.4 ppg, 9.2 rpg) to remain competitive while Illinois (14-14) will look to be a spoiler behind 6-3 junior Kendra Gantt (21 ppg, 8.8 rpg)

Kendra Gantt (21 ppg, 8.8 rpg).

Notre Dame (20-7) should continue to improve with 6-1 soph Trina Keys while Illinois State (20-10) will have to rally behind 5-10 senior Dawn Hallett (12.5 ppg) and 5-10 soph Daphne Smith if it hopes to defend its Gateway Conference Tournament title.

Kansas (13-15) could emerge as the sleeper in the Big Eight if 6-6 junior Philicia Allen comes on strong. At lowa, former Cheyney State Coach Viv Stringer has signed seven recruits—including 6-4 high school All-America Lisa Becker—and it should be only a matter of time before the Lady Hawks become a factor in the region.

WEST

UCLA has all five starters back from an 18-11 NCAA team and could easily jump back into the Top 20 if Billie Moore's team can conquer its inconsistency. Senior center Necie Thompson (16 ppg, 11.3 rpg) is one of the best on the Coast.

Ernest Riggins arrived at San Diego State last spring ready to take on the world. He may be able to after signing 6-3 Tina Hutchinson, who played for him at East St. Louis Lincoln. Hutchinson, who averaged 35 ppg and 15 rpg, was the best prep prospect in the country and should make the Lady Aztecs (10-18) a Top 20 program within two years. Arizona State (23-7) will try to beat the heat in the conference with 6-2 senior center Kym Hampton (18.9 ppg, 11.3 rpg).

Cal-Berkeley (17-12) came on strong at the end of last season and should be the favorite in the Nor-Cal Conference ahead of both Oregon and rebuilding Oregon State. Alison Lang, Oregon's 6-3 senior center who averaged 23.9 ppg and 11 rpg, is the most complete player in the Far Northwest.

BYU (17-8) stamped itself as a major power when it signed 6-7 high-school All-America Tresa Spaulding of Meridan, Idaho, a member of the World University Games team.

In the Southwest, Árkansas (21-8), Texas Tech (22-9) and Houston are all capable of pushing Texas. Carolyn Thompson of Tech (22.6 ppg, 9.1 rpg), a 6-1 senior, might be the best returning player in the conference aside from Annette Smith and 6-5 Monica Lamb, a high school All-America from Houston Yates, who should give UH the inside power it needs to challenge the Longhorns.

olympic, women's report

Pat Head Summitt was a member of the 1976 Olympic women's basketball team that won a silver medal at Montreal.

As such, the former Tennessee-Martin guard and current coach of the University of Tennessee, who has been selected to coach the 1984 U.S. team that will compete in Los Angeles, got an up close and personal look at the way the Soviets dominated that competition.

The Russians took no prisoners in Canada, winning every game by at least 25 points on the way to the Gold.

Last summer, Head Summitt got another look at the Soviet national team. This time, they played the United States' Pan Am team in an international exhibition at Kansas City.

Final score: United States 76, USSR 70.

"This is getting to be a habit," said excited U.S. Coach Fran Garmon. A year ago, a U.S. national team coached by Garmon handed the USSR's national team its first loss in more than 20 years, 85-83 in Budapest, Hungary.

"Some people could say the victory in Hungary was a fluke," Head Summitt said, "But, this win will help us get over a lot of hurdles. It's unfortunate more people couldn't have witnessed it. We have waited 25 years to see that.

The United States is rapidly closing the gap that has traditionally existed between this country and the all-powerful Soviets. While the Americans may not be ready to be installed as overwhelming favorites to win in LA, they have demonstrated they can be competitive with the rest of the world.

The national team that defeated the Soviets last June and then represented this country in the Pan Am Games at Caracas included:

6-5 Cindy Noble, a former Tennessee star who played in Europe.

6-8 Anne Donovan, a 1983 Old Dominion grad who was a two-time Street and Smith's Player of the Year selection.

6-3 Pam McGee, a senior at USC

6-3 Lisa Ingram, a sophomore at Northeast Louisiana.

- 6-2 Denise Curry, a former UCLA star who played in Europe.
- 6-3 Janice Lawrence, a senior at Louisiana Tech.

6-2 Cheryl Miller, a sophomore at USC.

6-0 Lynette Woodard, a former Wade Trophy winner at Kansas who played in Europe before returning home to serve as a volunteer assistant at her alma mater.

5-10 LaTaunya Pollard, a 1983 graduate of Long Beach State who was last year's Wade winner.

5-9 Cheryl Cook, a senior at Cincinnati.

5-8 Patty Jo Hodges, a 1983 graduate of Kentucky.

5-4 Kim Mulkey, a senior at Louisiana Tech.

"I think this team should provide us with the nucleus for our team in '84." Head Summitt said. "Most people expect the Olympic team to include about five members of the Pan Am team. But, I think we'll have more. We had at least nine players who did an excellent job when we defeated the Soviets."

The players who seem most likely to crack the inner circle at this point include 6-5 Carol Menken-Schaudt, a former Oregon State star; 5-10 Debra Temple, a sophomore at Delta State; 5-7 Joyce Walker, a senior at Louisiana State; 5-10 Annette Smith, a junior at Texas and 5-4 Lea Henry, a 1983 graduate of Tennessee. All five played for the U.S. team that won the Gold in the World University Games in Edmonton.

The talent pool for LA, as you can see, is far greater than it was in 1976.

"But," Head Summitt warned, "If we don't have the right chemistry, we won't even win a medal."

The United States does have numerous pluses going into the games. Most of them came to light against the Soviets.

"The biggest factor that stood out in that game was the athletic ability," Head Summitt said. "The Americans were just better athletes. The other factor I thought went a long way toward determining the outcome was quickness."

The versatile Miller, who scored 18 points and was the star of the American victory, epitomizes the growth of the women's game in this country. Miller, who once scored 105 points in a high school game, has taken the sport to a new level.

Miller, who jumps well enough to dunk a ball in practice, offers Head Summitt a transition-oriented wing who can score at will against the more mechanical Eastern European teams and then play stifling 90-foot pressure defense.

Miller took the game over in the final two minutes against the Soviets.

With the U.S. leading, 70-66, Miller blocked a shot, then made two free throws when the USSR's 7-3 Ulyana Semenova fouled her on a drive. Semenova scored inside before Miller made one of two free throws with 1:25 to play, giving the U.S. a 73-68 lead. Semenova made a pair of free throws to cut the lead to three before Miller knocked down a jumper with 35 seconds left to lock up the game.

"I look at myself as a sparkplug," Miller said. "I am not a leader. I just knew we had to put them away. I guess in the last two minutes, I was just ready to turn it on."

What the Americans were also able to do in Kansas City was turn off the giant Semenova, who has dominated international play for close to eight years with her bulk and inside scoring ability.

The U.S. first showed signs of being able to cope with Semenova two years ago in Hungary when the hard working Noble kept her away from the offensive boards by constantly and effectively boxing her out. The U.S. sophisticated its, defensive strategy in Kansas City by effectively preventing the entry pass to the wing. Semenova scored 18 points but appeared tired and did not enter the game in the second half until 7:46 to play and the U.S. leading, 59-51.

In all fairness, the entire Soviet team looked sluggish in Kansas City after an exhausting 15-hour plane ride and only one day to recuperate.

But, the U.S. style of pressure basketball could cause them problems, no matter what the circumstances.

"The Russians seem to be old-fashioned," said French national Coach Vanags Indulis, whose team took part in the Kansas City round robin. "The Americans are more aggressive on defense and play a more wide open game. It is the kind of basketball I like."

It should be the kind of basketball that turns on the sellout crowd at the Forum.

"I think this will be the $200 game in LA," said Bill Wall, the Executive Secretary of ABA-USA.

He knows the final score will not be lopsided.

Bell and Michael Brown, a 6-10 freshman from Wilmington, Del., and Mark Peterson, 6-9, of Oak Hill, West Va., are the best bets to fill the hole left by Hinson.

It'll be awhile before Rutgers goes to the NCAA tournament again, but Young is a proven winner, and won't be down long.

PENN STATE

The last two coaches of the Nittany Lions left for the safety of the NBA. What Johnny Bach and Dick Harter couldn't accomplish here, Bruce Parkhill is coming home to try to do.

"I've never talked to anybody who went to Penn State who didn't love it," says Parkhill, who previously coached at William & Mary for six years. "It's a good place to go to school. We can build on that.

"We need good, solid kids who want to play big-time basketball, improve themselves, and graduate from college."

Harter left him some good players to get started in the right direction. There's streak-shooting 6-6 senior forward David Griffin (11.4 ppg, 5.6 rpg), and the backcourt combination of juniors Craig Collins (4.8 ppg) and Dwight Gibson (10.7 ppg).

Up front, Parkhill hopes 6-11 senior Dick Mumma can fill the hole left in the middle by the loss of Mike Lang (13.1 ppg, 10 rpg), while 6-7 sophomore Matt Moser and 6-7 freshman Kip DeWitt lead the candidates to succeed Rich Fetter (10.9 ppg, 5.2 rpg)

Rich Fetter (10.9 ppg, 5.2 rpg).
Seniors Wally Choice and Jim Fojan, along with 6-5 freshman Marshall Grier, head a deep guard corps. A promising guard, Alex Aguidio, quit school, and guard-forward Brian Dean flunked out. Ron Rowan, a 6-5 guard from Beaver Falls, Pa., was transferring from Notre Dame but switched to St. John's.

"On paper," Parkhill said, "this is an easier job than William & Mary."

MASSACHUSETTS

Tom McLaughlin, who looked like a winner and showed so much promise when he came here from an assistant's job at Notre Dame, is gone now, giving way to his assistant, Ron Gerlufsen, after a 9-20 season and some unpleasantness at Amherst.

John Hempel heads a strong returning cast that figures to improve on an 0-12 road record, and a 4-10 Atlantic 10 slate. They are still weeping at Rutgers and George Washington over losing Hempel in the recruiting battle, and that's understandable.

Hempel is a moose, at 6-7, 225, a moose that can shoot, that is. He led the Minutemen in scoring (16.2 ppg) and was third in rebounding (6 pg). As a freshman, mind you.

The rest of the team also returns, topped by sweet 6-1 junior guard Donald Russell (13.3 ppg), 6-7 forward-center Edwin Green (12.7 ppg, 7.7 rpg, 58 blocks), 6-5 junior forward Horace Neysmith (11.7 ppg, team-high 8.1 rpg), 6-4 junior guard Ron Young (5.4 ppg), 6-6 junior forward Bobby Braun (5.1 ppg) and

SINIA SENTUR

Atlantic 10 aces (top to bottom) are: WVU's Dale Blaney, St. Bonnie's Bob Samuels, Rutgers' Brian Ebberle, State's Dick Mumma.

6-5 sophomore guard Darryl Carter (4.9 ppg). It's hoped that 6-9 sophomore Tom Emerson can develop at center.

Freshman recruit Carl Smith or Jackie Sheehan, a transfer from Rider, seek time at point guard.

UMass may surprise some people, including this predictor, and move up a notch or two.

DUQUESNE

Second-year coach Jim Satalin sees the world through squinted eyes. It's not always clear, at first, where he's coming from, but it doesn't take long to appreciate that he knows where he's going.

When Satalin started his first season at Duquesne, he painted such a dark picture of his team's prospects that one had to wonder why anyone would want to watch the Dukes. Or coach them, especially since Satalin had enjoyed such a long and successful run at his alma mater, St. Bonaventure, before accepting the challenge to come here and attempt to resurrect a once-proud program.

The Dukes started slow, losing five of their first six games, but gained something from the experience, and earned respect with their gritty play the rest of the campaign. Satalin can coach, no doubt about that.

They've lost three starters from a 12-16 team, and all of their double figure scorers: Joey Myers, Billy Searles and Terry Teachout. The two best players back are Andy Sisinni, a 6-2 senior guard (6.6 ppg), and Emmett Sellers, a 6-3 guard-forward (9.1 ppg, 3 rpg).

Satalin signed two of the top three prospects in the Pittsburgh area in 6-7 forward Mark Beavers and 6-6 forward Ron Stevenson, and hopes for help from three other freshmen, Eric Compton, a 6-1 guard from Long Beach, N.Y., and Gregg Harrison, a 6-6 forward from Lynn, Mass., and Todd Preston, a 6-9 center from nearby McKeesport, Pa.

He'll need it.

RHODE ISLAND

Satalin probably would have preferred swapping predicted finishes with the Rams. He likes to begin at the bottom, and build from there, but he can't claim as weak a team as Claude English can at URI.

His team was 9-19 last season, his second since he replaced Jack Kraft, and he's lost his best player, Horace "Pappy" Owens (22.8 ppg, 6.7 rpg).

He has four starters back, and it remains to be seen whether that's a plus or a minus. There are a lot of guards and a group of promising freshmen, and the likable English can only pray for the best.

It would help, for instance, if 6-7 senior forward Marc Upshaw, out most of most of last season with a knee injury, can return to form. He averaged 17.5 points and 10.7 rebounds two years ago.

The Rams' returnees include 6-4 sophomore guard Rusty Cordua (12.7 ppg, 3.rpg), who could become one of the top shooters in the league. Two other guards, 6-2 senior Tony Taylor and 6-4 sophomore Todd Bozeman both averaged 9.5 points, and Reggie Horne, a six-foot senior guard (6.9 ppg), had his

But there are too many guards, a lack of proven players up front, no "big" scorer or rebounder around at URI. It doesn't look good for English—the coach or the language—or basketball fans in Kingston.

EASTERN BASKETBALL PUBLICATION
7 May Court, West Hempstead, NY 115

AL McGUIRE

Fact is, AI, most publications can't.
What makes EB different, is its regional focus. An area as big as the East—Maine to the Carolinas—demands its own magazine. National publications try to cover too much.
Only a specialty publication, like EB, can accurately and completely inspect, analyze and report everything significant about basketball in the East.

A subscription to Eastern Basketball Magazine is your guarantee of a great season. And a subscription begins with the giant Preview/Handbook edition which is designed to be used as a season-long reference manual.

And best of all, the issue is yours FREE when you subscribe for the rest of the season—at a substantial discount, of course.

You also get EB's three other special editions—High School edition, Playoff edition and Spring Recruiting edition—included as part of your subscription. And plenty of other exciting surprises throughout the season.

One more thing. You get EB's unconditional money-back guarantee.

Come on now. Return this postage-paid card today.

Take the road to flavor.
